JFK, Courts Are Defied By Strikers

Flight Engineers Ground Big U.S. Airline Fleets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Flight engineers grounded a major segment of the nation's passenger airline fleet Saturday in a "wildcat" strike in defiance of their union, their employers and President Kennedy.

The walkout, affecting seven of the largest airlines, began at 7:30 p.m. est Friday, two hours after Kennedy ordered a fact-finding board to move in on the dispute and avert the strike.

IGNORE ORDERS

The stoppage continued through Saturday despite orders of union leaders for the men to return to work and court actions in several key cities.

Flight engineers continued to call in "sick" or simply fail to report for duty. The telephones of many went unanswered when their employers tried to reach them.

Pan American World Airways and Eastern Airlines led a parade to court and obtained orders forbidding continuance of the strike. American Airlines obtained a federal court order for a hearing Monday on an injunction plea.

Operation of twin-engine airplanes was not affected by the walkout because that type of plane need not carry engineers under federal regulation. But all of the big U.S. four-engine propeller driven and jet aircraft must include engineers in their crews.

Officials of Eastern Airlines expressed the hope that a court order obtained in Miami would bring its engineers back. Pan American reported six hours after it obtained a restraining order at noon that its flight engineers still were "unavailable."

"The plans of thousands of travelers have been disrupted by this illegal and irresponsible action," a Pan American spokesman said. "We trust the flight engineers will live up to their obligations as law abiding citizens and that Pan American soon will be able to restore normal service."

Pan American's normal schedule calls for 17 flights out of New York on Saturday. It sent one flight to Bermuda and arranged for supervisory engineers to go out on two other flights Saturday night—one to London, the other to Paris. Pan American cancelled

Senate Inquiry On Air Safety Begins Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week-long Senate inquiry into safety problems raised by the increasing congestion and speed of air traffic will get under way Monday.

Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Aviation Agency will be the opening witnesses. They will be followed by spokesmen for the Weather Bureau, the airlines, pilots, traffic controllers and others.

The aviation subcommittee headed by Sen. A.S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., hopes to pinpoint what has been done about air safety, what needs to be done now, and what will be required in the future.

The intent is not to probe into the causes of specific air crashes, such as the collision over New York City last Dec. 16 that took 134 lives.

That disaster, involving a United Airlines DC8 and a Trans World Airlines Super Constellation, killed 128 passengers and crew members and six persons on the ground.

The CAB, which is responsible for investigating air crashes, still is working on its report on the collision.

Husband In Car Hits, Kills Wife

RACINE, Wis. (AP)—A mother of seven children, Beverly Pischke, was killed early Saturday when struck by a car driven by her husband.

Sheriff Rudolph Spieker said Mrs. Pischke, 33, and her husband, Clifford, 38, of Union Grove, apparently had a quarrel before she was run over on a service road leading to Interstate Highway 94.

Pischke was held for questioning on an open charge. The Pischke children, ranging in age from 1 to 14, were sent to the homes of neighbors and relatives.

Committee OK's Davis Measures

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Louisiana legislators reconvene today for final adoption of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' package of segregation bills that cleared a senate committee Saturday.

Senate Judiciary B Committee, putting additional teeth in the local option bill, adopted amendments prepared by Leander H. Perez of Plaquemines Parish.

Perez's amendments would enable the supervisor of election boards to call a local option election if the school board refuses to after being petitioned by the people.

With Sen. Kelly Gravolet of Placquemines presenting the amendments the committee included a clause to permit school boards to sell its facilities, excluding land.

Meantime, the Senate will return at 7 p.m. today to vote on

"Jes' Ramblin' hopes that some of the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Howe in Monroe will send cards to this well known and much appreciated woman.

Three Persons Killed In Crash

MANSFIELD, La. (AP) — A mother and two daughters were killed when their car and another car crashed head-on four miles south of here Saturday.

The dead were Mrs. Jack Bass, 28; three-week-old Annette Bass, and 8-year-old Gloria Jean Bass.

Another daughter, 4-year-old Sandra Bass, was in critical condition.

Four persons, all occupants of the other car, also were in critical condition.

'NEED SPIRITUAL HELP'

Nun Plans Mission Home For Wealthy

ROME (UPI)—A Roman Catholic nun who lives outside the convent with permission of her superiors said Saturday she is founding a mission home for the wealthy because the "rich need more missionary work than the poor."

Miss Ornella Brocchi, 52, said she was ready to start work on a hotel-like mission, with swimming pool, plush stores and shops, luxurious apartments, a theater and all modern conveniences, for wealthy persons seeking to regain spiritual values.

Miss Brocchi was known as Sister Ornella for 29 years as a member of the Order of the Sacred Heart. She received permission to go into the outside world on her mission to care for the spiritual needs of the rich.

"Everybody sees the needs of the poor," she said. "Their physical need stresses their need for spiritual guidance.

"But nobody has ever considered the spiritual requirements of people with money. Because they appear to be happy, everybody thinks they are happy.

"The soul does not need poverty to be uplifted."

Miss Brocchi said she got the idea for her mission by listening to the mothers of her wealthy pupils at a school where she taught.

She said they complained of wasting their lives and that "they could find no goal in their existence of parties, cruises and Riviera holidays."

Her bishop accepted her idea of a mission where only the wealthy would be welcome and he won Vatican permission for her to return to the secular world to carry out her plan.

British Mobs Protest U.S. Polaris Base

Thousands Take Part In London, Glasgow Rallies

LONDON (AP) — Philosopher Bertrand Russell launched his civil disobedience campaign for nuclear disarmament Saturday, leading thousands of Britons in a sit-down demonstration outside the London Defense Ministry.

Another demonstration — like Russell's against the projected American Polaris base on Scotland's Holy Loch — massed more than 7,000 marchers in the streets of Glasgow.

LARGEST TO DATE

The rallies in Britain's two biggest cities were the largest public protests so far against the Polaris base and nuclear weapons. An estimated 12,000 persons took part in the two demonstrations.

Close to 5,000 marched from London's Marble Arch to a rally in Trafalgar Square which was addressed by Earl Russell. The elderly philosopher-peer had announced in advance he was ready to go to jail rather than abandon his "sitdown" strike. But police made no arrests.

Jamming a felt hat on his thick gray thatch of hair, Russell led the marchers to the government district in Whitehall. A box-formation of police, shoulder-to-shoulder, barred his way outside the Defense Ministry. So Russell, now 88 and perhaps Britain's angriest old man, sat down on the sidewalk. Behind him the sidewalks were soon covered as, row on row, the marchers followed his example. And soon the sidewalks on three sides of the ministry were blocked by seated figures.

Reinforced police squads of around 400 watched quietly, but made no effort to move the demonstrators on.

Fire trucks stood by to use

Navy Jet Flies Special Blood Needed For Boy

A Navy jet flew a special blood clotting plasma the boy needed from New Orleans to Memphis, where it was transferred to a commercial plane for the remainder of the trip to Little Rock.

The blood of a hemophiliac will not clot and he could bleed to death from a cut or injury that would be minor to a person in normal health.

Stephen, son of Col. and Mrs. Harry Morrill of the Little Rock Air Force Base, underwent surgery for a ruptured appendix Thursday and a doctor reported he was in good condition.

A hospital spokesman said the facility's blood bank was running short of the special plasma and it was necessary to get more.

It was to have come from Los Angeles, but a strike of airline flight engineers prevented shipment from there.

U.S. Meet Set On Tidelands

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and William Helis Jr., chairman of the Louisiana Mineral Board, will meet with members of President Kennedy's cabinet Monday and Tuesday to discuss tidelands.

Helis said more than $350 million derived from disputed tidelands areas is being held in escrow by the government, but there is no indication when the money will be paid out.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Louisiana's ownership of the tidelands extends three miles offshore. The state contended ownership about 10 miles out, and is still fighting the decision.

Judges Rule Out Terminal Segregation

MONTGOMERY Ala (UPI) — All methods of racial segregation in Birmingham's terminal station have been ordered "obliterated" by a three-judge panel of the 5th U. S. District Court of Appeals, United Press International learned Saturday.

The court reversed a district judge's ruling Friday which had upheld the Birmingham terminal's practice of allowing Negroes in interstate travel to occupy a white waiting room but segregating Negroes traveling within the state.

The ruling, made in New Orleans, was disclosed by the office of Judge Richard T. Rives, a member of the appellate court, who lives in Montgomery. His office received a copy of the decision through the mail from New Orleans.

The appellate judges took note of an Alabama Public Service Commission ruling of 1956 which required the posting of visible

Bernhard Leads In East Baton Rouge Election

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Two former councilmen topped a list of 23 candidates in Saturday's Democratic primary for two House of Representatives seats from East Baton Rouge Parish.

Complete, official returns showed Richard C. Cadwallader and William F. (Bill) Bernhard led four candidates into a runoff, which is scheduled March 11.

They will face insurance executive Walter H. Travis, who got 5,912 votes, and A. R. (Cotton) Harris, a city-parish councilman, who drew 5,727.

The election is to fill two House seats created by a constitutional amendment approved at the polls last November. The amendment boosts East Baton Rouge's House representation to four.

Cloudy, Cooler Expected Today

The Monroe area is due for a drop in the warm temperatures enjoyed for the past week, while cloudy skies and scattered thundershowers are still in order.

The forecast calls for scattered showers and thundershowers mainly in the southeast portions through Sunday night with temperatures dropping to between 40 and 50 degrees for Sunday's high.

The low is expected to be 40 in the extreme north and 45 to 66 elsewhere.

U.S. SPEEDS TESTS

New Discoverer Goes Into Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Discoverer XXI shot into orbit Saturday, then — by restarting its engine on a signal from the ground — showed how currently passive sky spies can be converted into maneuverable military space craft.

The Air Force said this was the first time an Agena-B satellite vehicle had been restarted in orbit.

TEST SYSTEM

Maj. Gen. O. J. Ritland, commander of the Air Force missile division, said that this attempt was only to test the restart system.

"It is another successful experiment to perfect the system for satellite stabilization and control in orbit," the general said.

No attempt to recover any part of the satellite will be made.

1. Speed up, slow down or dart off in another direction to dodge a ballistic missile sent to destroy it. It would be much harder to hit than the high-flying U2 plane shot down by the Soviet Union last spring.

2. Change the shape, altitude or angle of its orbit on command.

When perfected, it could overhaul other satellites for inspection, even intercept enemy ICBMs.

Able to rendezvous in space, a group of such satellites could join to form a way station for interplanetary travel.

There has been some speculation that the recent Soviet Venus rocket demonstrated a restart capability but Soviet announcements

Navy Will Send Supply Ship To Scotland Base

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy went ahead Saturday with plans to send a Polaris missile submarine tender to her designated station in Scotland's Clyde River despite new protests in England and Scotland.

For reasons of security, the Navy declined to say exactly when the tender Proteus will sail from New London, Conn., where she has been for the past several weeks. An official announcement is expected after the Proteus leaves.

The Proteus, specially equipped, will serve as a supply ship for Polaris submarines operating in international waters off the northern European coast.

When protests were raised first in Britain, the Navy took the position that no permanent, fixed, land base was being established on English soil.

INAUGURAL RE-ENACTED

South Again Hails Confederacy Chief

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The fateful oath which Jefferson Davis took as president of the Confederacy 100 years ago was repeated Saturday.

"I do solemnly swear I will faithfully execute the office of president of the Confederate States of America, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution thereof."

With that simple vow, voiced by Montgomery attorney T. B. Hill as Davis' 1961 counterpart, the birthplace of the Confederacy relived the moment Davis took the helm of the young rebel nation.

The re-enactment of the inauguration of the Confederate hero climaxed Montgomery's week-long celebration of the Civil War centennial.

Despite heavy rain, throngs jammed the first capital of the Confederacy, lining the streets in a colorful array of hoop-skirted belles and bearded gentlemen in high hats and long coats.

The oath-taking ceremony and two parades went as planned, complete with strutting minstrel bandsmen blaring "Dixie," high-stepping majorettes, snappy National Guard outfits clad in Confederate-style uniforms, fringe-topped surreys and much more.

Hill, in a black knee-length coat and tophat, waved to the crowds from his horse-drawn carriage as he led the triumphant parade from a hotel to the state Capitol.

Following close behind in another buggy en route to the inaugural ceremony were three Southern governors; J. Lindsay Almond Jr. of Virginia, Ross Barnett of Mississippi and John Patterson of Alabama.

The week of pageantry ended Saturday night with an inaugural ball.

Communities Left Without Heat, Power

By United Press International

A heavy snow-and-ice storm battered the Midwest Saturday, disrupting communications and electrical power, and virtually isolating several Iowa communities.

Several thousand Iowans, including a community of 3,700 persons shivered in frigid temperatures without heat, power or telephone service.

TOWN CUT OFF

Winterset, the community of 3,700 about 30 miles southwest of Des Moines, was cut off from the remainder of the state as heavy ice snapped telephone and electric lines.

Lenox, in the southwestern part of Iowa, also was without electrical power, telephone, or water for 18 hours when utility lines buckled under the ice barrage that swept across the area. But late Saturday the Highway Patrol reported service was partially restored—at least enough to start electric waterpumps.

In Des Moines, about 3,000 homes were without electrical service which shut down furnaces in many cases. City officials prepared to house those needing shelter and warmth in a high school while other families invaded hotels or motels for the night until service resumes.

At least 77 other Iowa communities, including part of Des Moines, were without long distance telephone service because of the storm which dumped 11 and 12 inches of snow as it rammed across the tall corn state and Minnesota into Wisconsin and upper Michigan.

Deep drifts plagued the storm area and closed highways from Iowa through Northern Wisconsin. In Minnesota, a snowplow worked 45 minutes to clear a 14-mile path between Mantorville and Rochester to permit an ambulance to rush a 5-year-old girl to a hospital.

Meanwhile, a new storm was developing in the Southwest

Losses Heavy In Flash Flood At Hattiesburg

HATTIESBURG, Miss (UPI)—Hattiesburg residents turned to mopping-up tasks Saturday after a small creek overflowed and caused a flash flood in the city Friday night.

Officials had not completed an estimate of the damage Saturday, but they said it would run in the "high thousands" of dollars. They said most of the damage was done to floors in the low-lying areas where the water rushed over the door sills.

It was also reported that "thousands of dollars of equipment" was lost at the high school gymnasium which was flooded.

One serious injury was reported. Authorities said this occurred when an elderly couple did not see a washed-out bridge and their car plowed into the bank of a creek, injuring one of them.

Officers said the vehicle was going so fast it bounced back on the road again and saved the couple from possibly drowning in the swift running waters of the creek.

To add to Hattiesburg's woe, the U. S. Weather Bureau at Jackson issued a flood warning for the Leaf River near here Saturday. But during the afternoon the rain stopped and residents were hopeful the flooding would be minor.

CRITICAL OR NOT

Newspaper Happy To Get All Views

This newspaper is certainly always happy to hear from its readers. We like to publish their views regardless of whether they agree with us. Then, too, we do not mind strong criticism. Through criticism we often learn to do a job better, or correct something we might be doing wrong. We don't claim to be infallible.

We make an attempt to check out all letters to see if the person's name on them is actually that person. We believe that a person should not be ashamed of his convictions regardless.

Last Sunday we ran a letter in Views of Our Readers' column on the editorial page which was highly critical of these newspapers. The letter came in shortly before our deadline for that page and we were able to make only a hasty check. We didn't want to leave it out because of its contents. Therefore we published it. The letter was signed by a George L. Sokol and it was mailed in Lake Providence. It was hard to determine in view of the sketchy information whether the writer lived in Monroe or Lake Providence.

During the past week we have checked this name out as thoroughly as it is possible to do so — here and at Lake Providence. So far we have been unable to find a person with the name signed on the letter. Therefore, the only conclusion we can reach is the fact that no such person exists and that the writer is too ashamed of his efforts to sign his error - ridden letter.

We again want to urge all our readers to write us their views regardless of whether they agree with ours.

Swiss Object To U.S. Envoy

BERN, Switzerland, (UPI) — The government-controlled Swiss radio Saturday urged the United States to withdraw the name of Earl E. T. Smith as ambassador to Switzerland on grounds he would "complicate" the Swiss task of caring for American interests in Cuba.

The radio said Smith, a former ambassador to Havana, was a supporter of ousted Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista. Since the United States broke relations with the Fidel Castro regime in Havana, Switzerland has been handling American affairs in Cuba.

The radio statement followed strong press criticism of President Kennedy's choice for envoy to Switzerland.

The government officially has said nothing, but it has announced it would withhold approval of Smith's nomination "pending investigation." This was an unusual move in diplomatic affairs.

Hairdresser Unit Has Clinic Here

Local and area beauticians of the Monroe Unit of Louisiana Hairdressers Association participated in a clinic this week celebrating National Beauty Week which closes today.

The highlight of the clinic was the presentation of the new hair style created in celebration of the Beauty Week, called the "Honey Hug."

A West Monroe woman, Mrs. Dollie Guin, and Barry Teagle of Ruston, demonstrated the hair-do for some 40 Association members present.

Dogs Die After Eating Chicken That Was Spoiled

A dead chicken caused the death of five dogs and one cat Friday night in an incident that called out members of the Ouachita parish sheriff's department and the services of a veterinarian.

The animals had eaten a rotten chicken and apparently died from food poisoning, Dr. R. W. Einhorn, veterinarian, said.

Sheriff's officials were called in to investigate the case in what was believed to be malicious poisoning at the time.

Several other dogs, besides the dead ones, in the vicinity of 1600 Jonesboro Road, were reported to be sick.

Investigation turned up the rotten chicken. "When the dogs were brought in they were vomiting up chicken feathers," Dr. Einhorn said. "The contents of their stomach showed no indications of any metallic poisoning."

The veterinarian treated several other dogs which are still quite sick.

"Just goes to show you, that we have to watch what animals eat too." Einhorn added.

Family Of Four Burns To Death In Flash Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A family of four burned to death Saturday when fire raced through their upstairs flat so quickly they could move only a few feet from their beds.

Dead were John T. Donahue, 30, an insurance aduster; his wife, Gerry, and their two daughters, Marine, 1, and Mary Jane, 3.

Donahue, formerly of North Andover and Lawrence, Mass., was found draped over the bathtub, where he had apparently gone for water before being overcome by smoke. Mrs. Donahue's body was found sprawled across the bed with the charred form of Marine at her feet. The other girl was still in her bed in another room.

The fire was discovered by the occupants of the downstairs flat, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Thomas, who awoke to the crackle of flames.

Thomas said he rushed up the stairs, but found the upper flat a mass of flames. Firemen estimated that the blaze had been raging for 30 minutes before it was discovered.

House Okay On Jobless Aid Is Likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's emergency program to help the nation's unemployed and their needy children is headed for early approval by the House, it appeared Saturday.

The Ways and Means Committee, led by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., has completed public hearings on the anti-recession plan and will go behind closed doors Tuesday to hammer out a final version of the bill.

Floor action probably will come early the following week, judging by statements from Mills and Speaker Sam Rayburn.

The anti - recession measures would:

Provide $950 million for additional unemployment compensation to three million jobless workers whose benefits have either run out or will expire during the next year. Up to 13 weeks of extra payments would be authorized, depending on eligibility. Employers would pay the cost of the program through higher taxes.

Make available $350 million in federal-state public assistance for a million needy children of out-of-work parents.

Kennedy proposed that the one-year jobless pay program be financed by raising the taxable wage base from $3,000 to $4,800 but chances are the committee will not go along with this.

It was likely instead that a temporary increase in the 3.1 per cent federal payroll tax will be approved. The administration has said it would not make a major issue of the matter—The important thing was to get the new benefits to hard-hit workers.

The President also asked Congress to give the extra benefits to workers who exhausted their regular unemployment compensation in the period from Oct. 31, 1960, to April 1, 1962. However, the organized labor wants the starting date shoved back to May which it says more accurately reflects the beginning of the recession.

Kennedy has said he would go along with setting the date at June 30, 1960, if the committee favors the move, and it probably will. This would add another $10 million and 125,000 workers to the programs originally proposed.

Negro Schools Broken Into; Money Stolen

Two Negro schools on Renwick Road were broken into Friday night with a small amount of money being stolen.

School officials of Lincoln Elementary school said that someone had broken into two buildings of the school, entering the teachers lounges. They pried up two soft drink machines and stole a small amount of change.

Nothing else was disturbed. One of the buildings was entered by breaking the glass in an outside window, reaching through and opening it and then crawling inside, officials said. It was not known how the other building was entered.

In the other, someone entered the principal's office of Carroll High.

The thief or thieves broke a glass in the office in order to gain entrance. School officials said that they were unable to determine if anything was missing. The principal's desk, which contains a small amount of change was undisturbed, they said.

Dedicate New Buildings

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—Norfolk dedicated its $4.5 million public safety building Saturday but not without a few hitches.

Half a dozen fire eingines, with wailing sirens, halted the dedicatory parade in answering a call at the brand new eight-story building. It turned out to be a false alarm.

New Orleans Civil Defense Director Dies

Funeral services will be held Sunday in St. Martinville, his birthplace.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Evelyn Fournet of Lafayette, two daughters and two grandsons.

Discoverer XXI, the second launched in 27 hours, roared into the sky at 2:58 p.m.

The launching was delayed several hours to make sure that Discoverer XX, fired Friday, was far out of range.

To newsmen 4,000 feet away, Discoverer XXI appeared little different from earlier rockets in the workhorse series.

Its first stage was the customary medium-range Thor missile. Its 2,100-pound second stage, all destined to go into orbit, was six feet longer than the 19-foot Agena-A used in most previous shots.

There the similarity ended. Tucked inside the collar of the Thor was the restartable engine.

This is why the ability to restart an engine in space is of major significance in satellite development:

Discoverers maintain a horizontal position—necessary for accurate ejection of recoverable capsules—by spurting jets of compressed gas in an opposite direction whenever they start to veer off course or wobble.

These same jets can be used to change the satellite altitude in space. If its nose is pointing away from earth when the engine is restarted, the satellite will shoot farther out into space.

If the nose is tilted downward, the satellite will enter a lower orbit and soon be pulled by earth's gravity to a fiery death in the atmosphere.

There was no indication which way Discoverer XXI was pointed when its engine was restarted Saturday, nor how long the engine was kept burning.

Discoverer XXI's payload included instruments needed to perfect missile detection satellites. These instruments will measure the earth's normal temperature. Upcoming Midas satellites will have infrared "eyes" to detect above-normal flashes of heat such as the firing of an intercontinental missile.

The two launchings set a record in the lagging two-year-old Discoverer series originally scheduled to be fired at a rate of one a month. No two have been closer than six days and some have been as much as two months apart.

Discoverer XX, launched Friday, carried a capsule to be kept in orbit a record four days before ejection over a recovery area in the Pacific.

Judges Rule Out Terminal Segregation

signs segregating Negroes in intrastate travel.

They held the terminal is "A public utility and an arm of the state in the execution of state policy."

The ruling directed the district court to take appropriate action "that will obliterate the supposed distinction between interstate and intrastate passengers as well as the use of race or color as the basis of occupancy of either one or both of the waiting rooms in the terminal."

The appeal arose out of a suit by two Negroes, Carl T. Baldwin and Alexina Baldwin, who were ordered out of the white waiting room after Birmingham police examined their train tickets and found they were not traveling across state lines.

The appellate ruling noted that the city of Birmingham "has recognized that it may not enforce its prior practice of segregating Negroes traveling across the state lines.

"But in the very execution of its policy of examination of the tickets of Negro passengers it inexcapably violates the demands of the Constitution that the Negro traveler sitting in the waiting room be treated as would a white passenger on the same bench," the judges observed.

Records indicate, the ruling continued, that "the police of Birmingham consider that the right to remain in the white waiting room requires one of two things: That the person be white, or if colored, he be an interstate traveler.

"The reverse is just as obvious. If not white or colored with an interstate status, the person must move.

"Negroes are entitled to be free of that discrimination at the hands of state, city and police officials."

Plains. The U.S. Weather Bureau said there was no immediate indication of the storm's strength or possible direction, but heavy snow warnings were issued for parts of Kansas and Nebraska through Sunday.

As the snow-and-ice swept through other parts of the Midwest Saturday, Chicago basked in spring-like temperatures of 60 degrees, breaking the old mark for a Feb. 18 of 58 degrees set in 1877.

But snow and ice weren't all the storm-ravaged areas had to worry about. Hard on the heels of the storm was a fresh blast of Arctic air which was expected to tumble the mercury to the zero mark.

The storm, before swinging into the heart of the Midwest, touched off tornadoes and a few flash floods in passing through the plains.

About 14 persons were injured by tornadoes which demolished or damaged scores of buildings in Oklahoma late Friday, and heavy rains and thunderstorms triggered flash flooding in parts of both Kansas and Missouri.

A lightning bolt struck a power sub-station in Kansas City, Kan., creating an 80-minute blackout that forced three hospitals to switch to emergency generators. At Providence Hospital, however, a surgeon completed an operation by flashlight when the auxiliary power also failed briefly.

Fog was widespread over the Midwest Saturday. It halted airline service at Detroit where about 1,000 air travelers were stranded until visibility improved to permit the resumption of flights.

Intermittent rain and showers also occurred from the middle and lower Mississippi Valley into the mid-Atlantic states and New England. Evergreen, Ala., reported 3.65 inches of rain in a six-hour period.

In contrast with the balmy temperatures over the southern half of the Midwest Saturday, cold Canadian air pushed into the northern plains to plunge temperatures to sub-zero levels in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Sub-teen readings were reported as far south as Nebraska while freezing readings extended to Texas.

U.S. Eases Loan Funds For Homes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government moved Saturday to strengthen home building by adding more than $1 billion to the supply of money available for mortgage loans.

The steps taken are expected to lower interest rates and cut some cash down payments on houses costing more than $18,000.

The action was taken as the Commerce Department reported a 12 per cent increase of housing starts in January. The department said the end of the downward slide was partly brought about by starts that had been delayed by bad weather in December.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board took four steps to give the 1,800 federally-chartered savings and loans associations more money to lend to home buyers.

In a letter to President Kennedy dated Feb. 10 the board expressed its belief that its actions "will materially increase the availability of housing credit and tend to reduce the cost of such credit to the American public."

Kennedy asked the board in a Feb. 6 letter to cooperate in the administration's drive to "secure a level of mortgage interest rates which will stimulate the construction of housing units, thereby aiding in our overall recovery program" from the current business recession.

The four steps:

—Lifting from 12½ per cent of savings deposits to 15 per cent the amount a savings association can borrow from the 11 home loan banks "for mortgage expansion or seasonal needs." The board said "this will make available more than $1 billion in additional credit." These loans usually run for a year or less.

—Beginning a new program, similar to one launched in the 1958 recession, of making five-year loans to the associations.

—Lowering down payments on houses costing more than $18,000.

—Increasing from 3 per cent of savings to 5 per cent the amount federal associations may lend to buy and develop housing sites. The board estimated an additional $680 million would be freed for such loans.

The House, which returns at 4:30 p.m., will vote on a bill enabling school boards to sell school property to anyone.

This is in line with the administration's strategy to set up private, segregated schools — after a local election is held to determine whether the public system is abolished.

When asked what he thought about the new legislation, Jackson said Saturday, "I guess they're all right. I haven't seen the bills."

The Senate committee, in a lengthy Saturday session, also adopted Perez's amendments on HB3, which would enable cooperatives running the private schools to hire state school teachers.

Louisiana's minimum teacher salary schedule was included in the bill via the amendment.

Only other amendments adopted were tagged onto HB 11, which creates a new judgeship for Lafourche and Terrebonne parishes. Now the measure calls for a new judgeship in Livingston, Tangipahoa and St. Helena parishes also.

With the House gone home until today's session, the Senate committee, which included Sen. W. T. Carpenter of Bastrop, aired the bills, with a small group of citizens protesting.

Mrs. Mary Sands, a New Orleans resident participating in an organization called "Save Our Schools," objected to the local option bill, joined by Mrs. Franziska Heberle, Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Sands, who has appeared before, said, "We find this does not give us local option at all. What happens if New Orleans doesn't keep its schools open?"

She added, "This means we would have to vote to keep our schools open."

Carpenter disagreed, saying, "By voting, wouldn't that be giving the people a choice?"

Mrs. Heberle, a native of Germany but a resident of Louisiana for the past 24 years, said the present integration struggle in Louisiana reminded her of Germany before the Nazis took over.

"In Louisiana, we still have the liberties guaranteed in the Louisiana Constitution," she said. "No, this is not like Nazi Germany."

But she added, "However, certain conditions remind me in a desperate way of conditions prevailing in Germany immediately before the Nazi took over in 1933."

"You could see something as drastic as the dictatorship of a minority does not come overnight," she said, "and the Nazi had a greater skill of doing things peacemeal."

Mrs. Heberle said the German people became afraid to speak, explaining, "They thought it would harm them or their relatives, their employer would not like it, or it would endanger their business if they spoke up for what they knew was right."

She said this was happening in Louisiana.

DEBLIEUX APPEARS

Former-Sen. J. D. BeBlieux objected to a major portion of the legislation, especially two bribery measures that are dovetailed together.

The Legislature is passing two bills carrying a $500 to $1,000 fine, plus a year in jail, for persons convicted of bribing parents to send their children to integrated schools.

But, the fines would go to informers.

"This is encouraging a network of spies," warned James M. Wood, Baton Rouge.

"What would happen to people who wanted to send their children to integrated schools?" asked DeBlieux, explaining that he was a native of Caldwell Parish, and a segregationist.

With the committee stamping its approval on the Legislation, the Senate tonight will vote on this:

HB1 — Local option elections.

HB2 — Make it a crime to bribe parents.

HB3 — Authorize private educational cooperatives to make contracts with teachers for at least five but not more than 10 years.

HB4 — Define crime of intimidation or interference in operation of public schools and provide fines be paid to informers who give information resulting in conviction, giving informer immunity.

HB5 — Put employes of traffic court of New Orleans under civil service effective August 1, 1961.

HB6 — Increase the East Baton Rouge Parish School Board from seven to 11 members.

HB12 — Transfer $2.5 million from surplus welfare funds to the financing of private schools.

The judgeship measure was held in committee, perhaps heading for a slow death.

Most controversial bill of the Davis package has been the measure increasing the local school board. The Rev. Bob Taylor, a Baptist minister of Baton Rouge, appeared to object.

His objections were based on the separation of church and state.

hoses on the crowd if the demonstration got out of hand. Magistrates were ready at Bow Street court to deal with arrests.

It was one of the most orderly displays of disobedience ever seen in London. For three hours the demonstrators sat on the cold sidewalk — playing chess, reading, talking, drinking tea from vacuum flasks.

The demonstrators were well-wrapped against the February cold.

Russell eventually was allowed through the police line to fix a declaration to the door of the ministry. An official dissuaded him from using a nail and offered him a piece of tape. Russell accepted it and stuck up the protest. It was later taken inside the ministry.

Demonstrators also sent copies of the declaration to the American, Soviet, and French embassies.

It said: "Today we are taking positive action against the insane nuclear policies of our government. We demand the immediate scrapping of the agreement to base Polaris-carrying submarines in Britain."

Furs, Jewelry Found Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Shelley Berman's wife reported to police Saturday night the disappearance of about $12,000 in furs and jewelry from her New York apartment while she was visiting in Connecticut.

Sarah Berman said the missing possessions included a $7,500 mink coat, a $1,200 pearl choker and a six-strand pearl and diamond necklace valued at $3,000.

Berman is now touring the South and is not due back in New York until March 12. He appeared Saturday in Atlanta, Ga.

all six of its overseas flights from Miami.

Eastern Airlines said it had cancelled at least 50 flights from Miami, some because of bad weather in the northeastern states but most because of the strike.

National Airlines cancelled one flight because of the engineers walkout. Other flights were washed out by rain in the northeast.

Most of America's huge fleet of airliners had been grounded by the strike. An airline spokesman said almost the only four-engine flights operating were those returning engineers to their home bases.

Attorneys for American said union leaders had promised in writing not to strike or use economic coercion until the dispute between the airline and the engineers had been settled.

A union spokesman replied that there was no strike and that the engineers had been told to go back to work.

The other airlines affected were Trans World, Western and Northwest.

Ike Maintains Leisurely Pace

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)— Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower maintained a leisurely pace Saturday for their second weekend of a two-month desert vacation.

Both took time to get better acquainted with their Palm Springs-Palm Desert neighborhood. The former president had a ride on his afternoon agenda, after again deciding against a golf game. He has been bothered by a cold.

Mrs. Eisenhower went on another shopping tour Friday, stocking up at a nearby supermarket.

NEXT FISCAL YEAR

Defense Budget May Set Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—The defense budget, as revised by the Kennedy administration for the next fiscal year, may approach or exceed the peak spending in the Korean War.

The estimate for the year starting next July 1, as submitted to Congress by the Eisenhower administration, was $42.9 billion. Speculation is that additions to this may range up to $2 billion. Such a boost would top the $43.7 billion military budget in fiscal 1953, peak spending year of the Korean War.

At the Pentagon, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and his aides are working up a new study of strategy as directed by President Kennedy. Until that is completed—by the end of this month—and turned over to the President and his budget makers, no firm estimate of the revised military budget can be made.

However, some preliminary moves, made in response to Kennedy's request for accelerated action in defense programs, obviously will cost more money which presumably would appear in the revised fiscal 1962 bill.

First of these items is addition of 55 jet and propjet transport planes for troop and cargo airlift.

Responding to the President's request, the Pentagon—like other federal departments—is trying to eliminate spending for items or organizations that have become obsolete.

But the constantly mounting requirements of defense virtually assure that an increase in military spending is in prospect.

These requirements arise out of the unrelenting arms race with the Communist powers and swift strides made in weapon technology. The demands have confronted both Democratic and Republican administrations since World War II.

In the nearly 16 years since that global conflict — including three years of Korean War — the United States has spent more than half a trillion dollars on defense.

In fiscal 1946, expenditures were about $42 billion. They dropped to a postwar low of $11 billion in fiscal 1948, then zoomed to $43.7 in fiscal 1953.

By the middle of the 50's ballistic missiles and nuclear submarines were beginning to come into the picture. Deliveries in volume began in the past few years. Expanding research and test programs added to the totals. The spending estimate for the current year is something over $41.5 billion.

During the past week, McNamara issued orders designed to start into action the defense program acceleration requested by Kennedy.

McNamara told the armed services to carry out immediately plans for awarding some procurement and construction programs, thus moving them up by two to three months. Involved is about $650 million for procurement (including money for starting work on five more atomic submarines) and $40 million for construction.

This does not represent additional money, but the spending of money already budgeted—at an earlier date. However, such things as the new transport planes will need new funds, probably out of the revised budget.

Pilot's Wives Have Much In Common

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Doris White and Gracie Walker don't know each other very well, but they have a lot in common.

Overshadowing the lives of each of them is a black spectre. Unlike most spectres, this one has a name. It's called the X15.

The X15 is a shiny black skyrocket 50 feet long.

In the next few weeks Doris' scholarly husband, Bob, and later Gracie's extroverted Joe, are expected to climb inside this fire-belching monster and try to keep it under control while it carries them faster than man has ever flown.

Twenty-five hundred miles an hour, then 3,000, 3,500, 4,000—even faster if it looks like there's a chance of getting back alive.

To do this, Bob and Joe will have to go higher than man has ever gone—to the edge of space, where there's no air to drag at their plane.

One hundred fifty thousand feet, then 200,000, 250,000, even twice that high, 100 miles or more, but only if the chance of getting back alive still looks good.

Neither Bob nor Joe is reckless. Both are masters of their profession, which is testing experimental aircraft.

Doris and Gracie know this, and it gives them confidence to go on with their lives, which are about as unlike as lives can be.

Doris, 34, is a city girl—she and Bob were married 12 years ago while he was studying at New York University.

Small and slender, she looks good in Capris. Her short brown hair is fashionably streaked with blonde. Her new home, a four-bedroom stucco they moved into a year ago after Bob made major is furnished in 18th century mahogany.

Doris has a mind of her own. So does Gracie. Forbidden by her husband to come to the base to watch his flights in the X15, she stands in the yard of their home 35 miles away and watches the contrail as he streaks across the sky.

"Back when Joe was making his first flights in the X15 we were just building a new addition on our house," she recalls.

"There weren't any shingles on that part of the roof then, and I used to climb up the ladder and watch from there."

With her, if they were not in school, were Tommy, 10, and Jimmy, 8, but not baby Joe, now 18 months. He was left below in his crib.

Oil Companies Public Affair Policy Pushed

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Efforts by several major oil companies to encourage employes to take part in politics and public affairs did not end with the presidential election.

Programs adopted prior to the general election are receiving renewed emphasis.

Employes are being advised to study issues, write letters to congressmen, and check closely the performance and voting records of elected officials.

The number of companies adopting such programs is growing. Late additions include Humble Oil & Refining Co., the huge domestic affiliate of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

NEW POLICY

Two days after the Nov. 8 general election, Humble directors adopted a policy designed to encourage participation in local, state, and national political affairs.

Humble employes were advised of the action by circular letter but there was no public announcement. Details were published this week in a new edition of an employe magazine, The Humble Way.

"The company will not discriminate against any employe because of his identification with any lawful political party or activity," the Humble policy reads.

Special leaves of absence without pay were authorized for employes elected or appointed to a public office which would be time consuming or created a conflict of interest.

Phillips Petroleum Co. and Gulf Oil Corp. are among those continuing programs announced as early as 1958.

Gulf was among the first to encourage its employes to participate in politics, even to the extent of running for public office.

COMMUNITY AFFAIR

"Our program is continuing at the same pace as before the election," a Gulf spokesman said this week. "We feel it is gradually accelerating, particularly in so far as our employes being interested in all types of community enterprise, whether it be P-TA, school boards, or politics."

Phillips' public affairs division is preparing a special packet for distribution to interested employes. The packet will include the names and addresses of all members of Congress, their committee assignments, information on how to write to legislators, and "other material basic to a better understanding on the affairs and processes of government."

K. S. Adams, Phillips board chairman, said the packets were designed to assist in the carrying out of duties of citizenship.

"I urge you to know the issues and discharge these very important duties," Adams said in a monthly interview published in the February edition of Philnews, an employe publication.

POLITICAL RESPONSIBILTY

"Now that the elected officials have taken office, it is just as important that we know all we can about the problems they are dealing with and the actions they take," he said. "This is vital, because with a new national administration and new faces in the Congress and in state government, many changes will be proposed."

Adams said the close margin which decided the 1960 presidential election did not give the new administration "any clear direction on the course it should take, except perhaps to be cautious in making decisions."

"The present situation presents one of your finest chances to help give your elected representatives the guidance from home they depend upon to carry out their duties fairly and in the best public interest," he said.

Kennedy Offers Brazil Big Loan

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — President Kennedy was reported here Saturday to have offered a $100-million loan to help President Janio Quadros get Brazil out of a serious dollar shortage.

The report came in the afternoon newspaper O Globo in a dispatch from Washington.

"It is confirmed that the North American government has offered Brazil, through Ambassador John Moors Cabot, immediate aid of $100 million to attend to the exchange needs of the country, while conclusions to a study over the real Brazilian situation are awaited," the dispatch said.

A U.S. Embassy official called the O Globo story premature and said he knew nothing of any offer made by Cabot in Brasilia Friday.

Labor Hails JFK Policy Study Group

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Organized labor leaders Saturday hailed President Kennedy's new top-level, labor-management committee as a long-needed opportunity to work out solutions to some of the nation's most pressing problems.

AFL-CIO chiefs here for winter union meetings gave assurances that they won't team up with the advisory group's public members to ram home policies over industry objections.

Instead, they said that in order for policies to be implemented they must have common consent.

The union leaders named to Kennedy's 21-member group said they viewed their role not as partisan representatives of organized labor but as part of a citizens team of men with special knowledges genuinely trying to map out national guidelines.

The President appointed the group Thursday, naming seven top representatives each of the public, labor and industry. Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg and Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges are two of the public members. Goldberg is the first chairman and will alternate with the commerce secretary.

Kennedy gave the group the mission of recommending means to promote peaceful labor-management relations, sound wage and price policies, a higher standard of living, increased productivity and broader foreign markets for America's goods.

The group was also assigned the task of studying the benefits and problems created by automation and other technological advances.

Davis Seeks To Buy TV Time In Vain

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Television stations elsewhere in the nation are reluctant to sell Gov. Jimmie H. Davis time to tell Louisiana's segregation stand in his own words, his public relations officer said Saturday.

Ed Reed, the governor's spokesman, said he could understand some of the problems involved.

"But the conclusion we draw from this," he added, "is that Louisiana faces an uphill struggle in efforts to tell its story in depth."

Southern stations were involved, also.

Reed told of difficulties since December in trying to arrange a 15-minute program featuring a speech made by Davis to Louisiana Dec. 9.

During five straight special sessions Davis has called to cope with the Nov. integration of two white schools in New Orleans, the governor has been subjected to critical fire from some TV stations and many newspapers in this state, especially when he tried a tax raise in the name of segregation.

But when Davis appealed to Louisiana TV and radio stations to grant him free time, the time was provided. Newspapers have carried his speeches extensively.

The legislature later urged Davis to tell the nation in his own words that what they both felt.

The state sovereignty commission provided the financial support, and Reed telephoned and sent telegrams to 21 TV stations in major cities elsewhere to buy time for the same speech.

So far, Reed said, only a St. Louis TV station has accepted the video tape of Gov. Davis' talk. It was televised last Monday night.

His original request to purchase a 15-minute space, during the peak TV hours 6-11 p.m. were forwarded to Washington, New York, St. Louis, Chicago, Los Angeles, Atlanta and Birmingham.

"In justice to all the TV stations," Reed said, "a 15-minute program during peak hours is extremely difficult to schedule we know that." He said six stations asked to review the tapes.

The governor wanted his Dec. 9 speech, on video tape, televised elsewhere to prove Louisiana for years — as a matter of public record — has been "very progressive in elevating the Negro level of living," Reed said. "This was the information we wanted to get across."

Most TV stations, Reed continued, indicated they felt the normal news media covered the Louisiana story "and therefore they didn't want to inject themselves individually into the question."

Reed said he told Gov. Davis "it is obvious many of the stations that have advised us there was not time available would prefer not to run the speech."

Three Officers Hurt In Clash With Negroes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Three policemen were injured and 11 Negroes arrested in a clash between a crowd of about 300 Negroes and 15 police officers early Saturday.

The rock and bottle throwing crowd gathered after the arrest of a Negro identified as Clethurs Smith Jr., who was charged with disorderly conduct in a night club.

In a scuffle with Smith, Officer James King was pushed through a glass door. Patrolman W. G. Gore was treated for a wrenched shoulder and bruises and H. L. Crawford suffered an apparent knife wound in his right forearm.

Smith escaped in the confusion but turned himself in at police headquarters later. He said handcuffs placed on him by officers were causing him pain.

Ten of the arrested Negroes were found guilty in municipal court and given fines and jail terms. Charges against the eleventh were dropped. The charges ranged from disorderly conduct and drunkenness to using abusive language and obstructing an officer.

Smith received a jail sentence of 30 days and a fine of $30.

JOBLESS PAY RISES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of workers drawing unemployment benefits rose by 64,900 during the week ending Feb. 4 to a record high of 8,358,400, the Labor Department reported Friday.

This was about 27,000 above the previous record high set during the week ending April 12, 1958.

NO MISSISSIPPIANS

40 Southerners Get U.S. Posts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has picked nearly 40 Southerners for posts in the new administration but not one from Mississippi.

Mississippi chose an independent course in the elections, rejecting both Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon, and now the President has apparently turned his back on the state's office seekers.

Kennedy did tentatively offer former Mississippi Gov. J. P. Coleman the post of secretary of the Army but the appointment never went through.

Otherwise a rundown of the Southerners in the new administration indicates that Kennedy did not pay much attention to whether a state gave its electoral votes to him or Nixon.

North Carolina, which went Democratic, has 10 members on the Kennedy team. Tennessee, which for three successive presidential elections went Republican, has placed 8.

The other Southern states have representation in this manner:

North Carolina and Georgia can boast cabinet officers although North Carolina has a more legitimate claim.

The Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges is a former North Carolina governor and a native of Leaksville. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, although born in Cherokee County, Ga., has not spent any of his adult life there.

Most of the southern states have received at least one major appointment.

Alabama placed John E. Horne Clio as head of the Small Business Administration. Louisiana has got Frank Ellis of New Orleans as director of the Office of Civilian defense Mobilization. South Carolina sent H. W. Brawley of Chester as deputy postmaster general. Virginia has Mortimer Caplin of Charlottesville as internal revenue service director. Florida placed Allan Boyd as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. And Tennessee has Paul Rand Dixon as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and Joseph C. Swidler, Nashville, as chairman of the Federal Power Commission.

Rank-for-rank, Virginia's three rate at the head of the southern list. In addition to Caplin, Kennedy picked Henry H. Fowler, Roanoke, undersecretary of the Treasury and Murray Williams of Richmond ambassador to San Salvador.

Other major appointements: In North Carolina, Edward R. Murrow, Guilford County, director of USIA: Charles S. Murphy, Wallace undersecretary of agriculture; and Everett MacIntyre, of Alamance County, Federal Trade Commission; James E. Webb, Granville County, head of NASA.

Tennessee: Aubrey J. Wagner, Knoxville, Tennessee Valley Authority director; Thomas D. Morris, Knoxville, assistant secretary of defense; James T. Ralph, Goodlettsville, assistant secretary of agriculture for stabilization.

Georgia: John P. Duncan Jr., Quitman, assistant secretary of agriculture for marketing and foreign affairs; Boisfeuillet Jones, Atlanta, special assistant secretary for health, education and welfare.

Invasion Force Lands In Cuba

HAVANA (UPI)—Reliable but unconfirmed reports from Oriente Province Saturday night said a band of anti-Castro rebels made a landing near La Plata on Cuba's southern coast, east of the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo, last Wednesday night.

The rebel force was described as numbering "around 50" men. Sources in close contact with anti-government groups in that extreme eastern Province said the invaders succeeded in reaching Los Parallones foothills and have headed into the approaches of the Sierra Cristal Mountains.

They were said to be attempting to link up with various rebel groups—totaling several hundred men—operating in the area between Guantanamo and Baracoa.

La Plata, a tiny coastal village, is about 30 miles east of Guantanamo. There were no further details of the invasion.

But informants suggested it was made in several small boats.

Reports also circulated that a landing of guns and military supplies was made this week near the town of Imias, also on the Southern Oriente coast and about 40 miles further east.

However, there was no substantiation of these reports. Rumors that another anti-Castro landing force had come ashore this week in the area of Baracoa on the extreme eastern tip of Cuba also lacked any authoritative support among rebel contacts here.

The landing at La Plata, if corroborated, would be the first large-scale expeditionary force to reach Cuba since last October's ill-fated 27-man group which was quickly captured. Eight of the 27 men in the group including three Americans were subsequently executed by firing squads for their roles in the invasion near Baracoa.

Convict Claims State Holding Him Illegally

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A Louisiana convict wanted in Arkansas has filed a federal habeas corpus lawsuit claiming he is illegally held.

Joseph Michaels filed the plea in U.S. District court here Friday.

In his lawsuit, he said he was paroled Sept. 12 from the state penitentiary at Angola and taken to Memphis, Tenn., to face a federal charge.

After acquittal there, he said, he was brought back to Angola.

The prisoner said he was being held illegally because he refused to waive extradition to Arkansas. He claimed the state board of paroles here attempted to parole him to the Arkansas detainer, which he charged was illegal.

The sheriff of Logan County, Ark., Michaels said, has failed to reply to several communications sent to him about the matter.

In Logan County prosecutor J. H. Evans said he is preparing extradition papers to have Michaels returned. He is charged with writing a bad check to a Paris, Ark., store to pay for a suit in December of 1959.

Louisiana prison officials said Michaels is serving an 18-month sentence in Angola for a theft in Red River Parish.

Group Backs Proposal On Fair Funds

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) —The Louisiana Association of Fairs and Festivals Saturday lent its support to a proposal for the Legislature to restore appropriations to the parish, district and state fairs.

The money was cut off in 1956 during the Earl Long administration.

The association opened its annual convention here with representatives present from most of the fair associations in the state.

The proposal to ask the May Legislature to restore the aid was submitted by Dave Pearce, Louisiana commissioner of agriculture.

The association plans to ask for an annual appropriation of $250,000 which is about the same amount appropriated prior to 1956.

Pearce said the fairs have suffered for lack of interest since the incentives to compete had been removed. The funds were used almost exclusively to award premiums to winners.

The funds had been contributed at the rate of $2,000 to each of the parish fairs. The remainder was divided between the state and district associations.

Pearce explained the fairs have depended too much on concessions to provide funds for premiums. He said he had nothing against concession but state funds would be better for encouraging farmers to do better.

Premiums would offer a challenge for agriculture to meet higher standards. Since 1956, the Louisiana State Fair at Shreveport had gotten some funds from the state board of liquidation and the Baton Rouge fair has been helped through the New Orleans race track taxes.

Whatever money was available had to be raised by the fairs individually. Pearce asked the fair association to set up a standard before they would be eligible for the aid.

Federal Judge Orders Strikers To Show Cause

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson issued a show-cause order Saturday calling upon flight engineers of American Airlines to explain why they shouldn't call a halt to wildcat strike tactics.

The action was announced at the conclusion of a two and half hour hearing in U. S. District Court on a temporary injunction sought by American Airlines to prevent the Flight Engineers International Union from staging further wildcat walkouts.

Davidson recessed the hearing on American's injunction request until 2 p. m. Monday, when he said the AFL-CIO flight engineers association would be called upon to answer the show-cause order. The hearing on the temporary injunction request will resume at that time.

The federal judge granted a recess after Charles' J. Morris, a Dallas attorney representing the flight engineers, said he was given only a 20-minute notice of the unusual Saturday afternoon hearing and was unable to collect witnesses.

Attorneys for American contended that union leaders had promised in writing not to strike or use economic coercion until the dispute between the airline and the engineers was settled.

Morris argued there was no strike, and said a union leader for Dallas flight engineers had urged his men to make their schedules.

Goldberg Fails In Appeals For End Of Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg has sought to have striking flight engineers end their walkout against six major airlines but the appeal has been fruitless so far, it was learned Saturday night.

Goldberg, who was in New York City Saturday for a speech, made a request to Ron Brown, president of the Flight Engineers International Association, to see if the engineers would go back to work, a union spokesman said.

Brown subsequently contacted FEIA chapter chairmen and reported back to Goldberg, the union official said, that the local chairmen said they could not get the men to go back to work "without some kind of federal action."

ROBERT ELKINS, above, will oppose Mayor A. P. (Fats) Carter in the Bastrop race for mayor in the April 8 elections. It is the first time Elkins has entered the political arena as a candidate.

Voters Near Registering Deadline

BASTROP (Special) — Mrs. Margaret Larche, Morehouse parish registrar of voters, said this week that 2293 parish residents have registered to vote, and reminded that March 8 is registration deadline for voters in the April 8 Bastrop election.

Of the total,about 1841 are eligible to vote in the Bastrop city election April 8.

Mrs. Larche reminded parish residents that they must re-register every four years and that this re-registration began Jan. 3 this year.

City voters will decide on April 8 on a mayor, and city aldermen.

Seventeen qualified as candidates for aldermen, but three have withdrawn. They are John S. Bond, Arlie Williamson and John Tully.

Still in the alderman race are incumbents Dr. Jack Rawls, Jimmy Holt and William Blacet. Two current aldermen, Mrs. Floyd Hannah, and John Croft, are not seeking re-election.

Other aldermen candidates are William Del Rio, G. F. Dickerson, Sr., A. C. Doss, Harry Fox, C. L. Ginn, Loren A. Martin, L. L. McMillan, Horace E. Brantley, Imar Perry, D. L. Fargala and L. Wilmer Cox.

Memorial Held On Campus For Crash Victims

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A special memorial was held on the Colorado College campus Saturday for eight Colorado Springs residents who perished in the crash of a Belgian airliner last Wednesday.

About 200 friends and relatives of the victims sat silent in Shove Chapel as the Rev. Michael Harrington of Pauline Catholic Chapel officiated at the united services. The college chorus and a squadron of Air Force Academy cadets also attended.

Among the 73 who died in the jet airliner crash were skating coach Edi Scholdan, his son, Jimmy, 12, and six youngsters who were members of the U. S. figure skating team.

"Colorado Springs will not easily recover from the grievous loss it has sustained," said Father Harrington.

"May we at this time hope that God in some mysterious way will bring us out of evil and perhaps make this awful tragedy the source of the means of blessing to us all."

Losses High As Twisters Hit Towns

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Oklahomans surveyed the wreckage of the year's first tornadoes Saturday. The damage was fairly heavy but there was no loss of life.

Residents of storm - battered areas credited early warnings with saving lives and keeping the injury toll to 14.

Two areas were hit. One was just east of Oklahoma City. The other was a line in south-central Oklahoma running northeastward from Stratford to Konawa to Wewoka. Hardest hit was Konawa.

City Manager Granville Shed estimated property damage might reach $2.5 million Konawa. Only a small amount of power had been restored and city officials said it probably would be Sunday before water supply is back in operation. Water in bottles and cartons was being handed out and there was enough on hand, they said.

The main street was cleared of debris by midday and through traffic on Oklahoma Highway 99 was resumed. But more than 85 per cent of the downtown businesses were destroyed or damaged in the town of 2,500.

In all, five persons were injured. But it could have been worse. Learning that a storm was approaching, fireman Earl Gassaway blew a warning siren for 15 minutes before the twister hit about 7 p.m.

DESPITE INSURGENTS

Castro Keeps Firm Control Over Cuba

Editor's Note—What are the prospects for the insurgents now operating against Fidel Castro in the mountainous Cuban back country? Harold K. Milks, Associated Press bureau chief in Havana, considers the question and presents some answers in the following dispatch.

By HAROLD K, MILKS

HAVANA (AP)—Insurgent opposition reported breaking out all over Cuba like a bad case of measles may be troublesome to Fidel Castro. But there is no indication here it has shaken his firm control of the island's six million people.

The prime minister holds an overwhelming superiority in arms and manpower over relatively small bands of insurgents now operating in scattered areas.

He has pitted an estimated 50,000 men, mostly militiamen, against rebels in the Escambray Mountains of Las Villas Province.

An undated letter reported received here by a relative of an Escambray rebel described the insurgent situation as desperate, telling how the rebel and a few comrades were cut off by government troops and feared liquidation unless they could link up with the main rebel force.

But a trained military observer who visited the area said all is not well with Castro's militiamen, either.

He said vast confusion reigns among the government fighters and that some have been forced to forage for food. And in Havana Saturday, three sources reported seeing truckloads of government militiamen, apparently under arrest, being taken from the Havana railroad station. Some of the citizen-soldiers were quoted as shouting they were detained "because we refuse to fight our brothers," apparently meaning the Escambray insurgents.

Reports from Santiago said 200 to 300 persons have been seized in the past few days in the Santiago - Guantanamo area in a roundup of suspected anti-Castro elements. Among those seized, according to the reports, were 15 members of Castro's police and army units at Guantanamo City.

Against Castro's military power — strongest ever seen in Cuba—insurgent forces can pit only a few hundred trained and well-equipped men, most of them now encircled in the Escambrays.

The rebels' strongest weapons appear to be stouthearted determination and the hope of substantial support from outside Cuba.

But there are indications Castro may soon claim — as he did nearly three months ago — that his militiamen has liquidated the hit-and-run opposition in southern Las Villas Province.

Military experts here say Castro would have every possible advantage in an open struggle with those who oppose him — short supply lines, millions of dollars worth of Communist-supplied automatic weapons and munitions and a reservoir of at least a half-million men — a huge asset even though most are relatively untrained.

In addition, Castro almost completely dominates every phase of life of Cubans who might want to aid the insurgents.

The government controls almost all employment — and has demonstrated repeatedly that even talking against the regime is likely to result in sudden unemployment. Castro also controls all housing and any counterrevolutionary certainly will have trouble finding a place to live.

Through the nationalization of all banks, the government has made it difficult for the opposition to raise money. And, finally, the government is threatening "nationalization" of all the private schools as a means of curbing what it calls anti-Castro activities.

A decision by the Dutch West Indies government appears to have cut off the last hopes for those who want to flee Cuba and live elsewhere. The government ruled all Cubans henceforth will have to apply by mail for "police landing cards" before they can go to Curacao or Aruba, previously the first stop of many Cubans seeking visas for the United States or other nations.

Student Mobs Attack Belgian, U.S. Property

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Student mobs attacked Belgian and U.S. property in Asia and Africa Saturday in continuing violent protests over the slaying of Congo ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Two screaming crowds of Indonesian youths, each about 1,000 strong, forced their way into the Belgian legation and the residences of the U.S. and Belgian ambassadors in Jakarta. They smashed windows, kicked in doors and wrecked furniture.

American Ambassador Howard P. Jones was away at the time. Belgian envoy L. A. Van den Berge received advance word of the attack and fled to the home of a neighbor. He charged the rioters were "mainly Communist-inspired."

About 25 youths and police were injured in Bombay, India, when pro-Lumumba demonstrators attacked police barring their way to the Belgian consulate.

Police prevented a crowd of about 12,000 Egyptian students from setting fire to the Belgian consulate in Alexandria. The youths broke nearly every consulate window before being dispersed.

Record Set For Tech Enrolment

RUSTON (Special) — With 3,406 students enrolled to establish a new high mark for spring semesters at Louisiana Tech, the present number is almost double that of the corresponding term 10 years ago.

The enrollment at Tech this semester is almost 96 per cent over the 1,740 registered at the college in the spring of 1951, according to figures reported by the registrar's office.

The present total includes 2,305 men students and 1,101 women students, the offices of the dean of men and dean of woman announced.

Of the men students enrolled, 104 are attending under the G.I. bill.

This spring, 186 students are pursuing work towards masters' degrees, according to figures released by the office of Dr. J. B. Wilson, who is chairman of the graduate program.

The present number is 216 above the 3,190 enrolled in the spring semester at Tech last year.

Spring semester enrollments, as well as registrations for fall terms, have increased annually at Tech for several years.

Noteworthy also has been the record of annual cumulative enrollments at Tech, which include the registrations of individuals in the summer, fall and spring terms, without counting any duplicates. The cumulative total has increased from 3,225 five years ago to 4,488 for the school year of 1960-61.

IS YOUR THINKING OUT OF DATE?

The Model A and older cars once were "the most" — but they've been discarded for years.

"REA" once was the "handle" for all efforts to get electric power into rural homes and farms—today "REA" is a commonly MISUSED term.

Why? Because the "REA"—Rural Electrification Administration — is a Federal government agency with only ONE PURPOSE: to LOAN money, at interest, to ANY private business or local organization qualified to build rural electric lines and maintain adequate service to rural folks . . . REA doesn't own a single foot of electric lines anywhere.

Alumni Group Is Organized At Tallulah

Northeast Louisiana State College's continual growth was evidenced again Tuesday with the organization of a new chapter in Tallulah.

Seventeen Northeast graduates from the Tallulah area elected officers and planned future meetings with the aid of a delegation of six Northeast representatives from Monroe.

Officers for the new chapter are Doyle Cantebury, '50, president; Herbert B. Halbach, '53, vice president; Charles Porter, '57, secretary - treasurer; and Ted J. Ivey, '58, publicity director. All are from Tallulah.

Roland Carter, Monroe, president of the Northeast Alumni Association presided during the meeting and introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Clint Hanna, dean of instruction at Northeast.

In his talk, Dr. Hanna stressed the importance of organizing new alumni chapters which are essential to the growth of the college. In comparing expansion of the college to the progress of alumni in their professions, he said that the two must still depend upon each other because an intellectual band binds them together.

Attending the meeting from Northeast State College were Mrs. Dell Lassiter, executive secretary of the association and her husband; Mr. and Mrs. Roland Carter; Oscar Banks, instructor in journalism and news bureau associate; Dr. Hanna, Marcus Mapp, chairman, department of geology; Marshall B. McDonald, chairman of the Monroe unit organization and Mrs. McDonald.

During the meeting a series of color slides depicting Northeast campus scenes were shown to the group. This was accompanied by explanatory remarks made by Marcus Mapp.

'Burglar-Proof' Auto Is Robbed

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)-Jeweler James Day, who often carried gems in his auto, fitted two locks to every door of the car, three to the trunk and two chains to each door window.

Friday while Day was visiting friends his parked burglar-proof car was burgled of $19,600 worth of jewelry.

U.N. Protecting Congo Minister From His Rivals

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The interior minister in the Stanleyville regime that succeeded slain Patrice Lumumba has been taken under U.N. protection to prevent his arrest by power-grabbing rivals, the United Nations reported Saturday.

Frantic maneuvering among Lumumba's lieutenants for his political mantle continue with the issuing of warrants for arrest and counterarrest.

Christopher R. Gbenye, interior minister in Lumumba's short-lived government last year and holder of the same post in the Stanleyville regime, was taken under U.N. guard Friday, along with his wife and secretary of chaotic Kivu Province.

Kashamura himself had just escaped arrest. Loyal soldiers freed him while he was on the way to Stanleyville under guard, the United Nations said.

The confused picture that emerged from United Nations and diplomatic reports showed the Stanleyville high command in chaos now that Lumumba's unifying influence is gone.

A U.N. spokesman said Communist-backed Antoine Gizenga still seems to be exercising top authority in Stanleyville and surrounding Oriental Province. But Kashamura, now in the Kivu capital of Bukavu, remains an unknown factor.

Castro Rushes To Battle Front

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro has rushed to central Cuba, where a band of insurgents in the Escambray Mountains are inflicting heavy casualties on his inexperienced militia, a high army source said Saturday.

The source said Castro left Friday night for Santa Clara with his field commanders after Maj. Dermidio Escalona reported he was "gravely concerned" because his militiamen were suffering between 20 and 30 casualties daily in guerrilla fighting.

Name Speaker At March 17 PAR Meet

BATON ROUGE ((Special) — James D. Zellerbach, chairman of the board of Crown Zellerbach Corporation and former U. S. Ambassador to Italy, will be the featured speaker for the Annual Meeting and Conference on Louisiana Government sponsored by the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) on March 17.

Theme of this year's conference is "Louisiana's Economic and Governmental Balance Sheet." Featured during the day will be outstanding specialists in business and government. Major discussions will center on "What makes a good climate for economic growth?" and "How does Louisiana measure up?" Panel discussions start at 9:30 a.m.

The PAR Annual Meeting will be on the evening of March 17 when Mr. Zellerbach will be the speaker.

The public is invited to all sessions. They will be held at the Capitol House in Baton Rouge.

In making the announcement that Mr. Zellerbach will be the guest speaker, Charles Keller Jr., President of PAR, said that "it is an honor and privilege to have so distinguished a leader in both business and government speak to us."

"Mr. Zellerbach," he continued, "is internationally known for his valuable service in the diplomatic field as well as for his outstanding business leadership."

During much of the past 15 years, Mr. Zellerbach has devoted his time to governmental service. Besides serving as ambassador to Italy, by appointment of President Eisenhower in 1957, he served as administrator of the Marshall Plan in Italy, as an alternate delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, and as director of many organizations concerned with international affairs.

In the United States, Mr. Zellerbach has won recognition in the business world through the advancement of his company to the position of second largest paper company in the world, for his service as chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, for service for six years on the National Manpower Council, and his work as director of many large companies. The National Sales Executives named him as "Business Statesman of the year" in 1956.

Allen Hero Of The Southern Cause

By EZRA ADAMS
State Editor

The warm August sun climbed in the sky, guns and cannons roared, swords sank into human flesh, and dying men lay scattered and in piles on the Baton Rouge battleground.

It was August 5, 1862. And the tattered sons of a haggard South were desperately trying, after an in-the-night silent military penetration, to re-take the "Red Stick" city from the Federals.

They failed in this, the third battle at Baton Rouge. Many valiant men, though sick and tired, fought until death or until they were at least put out of action.

SURVIVOR

One of these who survived, Col. Henry Watkins Allen, got both legs shattered by canister fire as he commanded the Fourth Louisiana Regiment. But he lived on to become what has been called by the Dictionary of American Biography, "the single great administrator produced by the Confederacy."

Some may argue this point about a hero of the southern cause who was once a farmer in Tensas Parish.

But today, 100 years after the start of the four - year North - South Conflict, there is a determined effort being made to return the name of Henry Watkins Allen to at least a semblance of the public honor it once enjoyed in Louisiana.

Persons and organizations doing something about this include the United Daughters of the Confederacy, U. B. Evans of Haphazard Plantation near Ferriday, and two history department professors at the University of South Louisiana, Lafayette.

Evans has searched for a number of years and enlisted the aid of others like Miss Marie Louise Giraud, former Tensas Parish Librarian, Library of Congress, and other records custodians.

MANY DOCUMENTS

He says, "When Dr. Amos E. Simpson, of USL, expressed a willingness to undertake a study of the records I turned all source material over to him."

There are more than 3,000 documents of the period now on microfilm, thanks to Evans.

Dr. Simpson and Dr. Vincent Cassidy, also of USL, have been compiling the information into book form.

The Tensas farmer carved for himself an illustrious and envious reputation, which was ended [illegible] self exile in Mexico following the War Between the States. He died at 11 a.m. April 22, 1866, in Mexico City and in poverty, but not completely forgotten by Louisianans who appreciated his military efforts and later his intelligent conduct in office as Louisiana's war governor.

Born of Scotch blood in Virginia on April 29, 1820, Allen had the background to be a financier, and an executive. At 17, he ran away from home to become a school teacher in Grand Gulf, Miss.

When in 1842 Sam Houston called for volunteers to help the Texans, Allen joined his forces. On returning to Grand Gulf, he met and later married Salome Crane, against her parents' wishes, in an elopement. Parental forgiveness finally came, however, and Henry lived happily for years until his wife died.

Then he came to Louisiana, where he settled in Tensas Parish. In 1853 he was elected to the state Legislature.

In 1854 he went to Harvard to study law and later sailed to Italy to join the fighting forces of Garibaldi, but was too late for action. After seeing the Continent, he wrote a book of his travels in 1861, "The Travels of A Sugar Planter."

Back home again, Henry reentered public life. While away, he had been re-elected to the Legislature, and now he gained a still wider popularity over the state and seemed destined for a great political career. He gained ownership of a large plantation (Allendale) with a stately mansion in West Baton Rouge Parish.

But the opening of the War changed all that — and his life. Enlisting as a private, he was quickly elected lieutenant colonel of the Fourth Louisiana Regiment. His first military action was as commander of part of the regiment in an encounter on Ship Island off the Mississippi coast, where he suppressed the incident and drilled his troops to a high degree of efficiency.

Commemorated On Tablet At Baton Rouge School

FULL COLONEL

He became full colonel of the regiment in March, 1862, and with the regiment was ordered to join General Beauregard in Tennessee. Leading his regiment on April 6, 1862, at Shiloh, he was wounded in the face but refused to leave the field.

Later that year he distinguished himself in the defense of Vicksburg and still later, in August, led the Louisiana troops in the bloody fiasco at Baton Rouge, Confederately commanded by General Breckenridge.

Here he distinguished himself with gallantry but was brought down in an open field near where Dufrocq (19th Street) Elementary school now stands. At the time he was not far from the thick of battle, being waged fiercely among the trees and tombs of Magnolia cemetery.

He refused to have even the worst shattered leg amputated and was out of action, on his Allendale Plantation, for several months.

Col. Allen was still virtually incapacitated for field duty in September, 1863, when he was appointed brigadier general and ordered to headquarters, Trans-Mississippi Department of the Confederate Army, located at Shreveport.

Gen. Allen hardly got into town before he was elected governor, almost by acclamation, by what was left of the Louisiana voters. By this time, the war had pushed the state government to Shreveport.

Gov. Allen confronted the chaotic conditions while he still suffered greatly from the wounded legs, having to travel and tour the area mostly in an ambulance.

But following his inauguration on Jan. 25, 1864, he immediately started action to alleviate the suffering of as many Louisiana citizens as he could.

In a desperate attempt to save what appeared to be a hopeless situation, Gov. Allen gathered sugar and cotton for export to Mexico in exchange for badly needed commodities such as dry goods, woolen and cotton cards, machinery and other items. He established a system of state stores, factories and foundries, and a dispensary at Shreveport where medicine was sold inexpensively.

Gov. Allen personally manufactured some items.

Turpentine was manufactured in Sabine parish, cloth in Claiborne parish, wool and cotton cards at Minden, and there was a laboratory at Mount Lebanon for manufacturing medicine.

CONFEDERATE MONEY

Texas iron ore found its way into Louisiana-made iron articles. Confederate money, although almost worthless elsewhere, had value west of the Mississippi and Louisiana money was accepted at state stores.

From Mexico came quantities of newsprint, ordnance and military supplies. Food and clothing were distributed to the suffering, while the state actually advertised for the names of disabled Louisiana soldiers in need.

Distillation of alcoholic beverages was stopped and only the state distillery was allowed to process grain into alcohol, for medicinal purposes.

While Gov. Allen was busy bringing order out of chaos, the war dragged on toward a climax. The Trans - Mississippi military commander, Gen. E. Kirby Smith, reported his troops were physically in good condition. The entire area was in better shape in 1865 than it had been previously.

So when the Unionists first summoned Smith to surrender in the spring of 1865, he prepared a message of defiance in answer. Gen. Smith was persuaded by Gov. Allen to hold the message and wait. Gen. Robert E. Lee had surrendered at Appomatox on April 9; it was now June and Smith was the last Confederate general left to surrender.

His surrender was effected at Shreveport on June 11, 1865, and credit is given Gov. Allen for his stand for peace that saved the state from further devastation.

Immediately after Lee's surrender, Gov. Allen held a conference in Marshall, Tex., with the governors of Arkansas, Texas and Missouri. His sincerity in wanting them all to surrender was so genuine that the three governors gave him what amounted to the power of attorney to act for them in ending the war.

Gov. Allen's prominence and popularity as a Confederate military commander and as governor, set him apart as a man to face punishment when the war ended. He did not want to repudiate the Confederate states, nor go to prison as did Thomas Jefferson and his good military friend and then governor of Mississippi, Charles Clark.

So on June 2, 1865 — almost a month after Lee's surrender — he issued a farewell address to the people and left for Mexico, where he was well received.

Almost penniless, he had to borrow a few hundred dollars from a friend to get to Mexico. And he still had not recovered from the wounded legs.

His popularity remained so great in Louisiana that he was proposed for governor again in October, 1865. He was not eligible, though, and was in exile.

Lonely and broken - hearted, he established an English newspaper in Mexico City. The newspaper showed signs of becoming permanent, but Allen's health gave way rapidly and he died there on April 22, 1866. He was buried in his gray uniform of the Confederacy.

On May 18, following his death, people of New Orleans wrote Mexican authorities requesting removal of Allen's body to Louisiana. It has since been buried at least three times in New Orleans and once in Baton Rouge, where it is now beneath a monument to him on the Old State Capitol grounds, at the end of Lafayette St.

There are Allen monuments, too, in the new Capitol, on the 19th Street Elementary School grounds, on the courthouse grounds at Shreveport, in the West Baton Rouge courthouse, and on Highway 190 in West Baton Rouge parish, Port Allen was named for him, as was Allen Parish and the Henry Watkins Allen chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, in Baton Rouge.

Jefferson Davis Inaugurated On Eve Of Struggles

By JOHN T. HAMNER
Managing Editor
The Alabama Journal
(Written for The Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—It was moments before noon, a hundred years ago Saturday when the man came out of the Exchange Hotel here to go up the hill and meet the hour.

The shouts that greeted Jefferson Davis as he entered his carriage to go to his inauguration as first president of the Confederate States of America set off a chain of noisy celebration that carried over into the early hours of the next day. Bands played, fireworks and cannon sounded, people shouted, crowds rushed about for a glimpse of the man who was to lead a new nation.

SAW DARKNESS

Davis himself was one of the very few in Montgomery that day who grasped the seriousness of the struggle that lay ahead. In his inaugural address he pointed at some of the clouds on the Confederate horizon. But all other recorded statements were confident, exhuberant.

The thousands who crowded Market Street and the Capitol Grounds were a testimony to the personal popularity of the Mississippian, hero of the Mexican War and former U. S. congressman, senator and secretary of war.

Davis had been elected provisional president of the Confederacy by Congress on Feb. 9. His long-way-around trip from his plantation home near Vicksburg ended late Saturday night, Feb. 16. Inauguration date had been selected only the day he arrived.

But despite the late announcement, a crowd generally estimated at 10,000, including a large press corps, was on hand.

It was a warm, sunny day. Men were dressed in top hats or their elaborate militia uniforms. Women were in their finest, and many had fancy bonnets or parasols "to protect their delicate visages from the rays of the sun." The Montgomery Mail said "the principal thoroughfares were crowded with equipages filled with beautiful women and brave men, and a like commodity thronged the sidewalks."

LED PARADE

Herman Arnold's band led the parade, followed by the military escort of five Alabama and Georgia militia units.

Next came the president-elect's carriage, drawn by six matched iron-gray horses. With Davis was Vice President Alexander H. Stephens, who had taken his oath the week before.

Other carriages, in order, held the congressional committee, representatives of the state of Alabama, the city of Montgomery, non-Confderate Southern States, judges of the State Supreme courts and clergymen. Finally, there were "citizens generally in carriages" and "citizens generally afoot."

As Davis settled in his carriage, the ordnance squad of the Columbus Guards fired a salute, and the procession moved off. Arnold's band whipped spectator excitement to a frenzy with the first public playing of "Dixie" as a march.

The people, "all on tip-toe to see the president-elect and the voluntary soldiery," roared a welcome. But no contemporary newspaper account tells of Davis' reaction to the cheers.

As the last carriage passed, the people fell in behind.

Inside the Capitol, the Confederate Congress had just approved the final printing of the provisional constitution, and ceremoniously signed it. One bill was introduced. Then, the minutes show, "Congress voted to go into secret session" for the formal presentation of the president-elect.

Davis was escorted into the Capitol by Robert Barnwell Rhett, the fiery South Carolina secessionist who would not long contain his bitterness toward Davis. Inside the House chamber, Vice President Stephens, another impending enemy, flanked Davis for the walk down the aisle.

After a brief speech of greeting, Davis was escorted back to the west portico of the Capitol. Members of Congress took seats before the inaugural stand, on which lay a wreath of red, white and blue flowers cradling a Bible.

The Episcopal Rev. Mr. Basil Manley Bespoke divine guidance for the president and the Confederacy. Then Congress President Howell Cobb administered the oath as prescribed by the just-approved constitution.

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the Confederate States of America, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution thereof." On his own, Davis added, "So help me God."

Then the man who was to lead a new nation made his first formal and official pronouncement of policy.

His short message was well received. Even in the North the New York Herald termed its delivery "eloquent," its tone "temperate," its meaning "firm."

Davis sought to reassure the Union that "there can be but little rivalry between ours and any manufacturing or navigating community, such as the northeastern states of the American Union. It must follow, therefore, that mutual interests will invite to good will and kind offices on both parts."

But there was nothing of softness in his remarks. "We have entered upon the career of independence and it must be inflexibly pursued." And he pointed to the possibility of war. "If, however, passion or lust for domination should cloud the judgment or inflame the ambition of those (Northern) states, we must prepare to meet the emergency and maintain, by the final arbitration of the sword, the position we have assumed among the nations of the earth."

If war should come, he added, the North must bear the blame, and the "suffering of millions will bear testimony to the folly and wickedness of our aggressors."

Not once did he mention slavery.

It was hardly half past one when Davis reached the end of his address. As he looked up at the cheering throng, rays of the afternoon sun highlighted his thin features. The position of the sun was prophetic—the evening of the Confederacy was beginning even at its dawn.

The end of the inauguration ceremony was a signal for renewed celebration. Far into the night the revelry would go. Davis would appear that evening at Estelle Hall for "president's levee." That gathering, the Montgomery Post noted, was "attended by thousands of the beauty, the chivalry and the intelligence all eager to grasp the hand that so nobly defended the flag of his country upon the blood-stained battlefield, and which now is to grasp the rains (sic) and control the destinies of the new-born republic."

Distress On Highways

Endlessly flowing streams of automobiles along America's mighty highways and small byways usually suggest three things most prominently — pleasure, business and danger, and one stressed most often is danger. Yet, there is another kind of distress on the highways that has received little attention. It is the plight of those who are stranded without funds.

To help in alleviating this distress, the Travelers Aid Society, which has long been a boon to the unfortunate in railroad depots, bus stations and other specifically located stopping and starting points, is moving onto the highways to lend a helping hand to those who are in desperate need, hoping thus to prevent the unfortunate from plunging into even more unbearable situations.

Research has revealed that approximately five out of every 1,000 auto travelers have need for some help other than the purchasable adjuncts to their trips.

Surveys have shown that service stations are continually being taxed with requests that are outside their sphere of responsibility. They show how amazingly generous of time and money personnel have been in giving emergency aid. Sometimes this is a one-time need and a temporary boost of this kind will see the traveler through. There are many instances, of course, where people may, for some temporary or emergency reason, need a quickly repaid loan or help in locating a particular person or resource.

This is an important aspect of Travelers Aid work. The greatest value the trained social workers have to give is in preventing a minor crisis from building up into unmanageable proportions for lack of quick service. Prevention of recurrence of a problem and helping people plan for more stability in the future is a major goal.

All too frequently behind the request for a dollar or a tire may be a continuing problem of chronic unemployment, emotional instability or even mental breakdown, illness or accident, or simply the failure of a job to materialize.

In these situations not only emergency aid to meet the crisis but skilled help to prevent such emergencies is required.

A car filled with a wife and children for whom there is no shelter nor adequate food may be a signal that a whole new way of life must be found. It is in the interest both of the family and of the community that temporary help should not be given without some effort to prevent a repetition of the same problem a few miles down the highway.

In this motor-minded nation, millions of cars, buses and trucks continuously are traveling along the vast highway systems. And in these vehicles are people—and where people are there are problems.

This fact is creating a growing partnership between the highway industries and a social agency—Travelers Aid. On one hand are the industries, aware that there must be provision for human needs, as well as mechanical; on the other a long-established organization with great experience in serving people in trouble away from home.

Traditionally, Travelers Aid is available in railroad, bus and air terminals, where the means of travel are scheduled and terminal personnel know of the agency's services and can easily refer such people in need of help.

No such ready-made setting exists in relation to private cars, although Travelers Aid realizes that this mode of transportation accounts for 90 per cent of travel in the United States. Since the organization is committed to serving the needs of travelers regardless of their mode of transportation, the automobile rider is a major concern.

Now Travelers Aid is cooperating with literally thousands of service station operators, much to the surprise and delight of those operators, who hope for some relief from trying to assist those who are in desperate straits.

For the automobile traveler, the service station comes nearer representing a railroad, bus or air terminal than anything that is to be found. From these stations he gets most of his information and it is on them that he calls most often if he has "reached the end of his rope."

To assist in this great need, the organization is now posting Travelers Aid signs in many service stations throughout the country. Greater progress is being made in some areas than in others but it is expected that eventually automobile travelers will find this service as available to them as it is to train and bus travelers.

Some may ask what good this will do. In many respects, such service is even more vital for automobile travelers than for bus and train riders.

When a man stops at a gasoline station to ask for a handout he may be setting up for himself a pernicious pattern. Some families have drifted into a rootless way of life, wandering in their old cars from one handout to another. The harm to the children in these circumstance is incalculable, depriving them of proper schooling, medical care and friends—all the security and stability of a home. Travelers Aid is far better equipped to deal with such a situation than are the service station men.

The meeting of such problems is an all-important safety measure, as well as a humanitarian one. A worried man driving a dilapidated car full of hungry members of his family is a poor driving risk.

Decision of Travelers Aid to extend its services to automobile travelers is most commendable and the method it has adopted for putting the program into effect seems good.

Making-Money Game

Millions of words have been written on "How to Make Money," but the number of those profiting by reading such advice probably is small.

One reason for this may be that some of the advisers themselves don't know. They are trying to make money by telling others how to do it.

Most of us realize that the fellow who starts with nothing and amasses a fortune is somehow different. We attribute his success to a "knack for making money." Something different to think about may be found in the following:

In London, where his book "How I Made Two Million Dollars in the Stock Market," is soon to be published, Nicholas Darvas was asked by a reporter for advice to British investors, Darvas replied:

"Keep calm and never, never think of profit as money. Regard it as points in a game. If you see it as cash to spend, you're lost."

There you have it. Looking for something to spend is a lot different from accumulating money. Most people prefer to spend and therefore they don't accumulate.

The sculptor of the recumbent marble statues of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella in the Cathedral of Granada in Spain had a subtle way of showing that the queen was the more intelligent. There is a deeper depression in the pillow on which her head rests, indicating a greater brain.

Russia Cutting Foreign Aid

Khrushchev Talking Loud And Big About Helping 'Friendly Countries' But Actually Trimming Donations

WASHINGTON — Premier Khrushchev is characteristically talking as loud and big as ever about dishing out economic aid to "friendly countries," but actually Russia is now up against the same hobbling difficulties in this field as the U. S.

Sharp curtailment of Soviet foreign aid has become so urgent, due to serious setbacks in the domestic economy, notably farm production, that Egypt is being strongly pressured to agree to a Aswan Dam irrigation and power project.

The high dam would cost $1 billion. The substitute smaller dams around $450 million.

This was among the most striking of Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson's disclosures in his two-and-a-half hour closed-door session with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Others were:

While its agricultural plight is less critical than Red China's, Russia may have to import grain because of extensive crop failures. In the past several years these have been due largely to drought, bureaucratic incompetence and bungling, and plain knavery.

Khrushchev's attendance at the March meeting of the United Nations hinges chiefly on whether he can have a private talk with President Kennedy. What the Kremlin ruler is seeking is an informal get - together similar to the one he had with President Eisenhower at Camp David.

In response to questions, Ambassador Thompson stated he favors this.

"I think it is the right approach," the veteran career diplomat told the senators. "It will give the president a chance to size up Khrushchev, and at the same time make it very clear to him that the president means what he says and can't be pushed around."

The Big Question — One Foreign Relations Committeeman asked if it "is possible to come to any kind of an understanding with Khrushchev."

"To some extent, I believe that is now conceivable, replied Thompson. "Some gestures could be made that might induce Khrushchev to moderate the cold war without the U. S. in any way compromising its basic position and principles.

"For one thing, there can be little doubt that a meeting with the president would improve Khrushchev's standing in Russia. His status in the Communist hierarchy has been weakened by the agricultural crisis, the collapse of last year's summit plans, and the bitter undercover feuding with the Peiping regime. Khrushchev definitely needs a resounding achievement in the foreign field."

"What would happen if he were deposed?"

"Very probably that would mean the advent of a younger and harder - headed leader in the Kremlin."

Thompson also warned that Soviet policy is to do everything short of war to get the United Nations out of the Congo. The speed with which UN troops were dispatched completely upset Red plans to control that strife-torn country by massive subversion.

"Khrushchev didn't dream the UN would jump into the Congo situation," said the Moscow ambassador. "I believe he still hasn't recovered from the UN's decision to send forces there."

In an effort to convince Nasser to abandon his ambitious high dam plan, Russian engineers are now contending the Aswan area is unsuited for such a vast structure. They are saying "shifting sands" make that unfeasible. These secret discussions have been underway several weeks, and their outcome may have far-reaching consequences.

Not All Politics

Some People Consider Many Other Things Of Some Importance

Is politics the total of life?

We are too often told that the United States having become a world leader, the American people should all become historians, international lawyers, exchange experts, sociologists and economists. The fact is that most people prefer to mind their own affairs, knowing a little of this and that, getting acquainted with Kasavubu but also with Marilyn Monroe and the First Lady, and wondering whether fights are fixed.

Let us put it another way. Last Sunday, many musicians were interested in Aaron Copland music as provided by Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. Personally, I have not been a disciple of Copland, admitting quite freely that I do not always understand what he wants to say. Leonard Bernstein, however, has a gift for teaching and as he explained his friend, Copland, to the young people who were listening at Carnegie Hall and the older people who were watching television, I had a new listen to Copland and a better understanding.

It is true that the time I spent on Copland might better have been spent reading Mao Tze-tung's attacks on Khrushchev, but there it is. I was diverted to Copland. Maybe, one should never look at Perry Mason because he diverts from the very serious problem of gold.

During the summer, I live far away from wisdom and devote my days to reading principally those remote volumes which I forgot to look at earlier in life. Also I read a local newspaper which tells about new road repairs in the county, about who was born or died, of new visitors to various friends, etc.

Also, the world in which I am geographically situated during the summer is musical. All kinds of music festivities occur. Also there is the dance. So I like to read the local newspaper which tells me what I want to know. To me, all this is very important and it is equally important to my neighbors, all of whom read this newspaper not for great coverage of the doings of Khrushchev or the erudite editorial opinion of its editor, but because it satisfies a very human desire to know what is going on in the neighborhood.

The other day, I listened to an argument of the responsibility of editors and publishers to provide people with what they need to know. And there was much wisdom in the assumption that if the people in a free country are badly informed or inadequately informed about great matters, they will vote stupidly and elect unfortunate men to public office and the pressure of public opinion will be on the wrong side.

There is much truth in this, except that who is so absolutely sure about what anyone needs to know. For instance, I read about a missile or rocket or platform or something that the Russians shoot heavenward and wonder why the experts say that it will take us a year or so to catch up with that. So I ask myself a few questions:

1. Why should we catch up?
2. Why do we need to go to Venus?
3. If we get to Venus, what will we do about it?
4. How much new mathematics do I need to study to understand what it is all about?

I know some teen-agers who are wise about such matters and they can explain it perfectly. They know all about physics and astrophysics and why a teen-ager has a rough time with parents these days because they, the parents, are so dumb about things that really count. So some parents try to keep up with their children by reading science fiction which is easier than reading Max Planck or Albert Einstein or even the pamphlets about a Sane Nuclear Policy.

Just to show off a little, I find history or pathological psychology very thrilling some days and other days, I like Agatha Christie. But I know lots of people who, when they come home from work, like to look at a few comic strips, read the sports pages, look at a couple of pictures, read one or two favorite columnists just to get sore—have a bottle of beer or Coke just before dinner, which they call supper.

Who is to say them, nay? The obsession with the word, democracy, causes liberals to believe that not only are all men equal, but they are the same. What a horrible thought!

Deplores Dispute

MONROE, La.

To the Editor:

For the many years I have read your editorials and news items, I can truthfully say I have always admired the vigorous stand you and your staff have made on the many issues which have arisen. I also have the greatest admiration for the discretion with which you have used in the choosing of the REAL TRUE issues to report to the public.

However, your recent attack upon the Monroe Police Department and it's governing bodies is to say the least — deplorable. Truly sir, this is no issue but only a childish effort to create a STINK. It is certainly not becoming to such an accredited paper as yours.

In recent months I have had the pleasure of becoming aquainted with many of the members of our Police Dept. Never have I seen a group of men and women who are more devoted to their tremendous task of preserving peace and protecting life and property. A more conscientious force you WILL NOT find in any city, regardless of size. Certainly it is not the salary they receive that entices these men to serve so vigorously, for many have to find second and sometimes third jobs to supplement their wages. Their task is burdensome, gruesome, and many times hazardous enough without the added burden of a petty grievance your paper might have.

I am sure that my writing to you about this matter is without the sanction of the Monroe Police Dept., because I happen to know they are very capable of fighting their own battles. But the fact is this is not a battle but a comedy and more than just the Mayor are laughing at the way this thing has developed.

As just as much a recipient of their protection as any other citizen, may I suggest that you and your staff continue your fine job of reporting real news to the eagerly awaiting public and let the Police Department continue to do their job the only way it can be done.

He's Old Subscriber

OAK GROVE, La.

To the Editor:

I would like to say that I had a birthday the 7th of February —born 1874, which makes me 87 years young, and I have been a subscriber to this welcome daily paper since early 1940 - 42 - 43 or 44 — so now I may be the oldest subscriber in West Carroll Parish.

As I remember very well, one of those dates a man walked in my small grocery store. His name was Poe. He said he would like to get me to subscribe for the Monroe Morning World, so I did. And I can say it's been a welcome visitor to my home all these days.

When I was about 6 years old —1880 — I went to school with 2 or 3 brothers. We had to walk about 5 miles which was at Macedonia. The next school was called Smith Chapel - 5 miles south close to the Beulah Church as it is called today . . . My last school I went to was at a new building at Beulah called Union Church and School, right close to where Beulah Church is today. I went to a teacher name William Gipson - a very good teacher too. I was then about 17 or 18 years old so I rode a small pony to school. All schools that I went to were 3 months duration. I think a little about the improved roads and the good going we have now. Nowadays the school children get on the bus right at home.

Well, just a few words of our old wedding day and our anniversary, which was February 7th just passed. I was married on my birthday. We have 3 sons and 3 daughters all close to our old home, but one daughter who lives at Des Planes, Ill. This daughter teaches school at her town. The oldest daughter, Mrs. C. E. Thomas lives with her parents, Walter Sanders and Annie Sanders. She is one of the cooks at Kilbourne High School. Mrs. Leone Heard and husband live here on their farm. The boys, Walter, Jr. has a nice dairy outside of Kilbourne. Amos has a nice large shoe shop in Oak Grove. Our youngest son, Mack works at Fairbanks pumping station.

"Mad Fox" Dispute

In reply to Mr. W. O. Roberts' article in the News-Star of February 15.

As sect-treas. of the Louisiana State Fox Hunters Association, Inc., I think it is my duty to say, that Mr. Roberts has stretched the truth beyond repair in stating that Jackson parish residents have imported 400 to 500 foxes in the past year. This is misleading the public.

Mr. Roberts, here are the facts and figures. In 1959 Mr. Felix Simonton and Mr. Buddy Butler of Ruston, La., ordered six red foxes out of Iowa and put them in Jackson parish. That same year Mr. M. A. Thompson of Calhoun and Mr. Jack Holloway of West Monroe ordered seven red foxes from Iowa at a cost of $12 each, freight included. In 1960 I ordered 20 red foxes for the association, out of Iowa, at the cost of $145.85.

Now, Mr. Roberts, this is 33 foxes that have been ordered and turned loose in Jackson parish.

I have the dates and freight tickets to verify this statement. These foxes were vaccinated against rabies.

It seems to me you are still sore to bone about your "no trespassing" bill being killed last year, which was outrageous.

Now, as to deer hunters, I don't think you are a friend of theirs either. Here is my reason for that. I can personally guarantee and prove there are more deer in Ouachita parish than in Jackson, also 20 deer hunters to every one in Jackson. Yet, you won't vote to open deer season in Ouachita and hunters from that parish have to come to Jackson and other surrounding parishes to hunt and we welcome them.

Fox hunting is a good, clean sport and we enjoy it and believe in letting other sportsmen enjoy theirs, whatever it might be.

I urge all sportsmen of field and woods to follow this man's tactics closely and remember them in the next election.

G. H. Hightower.

Better Watch Cops

PIONEER, La.

To the Editor:

After reading Mr. Sokol's letter last Sunday and subscribing to the Monroe Morning World since 1946 I have come to the conclusion that you people who put out our daily paper make mistakes, are a bunch of conservatives, segregationists and philanthropists. On top of that you had better watch those cops over there in Monroe.

Strength Facts

United States Depends More On Military Power Than Dollars

HEADQUARTERS, U. S. ARMY IN EUROPE — Napoleon's informed opinion that "God is always on the side of the strongest battalions" still stands up in the European Theatre of Operations.

As of now, the U. S. is the strongest military power in this part of the Old World — and it is this strength rather than the Almighty Dollar which entitles us to rule by divine right.

The reporter does not have to be here very long before he feels that there is only one logical line of action for the Kennedy Administration to take. To reduce American military power in Europe would mean a surrender of leadership — and that is something which men and governments do not willingly do. On the other hand, the new Administration, hyperactive and remorselessly practical, seems from this viewpoint very likely to maintain its position of strength and to use it — something which would be quite new in our conduct of foreign affairs.

It is tempting to speculate on what form a strength-based policy would take in Europe. Mr. Kennedy is known to hold a dim view of colonialism as practiced by several of the NATO partners. With "God on our side," there is no need for us to be as backward as we have been in expressing opinions about the internal affairs of NATO nations. Next time the subject of colonialism comes up at the United Nations, it seems probable that we will not abstain. The ducking of this issue is naked hypocrisy and the very opposite of leadership. We are strong enough to vote against France, Belgium and Portugal. My guess is that the President will instruct Adlai Stevenson to do so, not from fuzzy idealism, but because it is inevitable in the course of time that strength and power will assert themselves.

There are two ways in which our relative strength in Europe could be lessened. The one that is more immediate, and yet least understood, is for one of the 14 allies to become stronger than it is today. France under De Gaulle with an increasing atomic facility, can only become appreciably stronger if it gets a favorable settlement in Algeria — which is not probable. But West Germany can increase its power and its say-so in Europe by doing the very thing which we have in the past urged it to do — that is to enlist and arm 12 ground divisions.

At this writing, German enlistment goes very slowly. Defense Minister Strauss spoke, as it seemed, ruefully of this subject during a press conference at Exercise Winter Shield II where some 5,000 Germans participated. Strauss said that he would like to see the German Army consist of 55 per cent career soldiers, and the rest short - term draftees, but that the ratio was not yet attained. He added, with a sure knowledge of German psychology, that money and social benefits would not fill the ranks — rather an individual fondness for "soldiering" was required to rebuild the Army. In sum, as the German feeling of war guilt, (whether it is genuine or feigned would make a fascinating study) subsides, the U. S. will have a real rival for the mastery of Europe.

Benton's Name Is No Longer Fighting Word

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thomas Hart Benton's name is no longer enough to start a fight, even among art students, but there was a time when his caustic estimation of museum directors attracted as much attention as Harry S. Truman's remark about a music critic. Both salty sons of Missouri, the two recently got together to blend their talents.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)— The artist looked down from his 16-foot scaffold and said: "If you want to help paint, come up here."

"By golly, I will," replied the historian. And with agility that belied his 76 years, former President Harry S. Truman swung up beside artist Thomas Hart Benton to add a bit of blue to the Western sky.

To the delight of visitors, there were two of Missouri's most famous citizens working side by side on what both regard as an important recording of history— the newest Benton mural: "Independence and the Opening of the West."

Aside from this little byplay, the former president—no painter —did little actual work on the 19 by 32-foot mural that graces the entrance of the Harry S. Truman Library, repository of Truman memorabilia.

"But we talked about it ahead of time so that I knew what he wanted me to say in it," Benton mused "At first he knew more about the subject than I did. Now I know more about it than he does."

The mural has become Truman's favorite showpiece. He points to it often in his impromptu lectures to visiting statesmen and tourists.

STARTLING

Captured in startling detail are the chief elments of what Benton calls "our continental destiny." They are the plains Indians, the hunter and trapper, the French voyageur and the permanent settler who finally dispossessed the Indians.

When Benton paints a Pawnee Indian, what results is not just any Indian. It is a Pawnee. Right down from the feather headband, to the war paint, to the bow and arrow, the lasso around the waist and the beadwork in the moccasin.

For sketches of Pawnee faces, Benton went to Oklahoma and Colorado. But he found the older Indian males today are not as lean and muscular as their counterparts a century ago and went to Miami to have two young Indian athletes pose for the bodies.

Over nearly a two-year period Benton made individual drawings — hundreds of them — for every natural and man-made object in the mural.

"A yucca plant is not simply any yucca plant," he said. "In some parts of the country it has fat leaves. In Colorado it is spiny. If I painted a fat yucca, I'd have to answer to a lot of Westerners for it."

At 71 the white-maned Benton, usually dressed in flannel shirt and corduroy trousers, still has the same drive and energy that characterized his fight for his kind of art in the 1930s. He chews on a dead cigar, because his wife says he smokes too much, and works only in good light to spare his eyes. But his voice and ideas are flinty as ever.

Benton comes from a line of fighters. His great-uncle was one of Missouri's first two senators when it became a state in 1820. That Thomas Hart Benton served 30 years in the Senate and held the Washington spotlight in competition with such men as Jackson, Webster, Van Buren and Clay. The painter's father, Maecenas Benton, served five terms in the U.S. House of Representatives after discharge as a colonel in the Confederate army and political prominence as U.S. attorney.

Benton's career bloomed in the late 20s and 30s when — with Grant Wood of Iowa and John Steuart Curry of Kansas — he spearheaded the regionalist movement in art.

"You have no idea what a disturbance the regionalist created in the 1930s," he says. "We believed in painting reality, and we believed reality is what one experiences at the moment.

"There was another movement toward reality on the part of the Marxists, but they sought to idealize and propagandize. At the other extreme were the purists who supported abstract art. Life was barely tenable for the regionalists."

HIS NAME

Benton has made his home in Kansas City since returning from Paris and New York in the mid-1930s. He is the only one of the famed Wood-Curry-Benton triumvirate still alive.

Born four years and 30 miles apart in southwestern Missouri, Truman (from Lamar) and Benton (from Neosho) climbed parallel paths to the top in their fields.

Benton is as outspoken as Truman in his beliefs, and he can get just as salty.

Truman's remarks about a music critic and farmers who vote Republican are remembered. So — in the art world — is Benton's remark of the 30s that a typical art museum is "a graveyard run by a pretty boy with delicate wrists and a swing to his gait."

Another time Benton said he "would rather have my pictures hang in saloons than museums because more people would see them."

In one of his biggest battles— over a mural in the Missouri House of Representatives—he was castigated partly because he depicted Missourians as hick types.

His reply to a critic: "You suggest there is something wrong with the hick. I found him more interesting and more intelligent than you."

Benton is loath to talk about the money he earns because he believes it discourages struggling young artists. But a few months ago a magazine cited "a recent high price" of $1,000 for a Benton painting.

The artist became incensed because he felt it was unfair to purchasers of his works, fired off a letter of protest, and opened his books to a reporter.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Events Include Musical, Ending

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

Two major breakthroughs were made on local theatrical fronts during the past week. The Selman Field Playhouse ended a week's run of "The Mousetrap" and Northeast State College closed a successful three - night run of "South Pacific."

The Selman Field Playhouse upon completion of the Agatha Christie mystery was returned to the City of Monroe to be leveled to make way for the new industrial park area. The old theatre —a relic of the Army Air Corps of World War II — served the Little Theatre well.

But the building had more than outlived its usefulness and had been condemned as a firetrap long before the production of "The Mousetrap."

FROM SCRATCH

It is only hoped the spirit of meeting the challenge and operating with meager facilities will follow the group to its new headquarters on Lamy Lane. Regardless of whether a theatre has a $200,000 building or a two-dollar can of paint to work with, the attitude of working up "from scratch" is the one which turns out the best shows.

The Northeast production of the Rogers and Hammerstein musical, "South Pacific," also got a major break in costumes and sets which arrived last Sunday— just in time for dress rehearsals and the performances.

On the touring circuits in the area, General Carlos Romulo, Philippine representative to the United Nations, will speak Friday at 8:15 p.m. Neville auditorium on the Northeast Concerts series.

That same day The Louisiana Tech Concert Association will present a matinee and evening performance by the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

Another concert by the Monroe Youth Symphony has been scheduled for Saturday, February 25. The children's program will be held at 1:30 p.m. in Neville Auditorium.

Also making the rounds is a diminutive puppet show built and enacted by members of the Monroe Junior Charity League. Though tiny in dimensions, the stage, figures and settings reflect top artistic quality. Now "on the road" with stops scheduled at all city elementary schools is the suspense - thriller, "The Three Little Pigs."

An art contest sponsored by the youth concerts division of the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra will feature art works based on Claude Debussy's "La Mer," to be performed via radio throughout the state Thursday.

Students from the third grade through senior high school are eligible to submit works for judging to the Art Project, Youth Concerts, 605 Canal Street, New Orleans 16, Louisiana.

LAST STRAW

What one writer described as a "negative reaction" greeted Saul Levitt's play, "The Andersonville Trial," when it opened in Duesseldorf, Germany.

This Civil War drama features a Confederate prison camp commander whose name is Wirz and who speaks with a German accent when the play is given in English.

The drama centers around the question every man must answer when he dons a military uniform, namely, "Shall I follow my orders and kill or refuse to follow them because my own conscience knows better?" In Wirz's camp at Andersonville, 14,000 out of 41,000 northern prisoners of war died of starvation and disease.

Apparently the playwright is aiming at two parts of the world with one play — the South and Germany. He refers in his preface to his feelings about "the contemporary world conscience."

Point for point, there are few if any parallels between the Confederate States of America and Nazi Germany. Andersonville suffered as all Confederate and many Union military units suffered in the last two years of that war. It was not a concentration camp.

The German reviews noted that the court came forward with a predictable decision from a "rubber stamp" jury, which led to the "false argument that there is no legal authority in trials of war criminals; that they are merely disguised acts of vengeance committed by the victors."

If this is indeed the current "world conscience" — and we hope it is not — then we can only interpret such to mean the victor is always right and the loser must confess his guilt for at least a century after the war.

Birth Control Pills Actually 'Old Hat'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those birth control pills now beginning to reach drug stores in quantity are "old hat" in scientific circles.

The pills have three major disadvantages. They're expensive, they work only for women, not men, and they have to be taken daily.

To scientists seeking some practical way of curbing the world's runaway boom in babies, none of the pills marketed so far is the answer.

Researchers now are working on a vaccine—which would not only meet the shortcomings of current drugs but would have this additional factor: the artificially induced sterility could be either temporary or permanent, depending on the dosage.

The pills recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration suppress the reproductive process in women. A hormone called estrogen causes the ovaries to cease releasing ova, or egg cells.

Small doses of polio virus, for instance, prompt the body to build up a resistance, or immunity, to polio.

Under study now at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena is a vaccine which, in small animals at least, makes female egg cells and male sperm cels immune to each other.

Dr. Albert Tyler, professor of embryology, has found a way of treating the sperm of sea urchins so that the natural attraction of sperm to egg cells is broken.

He does this by treating the sperm with a solution containing bits of egg cell. The sperm becomes resistant to egg cells with the result that there is no fertilization, no pregnancy.

Tyler hasn't tried it out with humans yet. Much experimentation must be done to determine if immunization will cause harmful side effects.

He sees the possibility that overdosage, for instance, might lead to a strong allergic reaction between spouses.

As a matter of fact, says Tyler, some sort of natural allergy or immunity may be the reason some perfectly healthy couples fail to have babies.

"There are many cases," he says, "of childless people who have had children after separating and marrying other spouses."

Tyler's brother, Dr. Edward Tyler, who is medical director of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Planned Parenthood Association, says "this application of the principle of immunization is one of the most important developments yet made in birth control."

Edward Tyler, who is on the faculty of the School of Medicine at the University of California at Los Angeles, believes an immunization vaccine could be made effective for a year, two years or even longer.

This would be of great benefit, he says, in over-populated countries where millions are too poor to afford the 50-cents-a-day pills now being offered to Americans.

At his clinic, Edward Tyler has 1,500 men and women under observation in experiments with a pill which utilizes still a third principle. This pill suppresses the production not of ova but of sperm. It is taken by men, not women, and is close to 75 per cent effective in small doses. Larger doses might be more effective, but the side effects have not been determined.

The effective agent in the pill is not a hormone, but Dr. Tyler declines to say what it actually is.

"We have been giving the pills to men daily since last July," he says, "and so far there has been no effect on virility nor any serious side effect."

The study, recently disclosed in medical journals, is supported by the U.S. Public Health Service as part of an investigation into the causes of sterility.

Confessions To Sweeten Sour Image

Billy Lloyd needs his public sweetened up.

He's president of USTW, the powerful union of Terminal Workers that has aroused the suspicions of Congressional investigators. A vice president, Jim Tooker, Lloyd's friend who had, however, sworn he would talk, is murdered, and Art Kincell, former president, and father-in-law of Billy, commits suicide. Billy is tried for the murder and acquitted. A publicity campaign is to start to tell the world what fine figure of a man he is, and this novel consists of Billy's reminiscences, or autobiography, or confession as taped for the convenience of a public-relations expert.

Lloyd had a tough life. His father was a heavy drinker, the boy began to earn his living early, he became a union organizer, he loved Anabelle, he went with other girls, he married the big guy's daughter, he learned the hard way that you act first and think after, or in his words, a big man is a fast man.

Appel tells his dramatic story in hard-bitten, fast-paced prose.

The Story Of Unsung Raids In Two Books

RETURN OF THE TIGER. By Brian Connell. Doubleday. $4.50; THE HEROES. By Ronald McKie. Harcourt Brace. $4.75.

Three dark canoes manned by black - faced commandos in black silk tights drifted down on brightly illuminated ships in Singapore harbor.

While roustabouts labored on the ships and a crew member even gazed quizzically at one of the canoes, the commandos fixed bombs to the ships by magnetic holdfasts and paddled away in the darkness.

Hours later a series of blasts sent seven ships totaling nearly 40,000 tons to the bottom and created a tremendous uproar in the captured port that the Japanese had supposed secure from all hazards.

This raid and a second one — among the greatest commando feats of the war — have now achieved their share of immortality, even though 16 years late.

Not one but two books about them are being published within three weeks, One by Brian Connell, an English newspaper man, and another by an Australian journalist, Ronald McKie.

Heroes these commandos surely were, by any standard, including the Japanese.

The leader of both raids was Ivan Lyon, a dour British officer with a tiger tattooed on his chest, who had been spurred to revenge by the captivity of his wife and child.

In the first expedition he led a party of 13, mostly Australians, aboard a beat - up Japanese fishing boat through more than a thousand miles of enemy held water to within 30 miles of Singapore. There the canoes dropped off to make the final dash. Meantime the fishing boat circled away to Borneo to await the rendezvous.

A year later, Lyon struck again. This time he had a party of 22, a big submarine instead of a worn out fishing boat, baby submersibles called "sleeping beauties" instead of canoes for the actual attack. Everything was bigger, better and more efficient —except luck. As luck had it, an officious patrol boat challenged the junk that Lyon had pirated to carry him within sight of Singapore. The patrol boat was sunk for its pains, but that doomed the expedition.

Taking to canoes, the commandos were hounded from island to island. Most, including Lyon, were killed. Ten were captured and beheaded as spies. The Japanese, nevertheless, treated them with respect bordering on awe.

Not until war's end was their fate known, and until now only cursory accounts of the two raids have been printed.

There are curious parallels and contrasts between the two books. Both authors relate tremendous labors in tracking down the facts; neither indicates he knew about the other. "The Heroes" not only is more detailed but supplies a lot of imaginary conversation. "Return of the Tiger" concentrates its story line, it would seem properly, on Major Lyon.

There are discrepancies — for instance, McKie says the raiders carried suicide pills; Connell does not mention it — but both accounts provide rewarding fare for the adventure fan.

Old Soldier's Strength At 91 Is Ebbing Fast

By CARL ZIMMERMAN

MANILA (AP—They whispered that he carried a magic amulet, for he seemed invulnerable in battle.

The simple people kissed his hand when he entered a village. With few guns and no military training, they followed him to war for five years, twice against the proud but crumbling empire of Spain and then against the vigorous new world power, the United States. Defeat ultimately was inevitable.

But ultimate triumph came 45 years later when he marched proudly down Dewey Boulevard the day America gave the Philippines independence.

Now, at 91, Emilio Aguinaldos strength is ebbing at last. His sight is failing. But he is still painfully writing his memoirs of the days when America went to war to free Cuba from Spain and wound up taking the Philippines.

He has much to be bitter about, but he is not. He is a friend of America although he still maintains America betrayed him, although Americans called him a bandit and cutthroat.

Once even his own people heaped abuse on him. To this day there are many who regard him with distrust.

Yet he was the undisputed leader of the revolts that Filipinos consider the most glorious period in their unhappy history, the 1896-'01 revolt against Spain and America.

UNKNOWN

His education was modest, and he had no military training or experience. His mother had made him village headman at 17 to avoid conscription into the Spanish forces. He joined a secret society aimed at overthrowing Spain.

On Aug. 30, 1896, Aguinaldo and a friend walked unarmed into the guardhouse in his hometown and told the soldiers to surrender. It was an easy beginning, for the Spaniards were surprised and outnumbered by Aguinaldos men outside.

Within the week Aguinaldo faced a force of 500 armed men sent out from Manila with artillery and cavalry, and routed them at a river crossing.

Aguinaldo finally signed a pact with Spain when a stalemate was reached in early 1898 and went to Hong Kong with 400,000 pesos as a cash settlement. Some of his supporters demanded that the money be divided.

Instead he bought arms and came back after the battle of Manila Bay in May 1898 to continue the fight.

There was a memorable conference with U.S. Commodore George Dewey, aboard his flagship Olympia. Aguinaldo said Dewey promised independence in exchange for an alliance against Spain. But the hero of Manila Bay insisted he promised nothing of the sort, and the Filipino had nothing in writing to back up his claim.

All over the archipelago Filipinos rose against Spain. They had more guns this time, and the Spaniards were demoralized by the loss of their navy to Deweys fleet at Manila Bay.

Soon Manila was all but won by Aguinaldo.

But there was no victory. American troops landed, and their generals refused to allow the Filipinos to enter the surrendered city.

Aguinaldo restrained his headstrong commanders and waited. When America annexed the Philippines, his course was clear—to fight the Americans.

Aguinaldo fought against hopeless odds with dignity. It was still there at the end, at the ignominious surrender to American Gen. Frederick Funston.

"While naturally agitated, his bearing was dignified, and in this moment of his fall there was nothing of the craven. He is a man of many excellent qualities, far and away the best Flipino I ever was brought in contact with," Funston wrote.

It took 70,000 American troops to crush the insurgents. By the time they succeeded in 1901, the Filipinos had absorbed a vision of ultimate independence they would never lose.

He was only 32 then, and had a following that could not be challenged. But he retired to his farm on the shore of Manila Bay and disappeared from public notice.

Aguinaldo acquired moderate wealth through marriage. He still lives in the old family home at Kawit, Cavite, filled with momentoes of the revolution. He greets visitors usually wearing a white uniform with high choker collar. Before independence in 1946 he wore a black bow tie in mourning for his revolution.

Aguinaldo has been a member of the Council of State, highest advisory body to the president, since independence in 1946.

He has a secretary, but insists on writing his memoirs laboriously by hand in Tagalog, the Philippine national language.

Although growing feeble, he managed to attend independence ceremonies last July 4. Since then he has been in and out of hospitals.

Until recently he would climb five flights of stairs at his home to sleep in a tower bedroom overlooking Manila Bay.

A Guide To 'Splendor' And Misery

ALEXANDRIA: A History and a Guide. By E. M. Forster. Doubleday Anchor Books. $.95.

Lawrence Durrell is the name we think of first today, thanks to his Alexandria Quartet, when this ancient city at the Nile's mouth is mentioned. But it has attracted more than that one distinguished writer, for instance, Forster, of "Passage to India" fame. There during World War I, Forster wrote a combined guide and history with cross references. Despite a couple of editions, it was an unlucky venture; now it's updated and printed in this country for the first time. The text is supplemented by diagrams and maps.

Alexander the Great founded it, but never saw a single Alexandrian wall rise. It's the city of the Ptolemies, of Cleopatra and Hypatia, of Arian and Athanasius, and of Plotinus, of a great library and a great lighthouse. Jews, Turks, Greeks, Arabs, English, French, Christians, Moslems, emperor and Mohammed and the Prophet himself figure in its story reviewed here brilliantly in its rise and fall, splendor and misery.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library eagerly receive the new books added to the collection. It grows every month and the Librarian and her staff are making every effort to supply the needs of the reading public. A new book of fiction, which will interest those who have read the other books written by Elizabeth Spencer is "The Light in the Piazza." This is a haunting love story of international aspect and should be fascinating. More and more people are reading books of non-fiction. In fact at the main library, more non-fiction is checked out than fiction. This week's titles present a variety of material. "Intelligence" by Gaston Viaud is a very fine study in a new series called Science Today. Books by Vincent Sheen are always popular. His latest one is called "Go to Heaven" and contains much excellent spiritual material. "The United States in Its World Relation" is the title of a new book by Nelson Blake. It will be most valuable for everyone interested in contemporary world affairs.

An unusual and interesting book is "The Private World of High Society" by Lucy Kavaler. This book contains much startling and interesting information. Another book in the Science Today series is a book in the field of physics called "Matter and Antimatter" by Maurice Duquesne. George Nicholl is the author of a very interesting book called "Survival at Sea". This is an account of the development, operation and design of inflatable marine life-saving equipment. "It's a woman's World" is the title of a book by Ruth Stout, which gives much humorous, but pungent advice about housekeeping. She presents her information in such an attractive manner that it makes very absorbing reading.

Over the years we have had many requests for a book called "The Medical Secretary" by Kathleen B. Root. The book was out of print and we borrowed it a number of times from the Louisiana State Library. We are happy that there is now a new edition and that the library has purchased a copy of this book. It should be most useful to anyone engaged in this type of work. Harriet F. Pilpel is the author of an interesting book called "Rights and Writers". This book is a handbook of literary and entertainment law and should be most useful to those in this field. It is surprising how many people are interested in collecting coins or paper money. The library purchases many books on this subject and never seems to have enough. The latest one if by Fred Reinfeld and is called "A Simplified Guide to Collecting American Paper Money."

Many people in the Parish are interested in the study and creation of ceramics. The library is gradually building up a good collection on this subject. The latest one is called "Japanese Ceramics" and was written by Seiichi Okuda. It is profusely illustrated and will delight the hearts of those who love the beautiful. "Jubal's Raid" by Frank E. Vandiver is another of the exciting books being published this year about different aspects of the Civil War. This is the account of General Early's famous attack on Washington in 1864. A scholarly edition to the history collection of the library is "Colonial Virginia" by Richard L. Morton. This is a two volume set, which takes up every aspect of life in this colony.

One of the most popular groups of books in the library is the biography section. Each week some books are added to it. This week there are several. "Immigrant Saint" by Pierto Di Donato is the life of Mother Cabrini. Robert St. John has written an account of Nasser of Egypt, which he calls simply "The Boss". "Edward Randolph and the American Colonies" by Michael G. Hall is an interesting biography of an outstanding figure of the American Colonial period.

Another interesting biography is called "Porte Crayon". It was written by Cecil D. Eby and concerns the life and career of David Hunter Strother, a journalist of the past century. "Lonely But Not Alone" is the title of the autobiography of Wilhelmina, formerly Queen of the Netherlands, but now princess, since she gave up the throne to her daughter. It is an account of a long and varied life and one that will interest many readers.

Several reference books were added during the past week. "The World Almanac and Book of Facts for 1961" is a very useful book and one was purchased for each of the libraries. Another interesting addition to the genealogy collection of the Library is "The Alabama Genealogical Register, March 1960".

Books for young adults are very popular and the library is continually adding to this collection. "Journey for a Princess" by Margaret Leighton will appeal especially to girls in the age group from 12 to 16. "Free for All" by Viola Rowe and "The Limit of Love" by James L. Summers will appeal to both boys and girls. Two groups of short stories will prove very popular. One is called "Star of Stars" and was collected by Frederik Pohl. This is a book of science fiction. The other was compiled by Albert Tibbets and is called "Salute to the Brave; Stories of World Warr II".

BY YOUTH ORCHESTRA

Art-Music Program Planned

Art set to music and "live" masterpieces will highlight the second Young Concert-Goers program next Saturday at Neville High auditorium.

The Monroe Youth Orchestra will present eight pieces at the concert, starting at 1:30 p.m.

Two selections from the classics will lead off the program, followed by six nursery rhyme fantasies.

Pictures of the nursery rhymes, painted by children in Monroe's six elementary schools, will be projected onto the stage as the orchestra plays the appropriate music, ranging from Pop Goes the Weasel, and London Bridge to Twinkle Twinkle Little Star.

Youngsters from the elementary schools act out the next segment: five paintings by masters, including Renoir, Reynolds, Duveneck and Raeburn will be portrayed, along with a descriptive narrative.

During the program, information on various aspects of such a concert will be given. At the concert's completion, a quiz will be held, with a book or record offered to the child with the correct answers.

Midway in its first season, the Young Concert-Goers series is aimed at presenting music, drama and art to young students in an appealing way, so the youngsters will become familiar with the "Arts" and appreciate them.

"Performers from the various schools receive valuable experience in preparing and presenting finished performances," points out Miss Jonnie Bankhead, coordinator and city school's music instructor.

Paintings, pictures, craft work from elementary, and junior high schools, Neville high school and Northeast College will be on display following the concert.

Eloy Fominaya, assistant professor of music at Northeast Louisiana State College is conductor for the Monroe Youth Orchestra, composed of 40 students from city schools.

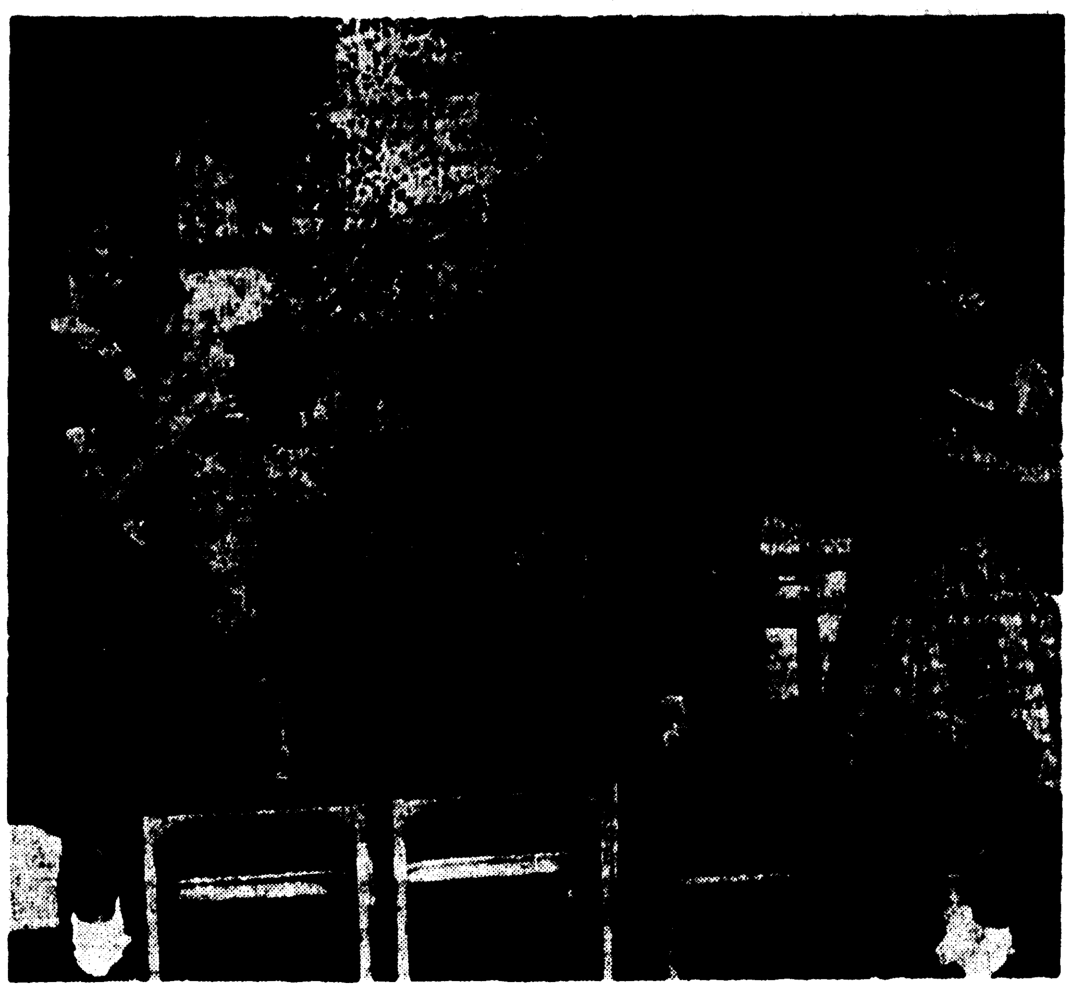
Final concert will be given in late April. It will feature a ballet composed by Fominaya. Miss Patricia Wattley will direct the youngsters in dancing the parts.

Schools which will participate in presenting the exhibit after next Saturday's program are: Lida Benton, Barkdull Faulk, Plum Street, Sherrouse, Georgia Tucker and Lexington elementary, Lee and Jefferson Junior Highs, Neville High and Northeast.

Ceramics, jewelry, sculpture, drawings, paintings, graphic arts, commercial art, weavings and mosaics will be exhibited.

Family tickets, good for the next two programs, will be on sale at the door or from orchestra members for $1.25.

Proceeds from the ticket sale will help send the Monroe Youth Orchestra to represent Louisiana at the Southern Convention of Music Educator's National Conference in Ashville, N.C.



CONCERT EXHIBIT, an abstract design mosaic, is being prepared by students at Sherrouse Elementary School to be part of the Young Concert-Goers program. The mosaic, featuring school letters SES, will be shown along with displays from nine other Monroe schools and Northeast College, following the concert in Neville High next Saturday afternoon. Students Elizabeth Poole, left, and Jennifer Davis give a preview look at the glittering artwork. (Staff photo by Ben Bradford)

AGRICULTURE REPLACED

Southern Economy Getting Overhaul

NEW YORK (UPI) — Horace Greeley's advice, "Go west, young man," has proved sound over the years, but the postwar trek to the southeast is overshadowing the westward movement.

Industry has gradually replaced agriculture as the mainstay of the southern economy, but this powerful agricultural segment still constitutes a cushion that goes far to soften the collapses that heretofore were an inescapable culmination of this country's booms.

The minor topping off in 1953 and again in 1955 passed by the South, raising scarcely a tremor; it went with little notice in 1957-58; and the current threat of a more severe contraction in values is being taken with something like a shrug of the shoulders, according to the latest investment survey by Thomson & McKinnon, brokerage firm.

Southern activity in 1960 proved more vigorous than in most other parts of the country, thanks to this "duality" in the South's economic structure.

CROPS WERE EXCELLENT

It was a good year for the South and the crops were excellent. But, the report said, the expected political change, the low rate of steel operations, and hesitation in many important lines have not been wholly without effect. Some of what had developed in other parts of the country has spilled over into the South.

This is inescapable when practically entire industries, such as steel, machine tools and transportation, have fallen into recession.

Industrial volume in the South last year was about as good as 1959. Though not up to par, the flow of business south of the Mason-Dixon line, topped by record crop yields, brought relative progress to the service industries, finance and insurance, utilities, and even the entertainment of the region, the Thomson & McKinnon survey showed.

The 1960 census revealed the South Atlantic states among the bigger population gainers. And Thomson & McKinnon placed these states among those growth states which strongly developed its vitality.

LABOR SUPPLY PLENTIFUL

Behind this growth and vitality, it said, was mild climate and a plentiful labor supply, and, possibly, the greater sense of freedom these qualities appear to confer.

The brokerage firm presented a wide selection of stocks to give an explanation for the conditions of climate and surroundings, and their effect on industrialization and progress of a previously agricultural empire.

The list consists mainly of those companies whose operations are confined mainly to the South, and gives an earnings and dividend comparison between 1959 and 1960, and the current yield on the stock.

More utility issues are on the list than any other, with chemicals, textiles, tobaccos, railroads and retail stores next in popularity.

The yields, on average, are very good and range to as high as 10.5 per cent in Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad. Also showing yields of more than 6 per cent are Arundel Corp., American Bakeries, Woodward Iron, Chesapeake & Ohio, Sterchi Bros., Bibb Mfg., Burlington Industries, Dan River Mills, Lowenstein & Sons, and West Point Mfg.

All of the utilities on the list showed or are expected to show improved earnings for 1960, and nearly half of the textiles and chemicals were in the same boat.

With only a few exceptions, dividend payments in 1960 held steady or showed an improvement over 1959.

Accidents Kill Five In Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Heavy rains and slippery pavement caused five fatal accidents in Alabama during the first 12 hours of the weekend period, a United Press International survey showed Saturday.

The UPI count began at 6 p. m. Friday and ends at midnight Sunday.

The Highway Patrol blamed heavy rains and slick highways for a rash of traffic accidents in every section of the state.

Richard Luchian Pittman, 17, of Scottsboro died Saturday when his motorscooter went out of control on wet pavement in Scottsboro. Authorities said Pittman failed to make a curve in driving rain on the old Larkinsville Road in the western section of Scottsboro. He died 30 minutes after the accident.

War Criminal Reward Upped

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) —West Germany put a top price Saturday on the head of missing Dr. Josef Mengele, accused of killing Jewish children with chemical injections at Auschwitz concentration camp.

Officials said they believed Mengele has fled to South America. Rumor has placed him in Brazil, and the German Embassy in Rio de Janerio is holding an arrest order for him.

If caught, the 50-year-old Mengele probably could stand trial in the "Auschwitz complex," a group of nearly a thousand cases prepared by Frankfurt prosecutors against personnel of the notorious Nazi concentration camp.

The prosecutors Saturday upped the reward for Mengele to 20,000 marks ($4,475 dollars)—twice the reward offered for Auschwitz Commandant Richard Baer just before his arrest last December.

Burglars Hit Service Stations In West Monroe

Burglars hit two West Monroe service stations Friday night or early Saturday, according to West Monroe police. Both stations are located on Cypress street.

Taylor's Service Station and Rickerson's were identified as the places raided.

At Taylor's, the raiders got about $45 in cash, according to police, and missed an additional $100 that was under the cash drawer. The cash register was severely damaged.

Police said Rickerson's reported an undetermined amount of cash missing from the coin box of the cigarette machine. No other loss was reported.

It was theorized by police that the same party was involved in both raids, and Rickerson's was believed to have been entered first.

The intruder shattered a rear window at Rickerson's and apparently suffered a cut, as evidenced by blood on the premises. Blood was also traced to Taylor's.

SHOOT DOWN PLANE

TOKYO (AP) — Rebel Laotian forces shot down an enemy plane east of Phu Kung Thursday, Peiping radio reported Sunday. The broadcast said the claim was made by the clandestine Pathet Lao radio. Peiping gave no details.

REV. ROBERT PEYTON

Rev. R. Peyton Special Speaker In West Monroe

During the Monroe district evangelistic meetings the First Methodist Church of West Monroe will have as speaker the Rev. Robert Peyton of the First Methodist Church, Arcadia.

He will appear at 7 this evening, and during the week nightly at 7:30.

He received his BS degree from Mississippi Southern College, BD from Candler School of Theology at Emory University, and master of arts degree from the University of Texas. He also has completed residence work for the doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Texas. He served churches in Mississippi and Texas before coming to Louisiana.

Special music each evening and a "sing along" choir will feature old familiar hymns.

REV. LUMAN DOUGLAS

Ruston District Superintendent McGuire Speaker

The Rev. Luman Douglas, superintendent of the Ruston District Methodist Churches, will speak tonight, at 7 and each evening of this week through Friday night at 7, at the McGuire Methodist Church, West Monroe.

Educated at Centenary College, Taylor University, and Southern Methodist University, he was admitted on trial in the Methodist Church in 1935. He has served as pastor of the following churches, Walker Circuit, Slidell, Cedar Grove, Shreveport, Sulphur, Arcadia, Homer and Carrollton Ave., New Orleans. He is now in his fourth year as district superintendent.

Prior to coming to the present assignment, he served as chairman of the Conference Board of Missions. In 1960, he represented Louisiana Methodism at the South Central Jurisdictional Conference, and was a reserve delegate to the General Conference at Denver.

Music at McGuire will be under the direction of Eugene Smith, choir director, and Miss Biddy Dupree will serve as organist.

My Answer

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am intensely happy, and became a Christian through reading the New Testament. Must I join a Christian church, and how can I choose the right one? ..J.K.

ANSWER: You have made a wonderful start, and your being converted through reading the New Testament is living proof that the word of God is quick and powerful.

If you will continue to read the New Testament you will find that Christian conversion finds fulfillment in church membership. In the second chapter of Acts we read: "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized; and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." Conversion, after the receiving of the Word, was followed by the obedience of baptism, and uniting with other believers. The New Testament knows nothing of the solitary Christian. Just as our physical existence is enhanced by family life, so our spiritual lives are enriched by fellowship with other believers.

As to the matter of which church you should join, my advice would be to find a group of believers who have believed and received the Word of God; who depend upon the Holy Spirit; and who by life and walk give evidence that they have been with Jesus. I'm sure that you will find such a church, and that your life will be enriched by joining it.

33 Methodist Churches In Special Event

Thirty-three Methodist churches in the Monroe district will engage in a simultaneous evangelistic endeavor beginning tonight, and extending through Friday.

Each of these churches will have as a daily guest speaker, a pastor from the Ruston district.

The exchange of pastors from the Ruston district to the Monroe district is under the direction of the Rev. George Harbuck, Monroe, and the Rev. Luman Douglas, Ruston, district superintendents.

In two weeks the Monroe district Methodist pastors will go into the Ruston district churches for a week of evangelistic preaching.

CHICAGO (AP)—The new feed grain bill sent to Congress by President Kennedy this week reversed the trend of futures prices generally on the Board of Trade and most contracts posted their second consecutive weekly setbacks.

Soybeans maintained their steady climb, however, and reached new season peaks during the week but failed to hold them through Friday's heavy general selling.

At the end of the week, soybeans were 2¼ to 4 cents a bushel higher, March 2.74½-¾; wheat ¼ higher to ⅛ lower, March 2.10½; corn 1⅛-2⅛ lower, March 1.12⅝; oats ⅞-1⅛ lower, March 63¾-64; rye 1⅛-2 cents lower, March 1.19.

Navy Honors Officer For Blimp Attack

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — A naval officer has been awarded a letter of commendation from the secretary of the Navy for the part he played in the only blimp attack on a surfaced enemy submarine in naval history — 18 years ago.

The commendation was presented Friday to Lt. Cmdr. John Jan of Toms River, who is attached to the Lakehurst command.

Vice Adm. Charles Rosendahl (Ret.) of Toms River, who made the presentation, said the blimp's skipper, Nelson G. Grills, a prominent Indianapolis, Ind., lawyer, had been vindicated for attacking the sub by a record of the incident, which Rosendahl came across last year while reviewing captured German logs of submarine operations.

Rosendahl said the attack, which occurred around midnight July 10, 1943, was considered "foolhardy" at the time because the blimp was damaged by fire from the sub, lost helium, settled into the water and sank.

But Rosendahl said the German U-boat commander in a report to Berlin credited the blimp with badly damaging the sub's ballast tanks, forcing it to head back to Germany only a few hours before it would have reached its destination — Havana. Two weeks later the sub was attacked and sunk by a British aircraft.

Jan was serving aboard the blimp as an enlisted aviation pilot at the time of the attack.

Rosendahl said Grills would be awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in the near future because "the Navy has decided to credit Americans who decided not to run in the face of the enemy."

Indonesian Mob Attacks Home Of U.S. Envoy

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) —A mob of Indonesian demonstrators shouting "hands off the Congo" attacked the U.S. ambassador's residence here Saturday, smashing windows, destroying furniture and lighting a huge bonfire in the front yard.

Rock-throwing Indonesian students also attacked the Belgian Embassy, breaking windows and ripping down the flag in demonstrations they said were aimed at avenging the "assassination" of Patrice Lumumba.

Indonesian troops with fixed bayonets and steel helmets intervened to disperse the hundreds of chanting demonstrators. They prevented the mob from completely ransacking the residence of U.S. Envoy Howard P. Jones.

The ambassador was not at home when the crowd surged up onto the front porch of his house, broke all windows within reach, smashed the furniture and piled the pieces into a bonfire heap outside.

JFK Claims Nation In Depression

By JACK LEFLIER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Business attention centered last week on Washington, where medicine was being brewed for the ailing economy.

President Kennedy said flatly that "We have been in a recession for some months."

House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., called the unemployment problem the most urgent since the 1930s.

These moves were taken to stimulate business:

The President said that within the next few weeks he would send to Congress a new tax incentive plan to spur business and industrial modernization. He urged state governors to quickly put to use more than $1 billion in federal aid road funds.

The Pentagon announced it would begin awarding two to three months earlier than planned $650 million in contracts for such items as clothing and weapons.

DEFENSE DEPARTMENT

The Defense Department studied whether it can advance construction schedules involving about $500 million from next fiscal year.

The government reported that in January the industrial output declined for the sixth consecutive month and personal income dropped for the third month.

Production of mines, factories and utilities fell 1 per cent to a level 8 per cent below record January 1960. Personal income slumped $600 million to an annual rate of $406.3 billion, down from $409.7 billion in October.

Retail sales in January declined for the third month to 17.7 billion, two per cent below last December and January 1960. The Labor Department reported workers drawing unemployment compensation increased 61,500 in the week ended Jan. 28 to 3,293,500, a record for the period.

SLOW DEMAND

Companies in various industries announced layoffs because of slow demand for thier products but some instances of rehiring lightened the dark situation.

The automobile industry, with many plants shut down for the week and 70,000 workers idled, hit its lowest production level of any nonholiday week of the 1961 model year. Output was estimated at 75,000 passenger cars, compared with 88,134 last week and 159,058 a year ago.

Sales in the first 10 days of February continued slow, the total low a year ago. It was estimated that unsold new cars on Feb. 1 totaled 1,027,000.

However, Edward N. Cole, head of General motors' Chevrolet division, said he felt sales this year still can reach 6.5 million to 7 million cars despite the slow start.

The steel picture brightened a little as plants last week produced 1,524,000 tons, up 2.1. per cent from the previous week for the biggest weekly total since last October. The output reflected a rise in orders from users other than automakers.

IMPROVEMENT EXPECTED

A Dun & Bradstreet Inc., survey of 1,518 business executives found 66 per cent expecting higher sales in the second quarter than in the current quarter.

A National Industrial Conference Board survey of 160 manusacturing firms showed 60 per cent of the opinion that factory employment will hold steady or rise in the next 12 months.

The stock market racked up a good gain last week, apparently anticipating that government moves will get the economy rolling.

FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS

SEN. RUSSELL

Missile Gap To Be Aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., said Saturday, "There is a missile gap but it's more in the field of science and technology and in greater thrust."

Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he bases his view on a first-hand inspection of military installations.

"Our committee undoubtedly will go into the missile gap thoroughly," Russell said in an interview. "Anything which has as much politics mixed up in it is certain to have a thorough airing."

At the same time, Russell discounted the advantages of greater Soviet rocket thrust, saying: "After all, if a nuclear bomb hits a man or an area with accuracy, it doesn't matter too much whether it got there by a million pounds thrust or seven million pounds."

Russell said closed-door questioning of top civilian and military defense leaders by his Senate committee will have to be delayed for two weeks or more. It originally had been planned for next week.

"It would be folly to do our review of defense posture before Secretary of Defense (Robert S.) McNamara and other new officials have completed their current studies," he said.

Under orders of President Kennedy, McNamara and other Pentagon leaders are completing a rush survey of defense needs and the $42-billion defense budget submitted by former President D. Eisenhower.

Senator Long Hopes To Win Insurance Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., voiced hope Saturday that White House backing may bring victory in his long fight to let World War II and Korean veterans reinstate their lapsed GI life insurance.

President Kennedy has not taken a stand on the measure since entering the White House. But Long pointed out that the chief executive was a co-sponsor of the bill when he was a senator.

Also, Long said, expansion of the House Rules Committee may heighten the bill's chances in the House, where it has been killed four times. With an expanded committee, Long said, "such matters will not remain closed with a handful of representatives but will be aired before the whole House."

Long, who commanded a landing craft as a World War II naval officer, is a member of the Senate Finance Committee which handles veterans programs. The Senate has passed similar legislation four times in the past five years but it has died in House committees. The full House has never voted on the proposal.

Workers Bitter In Brazil Over Seven-Hour Day

It was the penny-pinching new president's first major domestic crisis. Unions representing an estimated half million federal employes complained to Quadros and to Congress that the order is an act of "unjust demagoguery" that will upset the lives of thousands of families.

Socialist Deputy Gerson Bergher charged it is illegal.

Quadros issued his orders Thursday. It said all federal workers would have to work seven hours a day. They have been on a schedule of five or six hours, starting in the late morning or afternoon.

Stock Market Continues In Upward Trend

NEW YORK (AP)—Inflationary psychology ruled as the stock market resumed its upward march this week.

The renewed advance followed a correction in the prior week, the first time in seven weeks that the averages had declined.

Prominent in the news from Washington was the stressing of need to fight unemployment and the business recession. Determination to beef up defense was also made plain. Both of these broad factors meant only one thing to Wall Street—more federal spending.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 12.00 to 651.67.

Trading was heavy. Volume of 23,021,955 shares was a shade below the previous week's total of 23,272,220.

The week's trading began with a moderate decline under semi-holiday conditions due to observance of Lincoln's Birthday.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Technicolor, up 1½ at 18⅛ on 212,500 shares.

There were no signs of faltering this week as investors bid corporate bond prices higher five days in a row. The week ended with a string of nine advances still intact.

U.S. government bond prices returned to the plus column by small fractions. Last week Treasury bonds fell slightly to halt a three-week rise.

For the second week utility bonds were the star of the corporate performance. They moved up half a point in the AP averages. Industrials, which led the way the previous two weeks, remained unchanged on the AP index. More industrial, utility and high grade investment issues reached their highest price level in nearly two years, capping a seven-week advance. The latest gains ranged from ¼ to ¾ of a point for many bonds.

The second lowest daily volume of 1961 during Monday's semi-holiday session pulled weekly trading on the New York Stock Exchange down to $33,464,500, compared with $35,445,000 the previous week. The daily average fell to $6,693,900 from $7,808,200.

Cotton Market Prices Range Up And Down

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures prices started out fast this week, but turned mixed and ended with changes ranging from 55 cents a bale lower to 25 cents a bale higher.

The market's early strength came from demand stimulated by 1961 crop price supports prospects, but many traders apparently began to believe that the prospective price support level had been more or less fully discounted.

In addition, the advance attracted profit-taking. As the market weakened, the uncovering of stop loss orders tended to widen declines.

The consensus in the trade was that the price support level for the new crop would be at 81 per cent of parity, which would result in support price for middling 1-inch cotton at average location of something above the present crop's purchase price of 32.42 cents per pound.

Daily use in January was 31,000 bales compared with 29,000 in December and 36,700 in January 1960, making January the seventh successive month in which the daily rate was lower than a year earlier.

Consumption in the first half of the current season (August through January) came to 4,160,000 bales compared with 4,567,000 in the similar period a year earlier.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday rose to 293,000 bales from 137,000 a week earlier and 275,000 a year earlier. For the current season through Feb. 14 they were estimated at 3,776,000 bales against 3,583,000 to the same time last year.

Buyer's Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Employment agencies in many parts of the country report a "buyer's market" for secretarial help. The business slowdown has caused some firms to cut back on office help and to make greater use of secretarial pools.

The Bank of America reports applications in San Francisco are running 50 per cent ahead of a year ago.

PUSH BUTTON FARMING INCREASES OUTPUT

Machines Replacing Manpower On Farms

Horses have become such an unimportant element in agricultural production that the government has stopped making its annual inventory of the number of work animals in use.

At last count, the number of horses and mules on farms had declined from a peak of more than 25 million head 30 years ago to around three million a year ago.

There has been almost as phenomenal a decline in the use of farm manpower. Latest government reports show farm employment averaged only 7,118,000 in 1960. Twice that many people worked on farms 35 years ago. The decline during the last 10 years was nearly 30 per cent.

Officials figure that if push-button farming continues to advance during the next 10 years as it has during the last decade, farm employment in 1970 may be down to around four million or less.

The advent of the machine age has brought spectacular increases in farm output, and further increases are forecast for the future.

Technological progress is making human labor inefficient. With bigger and better machines, improved production practices, better seeds, more and better fertilizers, and pesticides, it is possible for a single worker to operate many more acres of land than formerly and to care for more livestock.

As a consequence, the number of farms—and hence farmers and family workers—has declined and will continue to decline.

Latest census reports show that 80 per cent of the farms now use tractors. This compared with 68 per cent 10 years ago, 15 per cent 20 years ago and 2 per cent 40 years ago. There are an estimated 5.1 million tractors on farms now compared with 900,000 30 years ago.

There have been similar increases in motor trucks, grain combines and other harvesters, mechanical hay balers, milking machines and other labor-saving devices.

As a result, the hired hand is being displaced. More and more farms are able to carry on with family workers. The number of hired hands employed during 1960 averaged only 1.8 million, or less than half a worker per farm. It used to run around 3.3 million a year.

The decline in the number of farms as well as the number of farmers has been reflected in a sharp increase in the size of farms. The last census showed U.S. farms averaged 308.4 acres in 1959. This compares with 242.2 acres in 1954, 174 in 1940, 148 in 1920 and 133.7 in 1880.

The last census also showed a sharp trend toward specialization in many farm products.

Notwithstanding increases in production, from 1954 to 1959 farms having milk cows declined 39 per cent, those having chickens decreased 36 per cent, farms raising turkeys declined 49 per cent, farms selling eggs dropped 37 per cent, farms raising vegetables for sale decreased 38 per cent, farms harvesting potatoes decreased 52 per cent, and farms harvesting cotton declined 41 per cent.

The degree to which specialization is progressing is shown by census figures reporting that about 80 per cent of the nation's turkeys are produced on only 3,000 farms and about the same percentage of potatoes is grown on 18,000 farms.

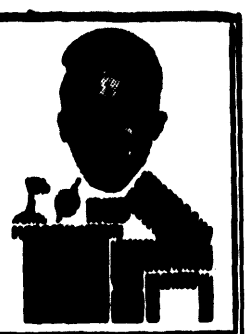
PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER



The Best For Northeast Clinic

There's no question about it. The Spring Football Clinic at Northeast Lonisiana State has to be as good as the best when you have such "professors" as the master of Baylor's great offensive machine and the defensive lieutenants of Paul Dietzel's Louisiana State powerhouse here to tell what makes their systems work.

Jack Rowan, Northeast athletic director, yesterday announced Charles McClendon and George Terry, assistant coaches at LSU, will lecture on defensive football at the March 18 clinic. He had earlier announced acceptance from John Bridgers, athletic director and head football coach at Baylor, as featured offensive lecturer.

Football coaches throughout Louisiana, particularly the high school tutors, are invited to attend this "first of its kind" event on the Northeast State campus.

"I don' think there is need for me to say more and I am sure you will agree that we have lined up one of the best offensive coaches and two of the best defensive coaches in the business," Coach Rowan declared in announcing the completed lineup for his clinic.

McClendon, chief assistant to Deitzel at LSU, is primarily charged with development of the Tigers' defensive line, and the famed "Chinese Bandits" are testimony enough of his success. With LSU since 1953, McClendon previously coached at Kentucky and Vanderbilt after an athletic career that included defensive and duty at Kentucky and Magnolia A & M.

Terry, a member of the LSU staff since 1954, teaches defensive backfield tactics to perfection. After playing experience at George Washington and College of the Ozarks, he coached at Pine Bluff, Ark., and Greenville, Miss., high schools, and at Tufts College.

Bridgers is a spread - T offensive expert who, in two seasons with the Bears, pulled them to a national ranking of fifth place in passing, and led the Southwest Conference in passing, both total offense and defense. Baylor lured him from the Baltimore Colts where he was an assistant coach during the Colts' reign as world professional champions.

Every high school coach, in north Louisiana at least, should accept this opportunity to listen to lectures by the masters.

The program for the March 18 (Saturday) clinic is:

8:30—"The Running Game," lecture by Bridgers.

9:40 —Break.

10:50 —Break.

Noon — Lunch.

1:10 p.m. — "Passing, Screens and Draws," lecture by Bridgers.

2:10 —Break.

2:20 — "Defensing the Passing Game, Roll Out and Back Up, Screens and Draws," lecture by McClendon.

3:20 —Break.

3:30 —"Secondary Pass Defense," lecture by Terry.

The Northeast Boosters Club will host a barbecue supper at 7 p.m., Friday, March 17, at Bancroft's Camp on Cheniere Lake for early arrivals for the clinic.

Because her name inadvertedly omitted from the published all-tourney lineup of a recent tournament, we figured this would be a good way to give the recognition due Judy Clark, a 13 - year - old junior high basketball player of Mer Rouge. After all, not everybody can begin a basketball career as successfully as Judy.

In her very first year of play this daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Clark has already been named to two all - tournament teams. She was recognized at the Morehouse Parish Junior Tournment in Bastrop and at the more recent Sterlington Junior event. Her team is entered in the Goodwill Junior meet starting Thursday.

Sneed, Palmer

Sam Sneed, the last of the old guard greats, and Arnold Palmer, contemporary links sensation, head a list of professional golf stars in quest of $20,000 in prize money in the tenth annual Baton Rouge Open Invitational Golf Tournamet at the Sherwood Forest Country Club, Thursday through Sunday.

Snead, who won the event in 1953 with a record setting 275, will be making his first appearance here since copping that title. Palmer, the defending champion who led all money winners in 1960, is off and running again in his quest for cash. His latest victory in the Phoenix Open pushed his winnings this year over the $12,000 mark.

An added incentive will probably lure many former champions back to Baton Rouge this year. The tournament committee has offered a bonus of at least $1,000 to any former champion who repeats. A $1,000 offer for the first hole - in - one is also added.

In addition to these two stars, many other noblemen of golf will be on hand. Local favorites Jay and Lionel Hebert of Lafayette will return in an attempt to claim their first Baton Rouge title. Jay finished second to Howie Johnson in 1959 and ended in a three-way tie for second behind Palmer last year.

Other top stars expected include Gary Player, the leading money winner on the winter tour; Don January of the $50,000 hole - in - one fame; Tommy Bolt, who finished third in the first Baton Rouge tourney in 1952, and former LSU golfers Bert Weaver, Gardner Dickinson, Jr., Johnav Pott and Freddie Haas.

Tickets for the tournament are on sale at $8.50 for the tournament book which is transferable or $2 for each of the first two days and $3.50 for each of the last two days. Children's tickets are $1.25 for Thursday and Friday and $1.50 for Saturday and Sunday.

FOR BIGGEST SEASON

Baseball Training Opens This Week

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The spring training session that gets into full swing this week finds the 10-club American League preparing for an unprecedented 162-game schedule and the National still operating for one more year on an eight-club 154-game basis.

New clubs at Los Angeles and Washington, plus the shift of the old Washington franchise to Minnesota present a challenge to the expanded American League. Much attention will be focused on the attempts of these new clubs, whose players were culled from the left-overs of the others, to earn a foothold in the league.

Five teams already are hard at work. Early delegations of New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals, Detroit Tigers, Baltimore Orioles and Chicago Cubs have been loosening up for several days. They will be joined in the next 10 days by the complete personnel of all 18 big league teams. The first exhibition games are set for March 11.

The New York Yanks, anxious to show they can win without Stengel and for new manager Ralph Houk, already have uncovered a couple of fine looking rookies in the early camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. They are Charlie Keller, outfielding son of King Kong Keller of Yankee fame, and Pedro Gonzalez, a young infielder from the Dominican Republic. Yankee batterymen are due Sunday and the rest of the team Feb. 28.

Pittsburgh's National League champions and World Series winners have the first call for batterymen to work out Wednesday at Fort Myers, Fla., where Danny Murtaugh will greet his newly acquired lefty, Bobby Shantz. The Bucs are standing pat without other trades although they are bringing up a crop of rookies.

St. Louis, which may provide the big challenge to the Pirates, will be among the last to turn out at St. Petersburg, Feb. 28. However, they have had an advance camp in operation for over a week at Homestead, Fla. The Cards are hopeful of added pitching help from Al Cicotte, purchased from Toronto and a comeback by Bob Miller after his shoulder operation.

Al Dark, a new manager at San Francisco, gets his first look at the Giants Wednesday at Phoenix. Johnny Antonelli, Willie Kirkland and Andre Rogers are gone, but Harvey Kuenn has been added.

Milwaukee's bolstered infield will not be on view until March 1 although Chuck Dressen will have the batterymen at the Bradenton, Fla., camp Friday. Since the season ended, the Braves have been most active, adding shortstop Roy McMillan and Rodgers, second baseman Frank Bolling and Billy Martin while giving up pitchers Juan Pizarro and Joey Jay, centerfielder Billy Bruton and infielder Chuck Cottier among others.

'Bama Fails On Own Court By 2 Points

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Tulane edged Alabama 71-69 in a Southeastern Conference game that went into two overtimes Saturday night.

Gus Wenzel of Tulane took a rebound after Rex Krider's field goal try missed and lobbed it in with three seconds remaining in the second overtime.

With 50 seconds remaining in regular playing time, Krider fired from the side, tying it up at 67-67 and sending the game into the first overtime.

Neither team scored in the entire five minutes of the first extra period. Both teams were deliberate, but each missed at least two good chances to score.

Jim Kerwin of Tulane probably missed the best opportunity with nine seconds left. His was a desperation shot, but he missed.

Alabama hit only 33.3 per cent from the field—26 of 78 attempts—while Tulane was a little better at 41.2 per cent with 33 of 80 attempts.

Tulane coach Cliff Wells used towering Jack Ardon (6-9) in an unusual manner. Ardon shot from the outside and from along the side. He was fairly accurate, hitting 12 of 25 attempts from the field. He was the leading scorer with 26 points but was forced from the game because of fouls with 5:25 remaining in regular play.

Tulane took 61 rebounds against 49 for Alabama, but the Crimsons were most accurate under the baskets.

La. Tech Nips Eagles 56-54 In Home Go

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Georgia Southern rallied for 10 straight points in the final minutes here tonight but it was not enough as the Eagles fell to Louisiana Tech 56-54.

Tech led 54-42 with five minutes to go and a delayed offense nearly proved fatal for the Bulldogs as Georgia Southern reeled - off 10 consecutive points.

With Tech holding a 54-52 lead Ron Futrell hit one of two free throws with 41 seconds remaining. Then Ron McNabb got a charity toss for Tech before Connie Lewis hit a field goal for the Georgians as the horn sounded.

Connie Lewis was top point producer with 22 markers for Southern and J. E. Rowe had 12. Joe Daigle paced Tech with 18 points and Futrell got 16.

Tech sprinted to an early lead only to have the Southern second team enter the game and take the advantage 19-18. The Bulldogs came back to leave the court at intermission with a 35-30 edge.

The Georgia club got only four points in the first 10 minutes of the second half as Tech maintained an eight to 12 point margin until the Eagle rally in the closing minutes.

3-Year Suspension

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, has been asked to support a 3-year suspension from Caribbean play and $1,000 fine levied against shortstop Luis Aparicio of the Chicago White Sox for leaving his Maracaibo team in the Inter-American Winter Series.

Aparicio was penalized Friday by Guillermo Angulo Lopez, president of the Western League, for leaving the Rapinos team of Maracaibo before its final game against Valencia. Valencia won the game, 2-1, and took the Inter-American Series.

Lopez said he has asked Frick to take the fine out of Aparicio's White Sox salary and has urged that Aparicio also be prevented from playing in Puerto Rico.

BILLY CANNON, the former LSU All-American now a halfback with the professional Houston Oilers, is pictured with five members of the Winnsboro High School football team who were honored at Winnsboro grid banquet Friday night. Cannon was guest speaker. Wildcat gridders winning special recognition were Danny Magee, most valuable defensive back and best scholastic average; Joe Henry, most valuable offensive back; Burt Boyle, most valuable defensive lineman; Hines Davis, most valuable offensive lineman; and Henry Parks, most dependable player. HEBERT BEHIND

Sullivan Now In Lead At Tucson Golf Tourney

Charles Sifford, five-time national Negro champ, was just a stroke behind at 200. Tommy Bolt, who complained about condition of the greens, was three strokes off the pace at 202. Gary Player, the current leading money-winner; Jay Hebert, co-leader after 36 holes; Marty Furgol, Jackie Cupid and Paul McGuire were grouped four strokes off the pace at 203.

Sullivan has put together rounds of 66, 65 and 68 for the par 70, 6,464-yard El Rio Golf and Country Club course. In his 2½ years on the pro circuit he has won very little money and never before led a PGA event after 54 holes.

"I got off to a mighty lucky start by dropping 15 foot putts for birdies on the first two holes," he said. "I ran into trouble with a couple of bogies but my approach on 18 helped make up for them."

Sifford, like Sullivan, has never won a regulation PGA event. He felt his rounds of 69-36-65 left him in an excellent position for Sunday's final round.

"I couldn't complain about a single shot I made all day," he said.

At no time was Sifford in trouble. At no time did he have more than a 10-foot putt for his five birdies.

Bolt, former U.S. Open champ who has won this event twice, finished with a birdie for a 7-under-par 69 to go with his previous rounds of 69 and 64.

"I was playing badly and putting worse," he said. "But I still have a chance to win this thing. All I have to do is figure out how to get them in the hole."

Hebert, reigning PGA champ, rambled all over the course taking four bogies and two birdies on the first nine and coming in with an even-par 35 for his 65-66-72—203.

Cupit is playing in his second professional tournament. Last week he won $1,250 at Phoenix. He and Frank Wharton, the first-round leader, were golfing stars at the University of Houston.

Northeast Frosh Topple Centenary

Benny Hollis' Northeast State College frosh made short work of one of the state's top first year outfits last night with a 87-81 victory over Centenary's Gentlets.

Gamble collected 27 points, Hawkins hit 21, Hagan sank 13 and George got 12 to pace the Tribe.

The victory gave Northeast a 2-1 record for the year and handed Centenary its third loss in 13 starts.

The Indians, with Hagan, playing in only his second basketball game doing most of the rebounding, along with Walker and George, pushed into a 52-41 lead at the half and held on after Centenary had tied it up at 60-60.

Cecil Upshaw, former all-stater at Bossier City, led the Centenary rebounding. Dickie Crow collected five points in the Northeast attack.

Robinson Held On Concealed Weapons Count

CINCINNATI (AP)—Frank Robinson, Cincinnati baseball player, was held to the grand jury Friday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Robinson was arrested last week in a restaurant after he allegedly drew a pistol. The 25-year-old star said he drew the weapon after Arthur Messer, a cook, threatened him.

Police Court Judge John W. Keefe held Robinson to the grand jury after William Geoghegan, attorney for the athlete, waived preliminary examination. Robinson, the National League's slugging champion of 1960, was released on $1,000 bond.

Robinson and two freiends had gone to the restaurant shortly after midnight last Thursday. One of the men, William Webb, was arrested after an argument with two other customers, according to Patrolman Howard Simpson.

Robinson went to the police station and porvided bail for Webb, who was charged with disorderly conduct.

The men then returned to the restaurant and police again were called when Messer reported the pistol drawing incident.

Patrolman Simpson said he found the weapon in Robinson's coat pocket and arrested him.

Robinson said he carried the pistol as protection because he parked his automobile in an isolated, dark place at night.

Bethea-Folley Bout Set

Jonesville Takes First In 5-B Final

SICILY ISLAND, La. (Special) — Jonesville won a skin-of-the-teeth 62-58 squeaker over Harrisonburg for boys' honors in the District 5-B Tournament here last night while Crowville's girls bumped Harrisonburg 57-52.

Brooks copped 21 markers for Jonesville and Booth 22 for Harrisonburg in boys' play and Crowville counted heavily on Pierce's 40 in the girls' win. Randall, however, almost matched her efforts, scoring 34 for Harrisonburg.

Named to the 10-man All-Tournament team were Adams, Columbia; Booth, Harrisonburg; S. Booth, Harrisonburg; Krause, Sicily Island; Weeks, Sicily Island;

Wood, St. Joseph; Brooks, Walker, and Richard, Jonesville; and Bruce, Vidalia.

Selected on a 12-girl All-Tournament squad were Pierce and Peters, Crowville; Wright and Randall, Harrisonburg; Sewell and Cox, Gilbert; Garrett, Baskin, McMillan, Jonesville; May, Grayson; Cullum, and Smith, Newellton and Wells, Sicily Island.

Judges Selected

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The Nevada Athletic Commission Saturday selected the referee and judges who will preside at the March 4 Gene Fullmer-Sugar Ray Robinson fight.

The two judges will be local men and the referee will be from out of town, the commission said. It said the referee will be brought to Las Vegas under a pseudonym "so no pressure can be brought against him."

The commission said the names of the referee and judges won't be disclosed until 7 p.m. the night of the fight.

Aparicio Gets Suspension For Going AWOL

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—Luis Aparicio, crack shortstop of The Chicago White Sox, has been suspended from playing baseball in the Caribbean area for three years and fined $1,000 for abandoing his team before the final game in the Inter-America Series.

Guillermo Angulo Lopez, president of the Western League, said Aparicio demanded $500 before he would play with the Rapinos team of Maracaibo in the final game against Valencia. His demand was rejected. Valencia won the game, 2-1, and took the series.

Aparicio refused to comment on the incident and it was reported he would fly north Saturday to join the White Sox.

In Chicago, Ed Short, White Sox publicity director, said the club could not comment "without knowing all the details of the case."

Aparicio has been regarded a holdout, although Short reported the flashy shortstop still has not returned the one contract sent him, calling for an increase over last season.

The offer was around $30,000 and Aparicio has said he wants $40,000.

The Neville - Jonesboro Hodge junior varsity basketball game played in Jonesboro Friday night was won by Neville and not by Jonesboro Hodge as reported.

The Monroe junior Tigers downed the host juniors by a 48-37 margin, with Baker and Garrett each scoring 10 points to lead the win-

Auburn Too Hot For LSU In 69-65 Tilt

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn set a school accuracy record Saturday night in hitting 75 per cent of its field shots to edge Louisiana State University 69-65 in a Southeastern Conference game.

The previous Auburn and NCAA record was listed as 70 per cent in Auburn's game against Florida last season.

Auburn dropped in 27 of 36 field goal shots to knock LSU from second place in the SEC. The Plainsmen jumped out to a 10-0 lead, built it to 19-5 and then had to fight to hold on as LSU rallied.

LSU never led and had tied only once at 22-22, but LSU kept it close to the finish.

LSU pulled within one point with seven minutes to go. Then Jimmy Fibbe hit a jump shot for Auburn and LSU stayed from two to six points behind from there on.

After Auburn had built its early lead, it went into a freeze with 11 minutes remaining in the first half. This almost was disastrous, as LSU stole the ball time after time and made 10 straight points.

Gents Bounce Loyola 72-51 On Rebounds

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Resurging Centenary, using superior rebounding strength to great advantage, defeated Loyola of New Orleans 72-51 Saturday night.

Centenary ran off an unbroken streak of 10 points midway in the second half and after that it was no contest.

Earlier, Loyola penetrated the Gents' offense at times to shave the Centenary lead, but was never ahead.

But 6-6 Dale Van Bibber with 20 points and 6-8 Jackie Crawford with 16 points controlled the boar and led Centenary to victory.

Crawford pulled down 17 rebounds and Van Bibber 10 as the Gents led in that category 50-33.

After a mid-season slump, Centenary has hit the victory trail again. Earlier this week the Gents downed Mississippi Southern, the nation's fourth-ranked small college team. The Gents, classified as a major Southern independent, now have an 11-11 mark.

TUNNEY BAYLES
Shows Judo Trophy

SOUTHWEST AAU

Twin Cities' Man Wins Judo Crown

Judo, as a sport, has few followers here, but the Twin Cities can claim a champion in Tunney Bayles, West Monroe, who a week ago won the Southwest AAU judo crown for 140-to-160-pounders at the annual tournament in Dallas, Tex.

Bayles, 29 years of age and three months out of eight years service in two different military branches, won seven matches Saturday a week ago in his drive for the championship of his class. He competed as an honorary member of the Fort Worth YMCA which tied the Austin (Tex.) Judo Club for first place in team competition.

Currently employed as a steeplejack painting a watertower in an eastern section of the city, Bayles has his application in for a job as an FAA control tower operator and expects assignment "at any time" somewhere in the seven-state area his application covers.

A Ouachita Parish High graduate of 1949, his high school athletics was confined to baseball under former Lion coach Jim Hodgins, and football with Norfolk Navy and Marion Military Institute of Alabama. Boxing became his main hobby sport 12 years ago, and he fought Golden Gloves tournaments for ten years and was a regimental middleweight champion while in service. Hitches in service included four years of navy and four in the air force.

But Bayles decided he is too old at 29 for a continued boxing career, and has been working at judo for 16 months, getting into the work with the Strategic Air Command in Dallas, Tex., and working on the side with civilians.

"A man can work almost indefinitely in judo," declared Bayles who is interested in keeping up training here. "I went to the YMCA here, but their mat isn't really big enough for judo.

"Too, judo isn't the brutal sport it is often painted to be. In tournament competition the main idea is to get control and put your opponent on the mat as quick as possible. It does not mean we're using a lot of crippling or objectionable tactics to win. Too many mothers are denying their sons the benefits of judo training because they think of it as something brutal.

"In fact, I gave up boxing for judo because it is a sport I can compete in longer. Judo is a science of self protection."

The Dallas tournament last week lasted ten hours and crowned champions in four weight divisions — 140 pounds and under, 140-to-160 (Bayles' class), 160-to-180, and unlimited.

Spearsville, Marion Win Undergrad

SPEARSVILLE, La. (Special)—Spearsville's boys and Marion's girls used a sharpshooter apiece to romp home to final victories in the Undergraduate Tourney here last night.

Joey Barron hit a remarkable 50 points to single - handidly lead Spearsville over Neville 68-60 in the boys final. He scored 26 earlier in the night as Spearsville laced Farmerville 59-40.

For Marion's girls it was Wanda Brazier scoring 26 in their 43-21 finalle win over Linville. She also led the 59-44 thrashing of Neville earlier by hitting 39.

Linville downed Spearsville's girls 32-20 in the first semi-final frey with Peterson and Murphy chopping 11 apiece. Futched canned 22 for the losers..

Neville nipped Hico 45-41 in the other boys prelim. Ray Baker notched 14 for the young Tigers while Ken Murphy had identical marks for Hico.

Heavy-Hitting Al Smith Signs

CHICAGO (AP)—Al Smith, the Chicago White Sox heavy-hitting outfielder, Saturday became No. 21 on the club to sign a 1961 contract.

Smith said he had negotiated a substantial salary raise, but didn't say how much. It was guessed Smith signed for around $30,000.

Last season, the 33-year-old Smith led his team in hitting with a .315 average, ending the season second behind Boston's Pete Runnels in the American League. He was third in the league in RBI with 72 and hit 12 home runs.

Men's Doubles

Archery Meet Set For Tech On March 24

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Contestants from Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas will compete in the first indoor archery tournament in the south to be held at Louisiana Tech here on March 24-25.

There will be competition in high school, college and open divisions, according to George B. Hogg, head of the department of health and physical education at Tech, sponsor of the tourney.

Hogg said the Chicago Round system will be used in which each contestant shoots 16 ends from 20 yards at 16-inch, four-color targets.

There will be both free style and instinctive shooting for both men and women in the college and open divisions and for boys only in the high school division.

Trophies will be presented to first, second and third place winners in each division and each style of shooting. First, second and third place trophies will also go to champion teams.

Hogg said that queries about the tourney have been received from archery enthusiasts throughout the Ark-La-Tex and that entry blanks are now being mailed. Blanks may be obtained by contacting Hogg at Louisiana Tech. A number of clubs have already indicated they will participate in the meet, Hogg said.

Present plans are for two shootings each day at 3:30 and 6 p.m. All high school and college divisions will shoot Friday and open division contestants will shoot on Saturday.

The tourney will be held in the 5,000 seat Memorial gymnasium on the campus here.

Mortimer Wins

LONDON (AP) — Anglea Mortimer defeated Christine Truman 2-6, 6-1, 6-4 Saturday for the British Women's indoor tennis title. Previously this winter Miss Mortimer had won the German, French and Scandinavian indoor crowns.

The men's title went to Alan Pickard, also of England, who defeated Manuel Santana of Spain 6-1, 6-3, 6 3.

Buckeyes Get Big Scare By Iowa Cagers

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Top-ranked Ohio State scored two buckets on stolen passes in the final two minutes Saturday night for a 62-61 decision which saved the undefeated Buckeyes from defeat at the hands of Iowa's revamped basketball team.

Ohio State, winning its 20th this season and 25th in succession over a two-year span, grabbed the lead for the first time with 2:08 left when Larry Siegfried stole an errant Iowa pass and dropped in a layup that put the Buckeyes ahead 60-59.

Garry Gearhart broke up another Iowa pattern with 1:30 left for an easy bucket which pushed the Buckeyes ahead 62-59 before Iowa's Don Nelson—the only regular left after classroom failures sidelined the other Iowa starters—cut the gap to 62-61 with a tip-in with 45 seconds remaining.

The Hawks missed a chance to make basketball history when Nelson's 12-foot jump shot hit the rim and bounced away just before the final gun.

The loss was a stunning blow to the Hawkeyes, who had beaten Indiana and Wisconsin with their new line-up. They led 34-22 just before the half against the Buckeyes and kept the lead until All-America Jerry Lucas tipped in a shot with 7:40 left to boost Ohio State to a 50-50 tie.

Iowa moved back in front by seven points, 59-52, but John Havelicek's basket and Siegfried's two free throws and two field goals boosted the Buckeyes into the lead.

The conquest all but clinched the Big Ten Conference title for Ohio State, which has a 10-0 league record. The loss was Iowa's second in eight Big Ten games and left the ninth-ranked Hawkeyes with a 14-4 season mark.

Ohio State outshot Iowa, hitting 47 per cent of its field goals to 43 for the Hawkeyes. However, Iowa won the battle of rebounds against the taller Buckeyes, 35-23. Nelson was the leading rebounder with 14. Lucas had 11.

Nelson hit nine of 12 free throws and added nine field goals. Lucas had a dismal night at the free throw line, connecting on only one of seven charity shots.

Grambling Is Big 99-75 Wiley Beater

MARSHALL, Texas (Special) — Nurtured by a chance to participate in their fourth national basketball tournament in as many years, the Grambling Tigers routed Wiley, 99-75, here last night.

Acclaimed the nation's sixth ranked small college team by the Associated Press, Grambling sprinted to a 41-35 intermission margin and applied steady pressure in the final 20 minutes.

Led by its NAIA All-America Rex Tippit and Charles Hardnett, the visitors bombarded the nets for 55 per cent by hitting 41 of 71 field goal attempts.

Four Tigers hit for double figures. Hardnett and Hershel West took top honors with 24 points apiece. Tippitt topped in 20 and big Willis Reed looped 19. George Hamilton paced Wiley with 21.

Southern Team Tops NSC Five By 14 Points

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi Southern, the nation's fourth-ranked small college team, defeated traditional rival Northwestern (La.) State College 68-54 Saturday night.

The win was Southern's 20th against two defeats. NSC now has a 14-10 record.

Southern jumped into an early lead and was never headed. At the half, Southern led 35-32.

After building the lead to 16 points early in the second half the Southerners hit a dry streak for five minutes as NSC scored nine straight points to cut the margin to 48-41. But Southern regained its touch and pulled away.

Bill Lundberg led Southern with 20 points. Phil Haley was high point man for NSC with 14.

Southern had a 43-39 edge in rebounds, and hit 25 of 59 from the floor for 42 per cent to NSC's 20 for 34 per cent.

Forest Quint, Lake Providence Girls Triumph

PIONEER, La. (Special) — Forest won the district 4-B basketball championship here last night with a 70-45 victory over Kilbourne in the meet finals. Larry Butler scored 30 points to pace the winners and Scotty Hendricks got 13 for the losers.

In the girls' final game Lake Providence gained the championship with a 77-38 win over Pioneer. Betty Johns, with 40 points, was high for the winners and Linda Stewart, with 27 markers, led Pioneer.

THOMAS LOSES AGAIN

No More Non-Believers On Quality Of Brumel's Jump

NEW YORK (AP) — If there are any non-believers in the house on the quality of Valery Brumel's high jumping, please take leave—he is great, just plain great.

Brumel, an 18-year-old Russian, and Thomas, a 19-year-old American, clashed Friday for the first time since last year's Olympics when they met in the New York Athletic Club Games at Madison Square Garden.

Brumel, sandy haired and handsome, cleared 7 feet 3 inches, which equaled Thomas' best indoor performance. Thomas still holds the official world record of 7-3¾, but Brumel climbed over 7-4½ three weeks ago in Leningrad, jumping indoors on a dirt floor.

When the bar was raised to 7-2, only Brumel and Thomas remained in the competition. Both had cleared 7-1.

But Thomas missed three times at 7-2, and Brumel cleared it on his first shot. Then the bar went up to 7-3. Brumel missed twice and the crowd of 15,930 that packed Madison Square Garden moaned. The spectators were with the Russian.

On the third try over he went and the crowd went wild. Brumel hardly wasted a minute before ordering the bar to 7-5. But he missed on all three tries.

"I thought I had it on the first jump," he said through an interpreter, "but you never can be sure.

"I like the board takeoff, but music disturbed me a little. I'm not used to that in Russia. Also Madison Square Garden was a little stuffy."

Did watching Thomas make him nervous?

"No," he said. "It's just a habit of mine. No matter who my opponent is, I don't watch him."

He added that he liked the general idea of indoor meets.

"I was enjoying myself so much watching the races," he said, "that I almost forgot I was scheduled to jump against one of the greatest high jumpers in the world.

"I know Thomas can go higher than he did. I don't know if I can keep beating him, but I'll try."

"If anything was wrong with me," he observed, "it was my takeoff. Otherwise, I was all right."

Brumel and Thomas meet twice more, in the National AAU Championships next Saturday and the Knights of Columbus meet on March 3. Brumel beat Thomas in the Olympics. The Russian collected the silver medal with a 7-1 jump and Thomas was third with 7-¼.

The Brumel-Thomas battle overshadowed Ralph Boston's indoor record broad jump of 26 feet 1¾ inches. Boston, the Tennesseean who holds all the world broad jump marks, had a 25-10 indoor mark pending. He hit 25-11½, then on his last try, became the first broad jumper ever to soar over 26 feet indoors.

In the process, Brumel's teammate, Igo Ter-Ovanesyan, fouled on all six of his jumps, so he batted .000. The third Russian, Evgeny Momotkov, also fizzled. He finished third in the 2-mile behind 31-year-old Peter McArdle of the New York A.C., who won in 8:52.2

Also overshadowed was Istvan Rozsavolgyi's fifth srtaight mile victory since arriving here three weeks ago. Rosy's time was 4:04, his best to date.

Gold Medalist Fails In Try At Swim Mark

Konrads, however, retained his Australian championship in 2:04.5, far shy of his own Aussie record of 2:01.6 and the 2:01.5 world time of Japanese Tsuyoshi Yamaka.

Fellow Olympian David Dixon finished second in 2:04.7. Dixon kept the heat on Konrads all the way, and the defending champ almost left his finishing burst until too late. Konrads and Dixon were level at the turn into the final 50 meter lap.

With about 10 yards to go, Dixon was a touch ahead, but Konrads hurled himself into a final spurt good for the thrilling but disappointingly slow victory. Allan Wood was third in 2:05.8.

There was also disappointment for the other half of the famed Konrads teen-agers. Sister Ilsa, rated only behind Dawn Fraser here at 400 meters, was beaten out of second place by fast-finishing freestyler Helen Bartier.

As expected, Miss Fraser won easily in 4:49, compared with her best time of 4:47.4. Miss Bartier did 4:56.5, two-tenths of a second better than Ilsa.

Top surprise of the first big night of the Australian championships was defending champion Jan Andrews' time in the women's 200-meter butterfly. Her 2:40.5 was best ever by an Australian resident and only two-tenths off the Aussie record held by Sylvia Ruuska of the United States.

The championship continue next Tuesday and Saturday.

In quarterfinal activity Central jumped on Trinity 39-17. Warner was credited with 14 Central points and Pilgreen seven for Trinity.

The Speedsters entered the semi - finals by downing the Globetrotters' 25-12 with Shaw showing 11 points. Maddox had half the losers points with six.

Finish In Tie

SYDNEY (AP) — Al Thomas, holder of the world record, and Dave Power finished in a virtual tie Saturday, but judges said Thomas was the winner of the national Australian 3-mile run. The times were identical—13 minutes, 49 seconds. Thomas' world record is 13:10.8.

Plane Strike Dims Glow Of Track Meet

By KELSO STURGEON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The airline strike in the East threatened to take most of the glamour out of the first Mason - Dixon Games Saturday night.

As starting time neared for the track and field meet it was uncertain whether Wilma Rudolph, winner of three Olympic gold medals, or Olympic champion broad jumper Ralph Boston had made plane connections to get out of New York.

Another Olympic broad jumper, Bo Roberson, notified meet officials that he had given up on trying to leave New York.

Many of the athletes counted on to inaugurate the meet competed Friday in the New York Athletic Club meet in Madison Square Garden. Meet officials had no way of determining how many of them were stranded.

But one of the meet's top attractions, Ernie Cunliffe, has been here since Friday and indicated he would go for an indoor mile record.

The Stanford graduate student said this would be the last time this indoor season he would be competing in the mile, and added he was going all-out to break Ron Delany's 4:01.4 indoor mark.

Cunliffe said a record was possible because of the track's "nicely banked curves" and the fact it had only eight laps to the mile instead of the usual 11.

The eight-lap track also was an attraction for another distance runner, Al Lawrence of the University of Houston.

The Australian Olympian was out to regain the 2-mile indoor mark he held until this year when New Zealander Murray Halberg toured the distance in 8:34.4. This was almost 12 seconds better than Lawrence's old mark of 8:46.1.

The 2-mile relay team of Buffalo, N.Y. State College was enticed to the meet by prospect of setting a record in that event on the new track. Manhattan set the record in 7:32.8 two weeks ago in the Millrose Games in New York.

Rinaldi Set For Title Try With Moore

ROME (AP) — Giulio Rinaldi, handsome 26-year-old Italian, changed his mind Saturday and agreed to meet champion Archie Moore of San Diego for the world light heavyweight title in New York's Madison Square Garden on Saturday, June 10.

Rinaldi, who upset Moore in a non-title bout here four months ago, will receive $25,000. He held back in an attempt to negotiate a larger purse but Saturday finally signed the contract brought here by Lew Burston, representing Madison Square Garden.

"I thought I should get more money because so much will be taken out in American income tax," Rinaldi said. "But my manager (Luigi Proietti) convinced me that I shouldn't pass up this chance to fight for the title. I'm sure I will give Moore a good fight, and I hope to win."

Rinaldi will have to pay about $3,000 in American taxes. He said he will leave for New York early in May to begin training for the scheduled 15-rounder. He will be accompanied by his manager and a sparring partner, Luigi Napoleoni.

Moore signed for the bout Thursday. The champion, who was ordered to sign for a title bout immediately or lose his title recognition in New York State. will get an estimated $40,000 plus a cut of the television money. He was stripped of his crown in National Boxing Association states for failure to defend it in a stipulated time.

The bout will be Moore's ninth defense of the crown he won from Joey Maxim in December 1952. He last defended it Aug. 12, 1959, stopping Yvon Durelle of Canada in three rounds.

Champ Defends Heavy Title In 15-Round Win

DORTMUND, Germany (AP)—Wales' Dick Richardson, successfully defended his European heavyweight boxing title Saturday night with an easy 15-round decision over German challenger Hans Kalbfell.

The 26-year old champion, who weighed 209½ pounds, floored the 30-year-old German for the count of nine in the seventh round. But Kalbfell weathered the onslaught and came back strong in the 10th, 11th and 12th rounds. Kalbfell weighed 210¾ pounds.

Swiss Referee Henri Nicole's card was not disclosed, but The Associated Press gave the champion seven rounds, Kalbfell four and called four even.

Lowrey Takes Players' Golf Tourney Lead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Peanuts Lowrey, battling a stubborn virus as well as tough greens, fired a 3-over-par 73 Saturday for a 54-hole total of 223 and the lead in the National Baseball Players Golf Tournament at Miami Springs.

The stocky little coach of the Philadelphia Phillies, one stroke off the pace going into the third round of the 72-hole medal play, finished with two birdies in the last four holes to take a one-stroke lead over Manager Paul Richards of the Baltimore Orioles.

"My whole family had the flu when I left Los Angeles Tuesday," said Lowrey. "My neck glands were swollen yesterday, but I feel better today."

Richards, continuing his steady brand of play, shot a 74 for a three-round total of 224.

"I played it too safe today," said Richards. I didn't put enough stick to it."

The young right-hander lost his putting touch on the first nine, scoring a 7-over-par 42, but he finished strong with birdies on the 15th, 16th and 17th holes. The last was featured by a sensational 100-foot shot from out of bounds.

In fifth with 229 were Jim Davenport, Giants third baseman, and former National League pitcher Jim Hearn. Of the first five, only Dark has played in this Miami-sponsored tournament previously.

The most popular players to the shirt-sleeved crowd of 6,500 were Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees. Mantle had a creditable 82 for a 54-hole score of 252. Berra had his worst round of the tournament, an 87, for a 251 total going into Sunday's final round.

Mize Eager To Return As Batting Coach

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Big John Mize, one of the standout sluggers in major league history, is eager to return to baseball as a batting coach but so far he has had little luck.

The former St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants and Yankee first baseman disclosed Saturday he had applied for a coaching job with the Yankees under Manager Ralph Houk but his application went unanswered. Wally Moses, former American League outfielder, got the job.

"What annoyed me most about it," said Mize, "is that it was Houk that suggested the job to me in the first place. I called him for some World Series tickets and asked if the rumors about him replacing Casey Stengel as manager were correct. He said he felt he had a pretty good chance and asked me if I would be interested in a coaching job with the Yankees if he became manager. I told him I would.

"Later, after Houk had the job, I called the Yankee office for Houk's telephone number. I was told they didn't have it. They told me the same thing when I called the clubhouse, but I did get Houk's home address. I sent him a wire but got no answer."

Mize said he bore no grudge against Houk or anyone else in baseball. The good natured, easy-going Georgian owns a 77-acre orange, tangerine and grapefruit farm near Deland, Fla., but his heart is still in baseball. He'd like to join the new National League club in New York where he feels he could be of invaluable aid to the youngsters with batting tips. Although a slugger, John was regarded as one of the smartest hitters in baseball.

The big fellow, 48, played his last year in 1953. He retired with more than 2,000 hits and 359 home runs. As a Giant and a Cardinal, he led the National League in home runs and runs batted in; as a Yankee he was the American League's most feared pinchhitter.

Longhorns Top SMU Cagers By 71-65 Margin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Longhorns, behind the crisp outside shooting of Donnie Lasiter and Butch Skeete, trimmed the Southern Methodist Mustangs 71-65 in a nationally televised basketball game Saturday.

The aggressive rebounding of Al Almanza also aided Texas.

The victory kept alive the Longhorns' faint hopes of defending their Southwest Conference championship and knocked SMU out of the running.

Texas held the lead the entire way although SMU pulled to within one point on five occasions. John Larson sank a long set shot to move the Mustangs up to 64-63.

Almanza got free close under the basket seconds later and made it 65-63 Texas.

Lasiter was high point man with 21 points, and Almanza dumped in 18. Jan Loudermilk hit 18 for the Mustangs and James Thompson finished with 13.

Champ Believes Timing Slower

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Floyd Patterson sparred three rounds Saturday and afterward said his timing was off and he was slower than in Friday's workout.

The heavyweight boxing champion said he might put in a little work on his usual days off to smooth out rough edges in his preparation for the March 13 title bout here with Ingemar Johansson.

Saturday morning, Patterson ran about 4 miles, then returned to his quarters in Miami Beach hotel for the sparring workout.

Patterson boxed one round each with Alvin Green, John Henry and Wilson Hannibal. Green said afterward Patterson had gotten in some pretty stiff blows and seemed to be hitting as well with either hand.

The champ seemed to be holding up well in Miami's near-80 degree weather. In fact, he said, "I've trained other places that seemed hotter."

Return Title Match Slated At Roll-Arena

Adrian Ballengeon has another date with the Black Panther tonight with the Southern Heavyweight championship belt at stake at Roll-Arena.

Champ Ballengeon was downed last week by the Panther after the jungle cat won the first fall and then held off Adrian until the time limit was up. The belt was not awarded to the Panther because the bout went only one fall. Tonight's main event struggle is set for an hour time limit with two falls to win.

In the semifinal match Lu Kim, the giant 275 pounder from Manchuria, will throw his weight at Jumping Johnny King. The big man dumped the lighter Al Massey in last week's 15-minute opening match, and will use his weight advantage again tonight King.

Grambling To Play 31 Game Diamond Card

Actually, there was nothing radical about his action. Talentwise, the Tigers have no superiors in the Southwestern Conference and it wouldn't surprise too many folks if they acquitted this confidence with a league title.

The fact that he spurned use of the proverbial crying towel has rivals deducing that this is the year for his team to hit its peak.

But realist Jones may have to red-circle his timetable for the future as Grambling will need the audacity of a second-story man to stalk through such persistent hecklers as Prairie View, Arkansas A&M and Southern.

The season opens here March 6th with Alcorn A&M, and Grambling must make a creditable showing in four games with outside foes before swinging into the conference race.

The complete schedule follows. It includes 24 SWAC games with doubleheaders providing headaches in each series.

March 24-25, Prairie View, Prairie View, Texas.

April 7-9, Southern University, Baton Rouge.

April 14-15, Arkansas AM&N, Pine Bluff, Ark.

April 20-21, Jackson State College, Grambling.

May 5-6, Texas College, Grambling.

May 10-11, Texas Southern, Grambling.

May 15-16, Alcorn A&M, Alcorn, Miss.

Lakers Hold Second Place Lead With Win

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers protected their second-place lead in the Western Division of the National Basketball Association Saturday by defeating the New York Knickerbockers 121-106 in a nationally televised game at Madison Square Garden.

Elgin Baylor and Frank Selvy each scored 28 points and paced the Los Angeles spurt that gave the Lakers their sixth victory over the Knicks in nine meetings.

Selvy scored 20 points in the first half and was a key performer in the Lakers' second-quarter rally that opened a 14-point lead, 60-46.

Selvy and Jerry West stole the ball consistently as the Lakers overcame a 10-point deficit by scoring 13 straight points early in the second quarter to take the lead, 35-31.

Long Race

MORZINE, France (AP)—Jean Mermet won the 15-kilometer race in the French National Ski Championships Saturday. His time was 46 minutes, 7.1 seconds.

U.S. Hoping To Cut Off Congo Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration has decided that United Nations forces in the Congo should be empowered to block outside arms or troop [illegible] as threatened by the [illegible].

Under this [illegible] the use of force in an [illegible] to isolate the Congo from [illegible] interference is being strongly supported, along with other measures aimed at stopping the civil war raging there.

President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk attached the highest priority to evolving measures for meeting the Congo crisis with all possible speed.

They are reported fearful that a breakdown of the U.N. peacemaking mission in the face of heavy attack by the Soviet Union would prove to be a disaster plunging most of Africa into the cold war and endangering world peace.

But there is some hopeful feeling in high quarters here that the Soviet government badly overplayed its hand following disclosure of the slaying of former Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba. Early this week, Moscow demanded withdrawal of U.N. forces from the Congo within a month and pledged assistance to the rebel, pro-Communist regime of Antoine Gizenga, a Lumumba lieutenant.

Kennedy took an exactly opposite stand at his news conference Wednesday. He warned the Russians against direct intervention in the Congo outside the United Nations and pledged U.S. support to the U.N. Congo mission. Kennedy also reaffirmed U.S. backing for the regime of President Joseph Kasavubu.

With the two great powers thus squared off over the huge, primitive and mineral-rich land in the heart of Africa, other nations at U.N. headquarters in New York suddenly began to strive harder for a diplomatic solution.

Startling to officials here, it became clear Saturday, was the action of the United Arab Republic in joining Friday with Ceylon and Liberia to propose authorizing the use of force by U.N. troops to bring unruly native armies under control.

The U.A.R. has been regarded as a strong supporter of Soviet efforts to promote the Lumumbist movement. There have been persistent reports that U.A.R. cooperation was effective in delivering some Communist arms to the rebel forces at Stanleyville.

ALMANAC

Today is Sunday, Feb. 19, the 50th day of the year with 315 more in 1961.

The moon is approaching it's first quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1473, famed astronomer Copernicus was born at Torun, Poland.

Also in 1945, war mobilization director James Byrnes ordered a midnight curfew for all places of intertainment.

Thought for today: Daniel Webster said: "Knowledge, in truth, is the great sun in the firmament. Life and power are scattered with all its beams."

Soviets Report On Venus Rocket

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced Saturday night the 1,148-pound station it fired aloft last Sunday will pass Venus "at a distance of not more than 180,000 kilometers (about 112,000 miles) from the center of Venus."

This was the first word from Soviet authorities on what would happen to the device when it reached the orbit of the bright planet.

The previous Soviet statements merely had said it was aimed toward Venus and would reach the area in the latter half of May.

The prediction of the rocket's passage by Venus was based on a radio report which was received from the station Friday.

At that time the station was 1,180,625 miles from the earth and speeding away at 2.4 miles per second.

The announcement, released by Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the station is traveling on a course "close to the calculated one." There was no other indication just how close or how far off.

Union Rejects Boost In Pay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Los Angeles local of the Plasterers' Union Friday night rejected a 12½ cent-an-hour wage boost offered by employers.

Plasterers now earn $4.25 an hour. The raise was to have been effective May 1 under the union's contract with the Plasterers Association.

"We turned down the extra money in order to support President Kennedy's plea to hold the line on inflation," said Chapman, "and because it may stimulate construction work."

The vote was taken at a membership meeting attended by 200 of the union's 1,376 members. It will be binding on all.

Jonesville Church Scene Of Ford-Rison Wedding

Sanctuary of the Jonesville Methodist church was scene of the ceremony Saturday, February 4 which united in marriage Miss Peggy Joan Rison and Miller C. Ford Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Rison of Jonesville and Mr. Ford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miller C. Ford Sr., Lake Village, Arkansas.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alvin P. Smith following a program of nuptial music by Miss Glenda Kelly as guests were seated by ushers Claiborne Hollis and Ken McRee of Dallas, Texas.

Centering the altar was a large arrangement of yellow tulips, King Alfreds and ferns and the chancel rails were entwined with ivy and pittosporum.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a ballerina length gown of ivory peau de soie styled with scoop neckline and short sleeves, with an insert of self-material marking the empire waistline. The bodice and full skirt were embellished with reembroidered Alencon lace, encrusted with pearls. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was attached to a peau de soie headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. James Kennedy of Ferriday, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor and Mrs. Barbara Merchant of Walters, was bridesmaid. They wore identical ballerina frocks of gold peau de soie and carried bouquets of white carnations. Marilyn Kennedy, wearing a gold pinafore, served as flower girl and carried a basket of white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Ford attended his son as best man and groomsman was Claiborne Hollis.

Mrs. Rison was wearing for her daughter's wedding a suit of Dior blue wool crepe with blue hat and corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church reception room which was decorated with pink camellias, and greenery. Mrs. Wilber McLawchin had charge of the guest book. The bride's table, covered with a white lace cloth held the tiered wedding cake, surmounted with a cluster of wedding bells. Mrs. C. K. Pierce and Mrs. Robert Winegeart served the cake. Miss Sandra Beasly and Miss Martha Fuller presided at the punch bowls from another table and rice bags of white net tied with colorful ribbons were distributed by Marilyn Kennedy of Ferriday and Rebecca Rutledge of West Monroe, cousins of the bride.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans, the bride changed to a pearl gray wool suit with a Dior blue flower hat and a corsage from her bridal bouquet. The couple will be at home in Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Mrs. Ford is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in home economics and also of Barnes Hospital Dietary department in St. Louis, Mo. She has accepted a position as dietician at the veterans hospital in Fayetteville. Mr. Ford is a graduate of Arkansas university with a master's degree in engineering. Old South Revived In Mardi Gras Ball At Bayou DeSiard Country Club

The spirit of the old south was revived at the annual Mardi Gras ball at Bayou DeSiard Country Club last Saturday night, with the decor and costumes predominantly keyed to the theme of an "Old South Ball."

Preceding the ball was the annual queen's court over which reigned Miss Carolyn Cordell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woods, as queen, escorted by King John Sherrouse Jr., club president.

Fred Huenefeld Jr. was announcer for the royal court, with John Harvey Nelson and Leon Price as herald trumpeters. In order of their appearance in the main ballroom, decorated to resemble a southern plantation mansion, were the ribbon bearers, the maids and their escorts, the dukes, crown and scepter bearers and the king and queen.

Ribbon bearers, high school freshmen who are daughters of club members were dressed in identical colonial costume, complete with balloon sleeves and ruffled pantaloons, and carried old fashioned nosegays of yellow and white daisies. They were Linda Atkinson, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Atkinson; Faye Cannon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fahaem Cannon; Amanda Cobb, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ben Cobb; Judy Ladner, daughter of Mrs. Betty Engstrom; Gayle Kelly, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roy Kelly; Jill Marx, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sackman Marx; Barbara Masur; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Masur; Linda Masur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Masur; Lynn Masur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Masur; Paula Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Touchstone Jr., Nancy Talbot, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Talbot; Sandy Ussery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Ussery; Betty Ann Varino, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George A. Varino; Mary Til Wright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George W. Wright Jr., Connie Yancey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Yancey.

Maids, who served as attendants to the queen are college-age daughters of club members. All wore formal white ball gowns, with long white gloves and carried bouquets of yellow roses.

Minard, of Columbia, escorted by James Sparks; Miss Marilyn Hewitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hewitt, escorted by Shelby Hill; Miss Linda Keller, daughter of the Tom Kellers, escorted by H. D. Salley and Corbin Amman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Amman.

Miss Cordell was escorted to meet King John Sherrouse Jr., by Lee Vanderpool Jr., king of last year's Mardi Gras. The traditional royal toast with champagne followed the coronation of the queen.

The sedate, the gaudy and gay reflected the carnival theme in the Masquers parade of costumes, which preceded the court waltz and court exit.

Providing an appropriate background for the "Old South Ball," were decorations throughout each room of the club. The foyer was transformed into Oak Alley, by massive oak trees, from which hung an overhead canopy of moss.

Setting for the queen's court in the ballroom, depicted the columned entrance of a colonial mansion, flanked by magnolia trees and fountains while along the walls were huge murals of plantation scenes. A courtyard garden scene was created on the porch, overlooking a spotlighted fountain, completely surrounded by potted shrubs. The Southern mansion's main hall, with chandelier and curving staircase added for the occasion, set the decor in the dining room.

The young people's lounge was converted into the interior of a Mississippi riverboat, with the large rear window reflecting a hand - painted view of the river. Pictures of past presidents of the club, representing old river captains were hung along one wall.

The bar, a replica of "Old Absinthe House," was uniquely decorated with cards and paper money along the walls, while the "backroom," depicted a mock gambling hall, complete with roulette wheel and game tables. Giant playing cards decked the walls of the room, at one end of which was an improvised stage, above which were painted life-size can-can dancing girls.

Riggs-Smith Vows Read In Ruston

Miss Myrtle Marie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frellsen F. Smith of Ruston, became the bride of David Allen Riggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Harold Riggs of Monroe, in a ceremony performed Friday, February 8 at 7 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents.

A tall basket of white gladioli against a background of green and white formed the setting for the exchange of vows by candlelight. The Rev. Revere Cook, pastor of the First Church of God in Bastrop, officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white wool sheath with long sleeves, a pale pink flowered hat, matching pink gloves and a corsage of pink rosebuds and carnations.

An informal reception was held immediately following the ceremony. An arrangement of white carnations flanked by white tapers in silver holders centered the bride's table, which was covered with a hand - embroidered white linen cloth. Mrs. Bob Johnson served the cake and Mrs. Pearl Foster presided at the tea service at opposite ends of the table. Assisting were Mrs. Loraine Mitchell and Mrs. Charles Smith. The guest book was in charge of Miss Judy Martin, cousin of the bride.

BIRTHDAY TODAY

Royal Highness, Unprincely Ways

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — His Royal Highness Prince Andrew Albert Christian Edward — who is a year old today — has developed a normal but unprincely absorption with his feet.

Friends of Britain's royal family say that Queen Elizabeth II's blue-eyed, blond son is a placid, smiling infant, content to lie for long periods playing with his toes.

"A very normal happy baby," was the private comment of one of the queen's close friends who has been around the little prince on and off since his cradle days.

Second in line of succession to the throne—his brother, Prince Charles, 12, is first—moon-faced Andrew gurgles at everyone who approaches him. Andrew cries no more than most infants, but when he does it's with a super pair of lungs that can penetrate the royal corridors beyond the nursery walls.

His birthday will occur while his mother and father are on the royal tour to India, Pakistan, Nepal and Iran.

But Andrew will be far from alone when the strains of "happy birthday" float through the nursery.

Substituting for his mother will be Andrew's grandmother, the queen mother and his sister, Princess Anne, 10. From them he will probably receive as much, if not more attention, than from his mother.

When Prince Charles was born, the then Princess Elizabeth was reported to have said: "I intend to be a mother—not a nanny."

In Britain, a nanny is a nurse.

When the queen is at home two periods are jealously guarded for the children: 9 to 10 in the morning and 5 to 6:30 in the afternoon.

Andrew's nanny is nurse Mabel Anderson, daughter of a Liverpool policeman. She is 34 and has been a member of the royal nursery staff since Prince Charles was a baby.

The royal family gives no physical statistics about its children, but a London physician recently studied a batch of new photographs of Prince Andrew and made these observations:

"Hair—"Plenty."

Shape of head—"Good bone structure."

Everyone calls the little prince by his first name.

The queen and her husband have insisted that no one address him by a title until he's at least 5. By that time they feel he might as well start getting used to a handle.

Andrew has been given some splendid and costly gifts but, like his brother and sister, is said to prefer the simpler ones.

His favorite is a plastic rattle. He is said to like this much better than a silver one.

Falk Exchanges Efficiency For Acting Career

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Falk, who gave one of the year's better acting performances as Abe Reles in "Murder, Inc.," was an efficiency expert five years ago.

Falk holds a master of arts degree in business administration from Syracuse University. He was a consultant in the budget department of the state of Connecticut but go bitten by the acting bug.

"Instead of taking my vacation three weeks at a time, I took it one day a week and took acting lessons in Shakespeare," he says. "I decided all of a sudden that I wanted to be an actor instead of an efficiency expert, so I quit my job.

"I heard they were casting for an off-Broadway production of Eugene O'Neill's 'The Iceman Cometh,' so I called the producer on the phone. He told me to come over for a reading. I did and I've been working ever since."

French Couturier Subject Of Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Gabrielle Chanel, the French couturier made famous by her fifth perfume, is the subject of a projected Broadway musical.

Producer Frederick Brisson, at work on the undertaking, plans to enlist Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe as the lyricist-composer team.

Milkman Added To Play's Cast

NEW YORK (AP) — Roles are sometimes eliminated from shows in these days of high production costs, but "Under the Yum-Yum Tree" added one player to the cast several weeks after opening on Broadway.

HOLLYWOOD TIDBITS

Mineo Pledges To Keep Vows

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sal Mineo is 22 now, but he vows to stand by his no-marriage vow until he's 30.

"I don't understand women," he says, "and I don't think I'll understand them before 30—and, besides, it's much more fun now not understanding them."

The handsome young actor lives in New York. This is his first trip back here in almost two years. He spent much of the time in Europe and the Holy Land filming "Exodus."

"I come back to town and call up all the old numbers and now a husband answers. A lot has happened in two years to all my old girl friends."

NOT DATELESS

Fortunately, Sal didn't go dateless. Red-haired Tina Louise came back to town after two years in Europe and found that wedding bells had also broken up that old gang of hers. So the two of them got together for the "The Misfits" preview and have been seeing a lot of each other since.

Critics list Mineo's performance in "Exodus" among likely Academy Award nominations. There was quite an objection at first, however, to an Italian playing the role of the young Jewish concentration camp victim who later becomes a Palestinian terrorist.

As is often the case in Hollywood, most of the scripts offered him now are Jewish parts. A surprising one: "The Mickey Cohen Story."

Amplification Is Opposed By Broadway Stager

"If they can't hear 'em, get a new company," is the Abbott slogan concerning audience ability to hear performers.

'The Music Man' May Send 2nd Unit On Road

NEW YORK (AP) — A second touring company of "The Music Man" may hit the road next season, to cash in on audience interest prior to 1962 release of the film version.

The current traveling unit, which set out in 1958, concentrates engagements in large cities. The second group would be

Professional Engineer Is Title Of Merit

What is a professional engineer?

The National Society of Professional Engineers offers this definition:

"A professional engineer is one who has established himself as a 'qualified' engineer by virtue of passing examinations administered by a state examining board. All 50 states, the District of Columbia, the Canal Zone, and Puerto Rico now have law for the licensure or registration of professional engineers.

ASSURANCE

"To assure the public of the professional qualifications of the men and women of the engineering profession, the laws of the various states govern the use of the words 'professional engineer.' It is illegal for a person to apply that title, or to use any modification of it, that may lead to the belief that he is a professional engineer, if he has not qualified under the laws of one of the states or territories which now have registration laws.

"These laws generally require graduation from an accredited engineering college and a minimum of four years of responsible engineering experience."

Tiger Tomcat Makes Debut As Sleepy Feline

Recently signed to "Catstick," a melodrama, Tigger accidentally made his stage bow in "Death of a Salesman" by going to sleep on a stage bed, and has since performed in "Bell, Book and Candle," "Diary of Anne Frank" and "Visit to a Small Planet."

Featured Player Stays Off Stage

Swift, an apt vocal imitator, appears in the play as a newsreel commentator, and does impressions on records of well-known news analysts. For the cast curtain call after performances, his picture is thrown on a screen.

'Village Of The Damned' To Be At Jim

One of the most extraordinary dramas ever brought to the screen is unfolded in Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer's "Village of the Damned," starring George Sanders and the beautiful British actress, Barbara Shelley.

Laid almost entirely in the picturesque hamlet of Letchmore Heath in southern England, the picture was filmed on location in the story's locale, with two motion picture units taking over the entire village for a period of several weeks. This gave the remarkable story of "Village of the Damned" an authenticity and realism it could not have achieved had it been filmed on studio sound stages.

WITHOUT WARNING

This is what it is about: Without warning or explanation, every inhabitant of Letchmore Heath, within a certain radius of the village, is subjected to a blackout. The driver and passengers of a wrecked bus appear to be dead. An investigating plane crashes. Even the animals fall into unconsciousness.

In a matter of hours everyone recovers from the blackout, apparently unharmed. But something uncanny has happened in this interim, which manifests itself two months later. Twelve women in Letchmore Heath find themselves pregnant, among them four unmarried women. Six boys and six girls are born to them. By the time they are nine years old, it is apparent that these supernatural children have powers of mental telepathy and are of evil intent. Feeling themselves to be menaced by the normal world, they are responsible for two suicides and plot to annihilate the entire village.

One of these children, David, was born to Anthea Zellaby (Barbara Shelley), wife of the noted physicist Gordon Zellaby (George Sanders). David appears to be the leader in the evil machinations of the others and when his father reluctantly comes to the conclusion that these supernatural children cannot be permitted to live, David is able to read his mind.

"Village of the Damned" is based on John Wyndham's novel, "The Midwich Cuckoos," with the screen play written by Stirling Silliphant, Wolf Rilla and George Barclay. It was directed by Wolf Rilla and was produced by Ronald Kinnoch.

Actor Presents New Angle On White Way Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Silbersher gets a new angle on show business in the White Way comedy, "Once There Was a Russian."

The show provides his first acting workout on Broadway. Until the assignment, Silbersher has concentrated on television assignments — as a director for CBS. Among his series assignments there have been "The Brighter Day" and "Look Up and Live."

REALISTIC ROLE

Reinhardt writes that he and Kirk Douglas were driving to the Bamberg location of "Town Without Pity" when officer Hans Salomon stopped them for speeding. He wrote out a ticket.

Reinhardt told Salomon he would like the officer to come along and re-enact the scene in the movie—only give the ticket to leading lady Christine Kaufmann.

"It was an actual scene," writes Gottfried, "and I figured that we had the officer—and no wardrobe problems. He was thrilled to act in a movie.

"He thanked me profusely, took his pay—and then politely told me where I could pay my speeding fine."

Curtain Call

By RICHARD CLARK
Guest Writer

The Devil has long been a featured player on the stage. He has been at various times a red-coated forked - tailed demon, who breathed sulphurous fumes upon his hapless victims and an oily villian who traps weak - willed humans through his subtle tricks.

But never before in the annals of theatrical demonology has Mephistopheles undertaken a job like turning the Washington Senators into an American League pennant winner.

This is just what happens in Douglass Wallop's best seller, "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant," and he does it again in the musical - comedy book, "Damn Yankees."

MAJOR PRESENTATION

The production, which will be presented by the Monroe Little Theatre as its major presentation of the season, features music by the successful team which produced "Pajama Game," Richard Adler and Gerry Ross. "Damn Yankees" proved to be the sensation of the 1955 Broadway season and is a highstepping musical which is punctuated by such hits as "Whatever Lola Wants, Lola Gets," "You've Gotta Have Heart," and "Two Lost Souls on the Highway of Life."

The annual musical comedy of the Monroe Little Theatre has come to be the high point of our theatrical year. It is the theatre's major effort for the year and, as such, involves the greatest outlay of talent. "Damn Yankees," for example, requires a total of 35 cast members.

So for those who are longing to take the plunge into local theatrical productions, this is the ideal opportunity. There are 10 speaking roles for men, five parts for moderate size men in the 35 - 50 age bracket, and five roles for younger men in their teens and 20's.

In each group there are several fine roles such as Mr. Applegate, the sophisticated and businesslike devil, and young Joe Hardy, a ballplayer with a supernatural batting average.

In addition to these, there are parts for a chorus of nine or 10 male singers and dancers who comprise the ball club. These men can and should be of all types, shapes and sizes.

For the ladies there are six speaking roles including that of the arch - temptress, Lola. Four of the roles are written for mature ladies and two are for young ladies. To balance the male group a chorus of 10 female singers and dancers is required.

Tryouts will be held at the old Selman Field Playhouse, but the performance and entire rehearsal period will be at the new Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane.

The tryouts are open to all the public and anyone having any interest is encouraged to attend. The first tryout date is Monday at 7:30 p.m. and will be a dialogue performance.

Auditions for vocalists will be held at 7:30 Tuesday and the third tryout will be on Wednesday, also at 7:30 p.m. The third tryout will be for dancers.

JET MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now that the airlines are showing feature movies on jet flights to New York, it's natural that gags are flying too. Actor Tige Andrews had to cancel a flight the other day and told the reservations clerk: "I'm sorry but I've already seen the movie you're showing on flight 686."

ly to treat for azalea petal blight - instructions will be given later.

FREEZE DAMAGE

Freezes can really be freakish. An icy current of air can travel at a different levels, dipping and rising, damaging one plant and not touching another. Real damage can't be determined for several weeks yet. This was a very wet freeze which does not cause dehydration as the dry colds do. Some foliage may turn dark, later. If so, the plant will likely lose its foliage. So, be sure to fertilize now and again six weeks from this date to be sure there's plenty of food there to make leaves. Very large cold damaged plants could stand some pruning.

Of course the open camellia blossoms are gone as well as buds showing color. Unopened buds should not be damaged, but some may drop.

You'll find some split bark on azaleas, resulting from earlier freezes. You may not notice this until the limb starts dying. These limbs should be pruned beyond the dead area.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Small odds and ends of wood picked up at a lumber yard will be your children's favorite toys.

To clean a felt hat, rub with a piece of white bread.

The large puffs from bath powder boxes are fine for applying silver or metal polish. Easy to use - won't scratch.

Vaseline on the neck of a nail polish bottle prevents sticking.

Unwrap bars of toilet soap and store in drawers or linen closets to give clothes a nice scent. Use the older bars first.

CLOTHES CARE

Buying well designed dresses and coats that will remain in style for many years is one of the secrets of being well dressed. But there's another one — and that's caring for your clothes. So just for the sake of a reminder, let's go over a few of the basic essentials so that we may keep our wardrobes in tip-top condition.

Place a garment on a hanger just as soon as you take it off - button or zip it so it won't sag out of shape - then put it in your closet right away. Of course, an overcrowded closet is one of the hardest things on clothing - so every few months set aside a morning to straighten it out.

Choose a clear, bright day and hang everything outside in the fresh air for a while. Brush all woolen and blended fabrics to whisk out bids of dust they may have picked up.

And while everything is out of the closet give it a thorough cleaning with the vacuum and wash off the shelves and baseboards with a good detergent.

Closet cleaning time is also a good time to look over your wardrobe and sort out those items you seldom (if ever) wear. Time to get rid of them and donate them to a worthwhile charity and make more room for the clothing you do wear and want to keep in good condition. When you put everything back in an orderly, well organized way, you'll feel a sense of satisfaction of a job well done and an assurance that this little bit of extra effort, periodically will put you on the list of well dressed, well groomed women.

Women Gaining In Engineering Work In Nation

Although the number of women in the engineering profession is only slightly more than one per cent of the 500,000 engineers in the United States, the total has increased almost ten-fold in the last decade.

There were 1,932 women employees in 1950 compared with 191 in 1940 in the field of civil engineering. In electrical engineering there were 1,237 in 1950, contrasting with 164 in 1940.

5-Year Plan Announced By Postmaster

A unique 5-year program of philatelic as well as historic significance has been announced by the new Postmaster General, J. Edward Day. The program concerns the U. S. Post Office Departments participation in the Civil War Centennial.

Said Postmaster General Day: "During each of the five calendar years, beginning in 1961, the Post Office Department will commemorate one event which will symbolize the battles and leaders of that particular period of the war.

"The five stamps will be — Fort Sumter (April 12, 1961), Shiloh (April 6, 1962), Gettysburg (July 1, 1963), The Wilderness (May 5, 1964), Appomattox (April 9, 1965)."

The Post Office Department is now planning the designs of the five stamps. They will be made public in the near future.

British North Borneo has brought out a new 16 - stamp definitive issue of beautiful design and color. Depicted are the following: The payau (a large animal with 3-pointed antlers), the honey bear, the clouded leopard, a native woman with brass gong, a map of Borneo, wild cattle, a butterfly orchid, the Asiatic two-horned rhinoceros, a native with blowpipe, Mount Kinabulu (the highest mountain in the Malay Archipelago), natives with buffalo transport, a Bajau horseman, an orang utan, a rhinoceros hornbill, crested wood partridges, the North Borneo Coat of Arms. Each adhesive also bears a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II and the St. Edward's Crown.

NORTH BORNEO

Canada will issue a 5 cent brown and green stamp commemorating the birth of E. Pauline Johnson, the famed Mohawk poet, on March 10. The new stamp will show the poet in the foreground wearing a high ruffled collar. In the background she is depicted in a tribal dress.

Finland will soon issue two new stamps. The first will be a 30 markka blue green commemorating the centenary of the founding of the city of Marlehamn. A model of a ship is the main design. The second stamp, a 5 m green, will honor Postage Stamp Day in that country.

France has issued three new stamps dedicated to UNESCO. The common design features two sculptured heads — Orient and Occident. A special stamp exhibition was held in connection with the issuance of these new stamps.

From Peru comes word that a two - value set of airmails was issued to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the first dated coin minted in Lima. The values were 1 sol rust grey and 2 soles blue and grey.

Baby Pictures Inspire Amateur Cameramen

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Baby pictures are still the inspiration for most amateur photographers. Fortunately the results need be only a reasonable facsimile of the youngster to the prejudiced eyes of the picture-taking mother or father in order to be rated successful. To other viewers, however, the usual reaction ranges from the polite attention of a captive audience to outright boredom.

Yet baby pictures are potentially of universal interest and good photos can hold the attention of all. But, like anything of value, they require some effort on the part of the photographer, a bit of know-how and a generous helping of psychology.

Children can't be ordered into position like adults nor can they be expected to remain in place like a still life. Taking their pictures must be made into a pleasant activity instead of an ordeal. The photographer or an assistant must amuse or outwit a child with a variety of tricks to maintain interesting expressions and actions that make worthwhile pictures.

The stage is set first with proper equipment. A camera that will focus for close-ups — from three to five feet — is an asset. A tripod is essential since it eliminates camera movement, remains focused on a set area and leaves the hands free until the instant of shooting. The third item is lighting equipment.

Most experts agree that flash-on-camera or the light bar do not make for interesting, sparkling lighting. They recommend a three-light setup. The lights can be a flash or strobe with two extensions or three photoflood reflector units. They are most manageable on adjustable light stands but clamp-on reflectors will do the job when attached to bridge lamps or chair backs.

PLAIN BACKGROUND

The picture-taking area should be about three feet from a plain background. Spread a plain blanket on a low table or use a chair or bassinet top depending on the child's age. The camera is placed about four feet in front of the youngster, just above his eye level. All arrangements should be made with a doll as a stand-in for focusing and lighting to spare the youngster as much as possible from the preliminary adjustments.

The main light is placed almost two feet to the right of the camera and about a foot higher. It is angled down to the child and can be shifted slightly as the child moves. With Tri-X or Super-Hypan film in the camera, the exposure will be 1-50 at f-16 with the photofloods.

The other lights will not alter the exposure but will add sparkle and highlights to the face and figure. They are placed behind the youngster, on either side, about two feet away and about two feet above his head. They are aimed downward alongside the child to give an edge light or one of them could be aimed at the background alone.

When everything is set, the youngster is brought in and playtime begins. I've seen Josef Schneider, well known baby photographer, use pennies as a photo prop. He put them between pages in a book so it became a treasure book as the child gleefully discovered them or turned a small sock inside out to retrieve one. Hide several in the blanket fold and the search will keep them occupied for several picture-taking moments.

Hand puppets will get animated reactions from some youngsters while others like to play with pipe cleaners or balloons. Or a dab of chocolate syrup smeared on a foot, after a taste, might result in a cute picture.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Hathorn's Garden Flowers Featured

By GLADYS M. KULCKE

The plant material used by Dr. John A. Wright in his flower show last week was from the Woodrow Hathorn garden.

John used a pedestal bowl for a symmetrical triangle design. Pussy willow branches were used for the line material. Branches of bluish eucalyptus followed these lines. White Imura camellias were massed to form a symmetrical triangle in front of the line material. at the last, John tucked in short branches of eucalyptus to break the flat effect and give depth to the design. The color combination was lovely. A beautiful arrangement for the living room.

Dr. Wright placed black twin vases side by side and used a modified Hogarth design for this arrangement. The gracefully curved long stemmed rose Empress camellias added to the pattern of this arrangement. The camellias with their own foliage were placed in the twin vases to form one complete Hogarth curve. This arrangement would be suitable for a chest or buffet.

An unusual container was used for the next arrangement. It was a Japanese design of white and gold or gold tweed. The container was a six inch tall cylinder with a square collar. A curved branch of flowering quince set the vertical line design for this arrangement. Three Audusson camellias followed this line down to the mouth of the container, with the smaller blossom placed high and a large one of more solid coloring at the base. The sides of this design were finished by placements of blossoms on either side facing to the side. This placement also added depth to the design. A pretty arrangement for a small table.

The Monroe Garden Club is bringing —, Gregory Conway to Monroe in March. Conway is a nationally famous lecturer on flower arrangement. He is the author of four books on flower arrangements, "Flowers Their Arrangement," "Flowers East-West" "Conway's Treasury of Flower Arrangement," and "Conway's Encyclopedia of Flowers Arrangement." Bayou DeSiard Country Club will be the setting for his talks.

The schedule: Monday, March 13th, (unlimited number), 10:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon Japanese Floral Art; 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Occidental Floral Art; Tuesday March 14th, (limited number) 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Clinic for Beginners, 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Clinic — Advanced - Occidental Floral Art.

Engineer Growth Over Years Is Point Of Study

There are now more than half a million engineers in the United States. This compares to slightly more than 40,000 at the turn of the century.

Leaders in the profession cite two major points for this increase in the number of engineers.

(1) A tremendous, expansion of industry. Although the number of engineers has increased, appreciably, the rate of technological development during the last 10 years indicates that the need for scientists and engineers will continue to be of prime concern to the nation's economy.

(2) The increased mechanization of industrial processes. Even with no increase in industrial expansion, there still would be a growing need for engineers to keep pace with mechanization.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Floral South Comes Of Age

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The southeastern states are coming of age. We are going to have our first big regional flower show. Every one who can get there is going to be able to see a tremendous landscape and horticultural spectacle in one of the most modern buildings in the world, the arena of the North Carolina State Fair Grounds at Raleigh.

Your columnist has been in on this flower show business from its infancy when The Garden Club of America and then the Federated State Garden Clubs got out their first judging handbook, and we began to organize flower shows for efficiency. How well I recall having edited the second edition of the handbook for flower shows and judging on the train en route to New Orleans to lecture there. One does not like to admit how long ago that was.

FORWARD LEAP

With the founding of the Nashville Botanical Garden, the Horticultural Center at The University of Southwest Louisiana and the North Carolina Botanical Garden now just getting under way, the southern states have made a great leap forward after 200 sleepy years.

You will read all about the coming Southeastern show in your newspaper between now and the opening day, February 24th. Any show put on by a combination of amateur and professional societies like this one will be a great and beautiful spectacle. I have helped put together flower shows in all kinds of places, but the building where this one will take place is ideal. For years, I have attended the world famous fortnightly shows at the Royal Horticultural Society's two halls at Vincent Square, around the corner, so to speak, from Victoria Station in London. Sometimes we have two shows going at the same time there. Although there is much glass in the roofs, these shows are apt to be poorly lighted except when the sun deigns to shine. Never-the-less, the shows are, as is well known, the finest in the world for variety and continuous quality. Colored slides which Americans have made there certainly excite their friends when they get home.

As reported in the columns in 1956, the Great Autumn Show of the Royal Caledonian Horticultural Society of Edinburg was a vast display. From the rostrum where the awards were made that September day, the show was one of the most cheerful that I ever saw in the British Isles in spite of the fact that it is held, every year, in a great market with skylights overhead. Most of the shows in Europe like this, however, are beautiful in spite of and not, certainly, by dint of the buildings where they are held.

Last year, however, that nearly - all - glass' building, the "palais de la defense" in Paris housed the most beautifully staged flower show, probably, ever put on anywhere in the world. There is no reason why the great modern arena at Raleigh cannot be equally as successful. People come to the south from all over the world just to see this modern building.

State Engineers Society Presents First Fair Show.

The exhibit featured an exact-size model of the Vanguard Satellite, miniature models of rockets, a miniature demonstration of various stages in the launching of a satellite.

Also included in the exhibit, which occupied a 10 by 10 foot space in the general exhibit building, was a model atomic power plant made by B. M. Ferguson.

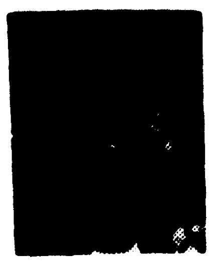
Use Screening Of Evergreens



By AUDREY DAWSON

While you, Mrs. Gardener, are making plans and planting your home grounds, be sure to remember the evergreens that are excellent for screening. Some of the evergreens that are especially good for a year-round screen include cherry laurel, holly trees, sweet myrtle, eleagnus pungens, untrimmed if there is plenty of room. If you need to save space use such evergreens as the red leaf photinia, viburnum tinus, sasanqua and the columnar of needle evergreens. Evergreen vines such as yellow jasmine and Confederate jasmine on fence or fence panel is a desirable screen for economy of space.

There are many flowering plants that may be used as a screen in the summer as: Crape myrtle, althea, mock orange, deutzia, weigela and the spireas.

CONTROLLING WEIGHT

With so many homemakers interested in controlling their weight this information from our nutrition specialist, Mrs. Irene Turner, will be of great help. Regular exercise can be a big help in controlling weight. Long hours of strenuous exercise are not necessary to keep weight in check. Riding a bicycle for one week does not help. It is the regular program that counts. But regular, less strenuous, exercise can be surprisingly effective for people who need to take it easier and at the same time need to either lose or maintain weight while eating the same amount of food as before.

If an overweight woman, who gets just enough calories to maintain her weight, spends one hour every day at housework that keeps her moderately active and moving around instead of sitting, she uses 90 more calories a day. In a year, if her diet remains about the same, she can lose nine pounds. Then if she can change a second sitting hour to some type of daily active recreation, without changing diet, she can use an additional 170 calories a day and in a year shed another 15 pounds or a total of 24 pounds.

Many people are not free to get more activity into their daily routines - particularly those with fulltime jobs. Thus, leisure time offers the best opportunity for more exercise. Even though the time given to added activity may be short, if established as a regular routine if it can have lasting effects on weight.

SOMETHING NEW

One manufacturer is now making hand screen printed sheets fitted and flat to fit odd sized mattresses. And another has come out with sheets and pillowcases in pima cotton blend or with regular cotton at no increase in price.

Now on the market is a waterproofing finish for outerwear which permits free passage of water vapor. Fabric treated with the new finish is 100 percent waterproof, it is reported.

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

Chop peanuts and pecan meat with a small cookie or biscuit cutter in a deep bowl. It saves fingers and avoids flying nuts.

When rinsing sweaters, press in a calender and they will not stretch.

Do you have an idle tea ball around? If so, try this - place a butt of garlic in the ball. When you want to add flavoring to your soups and stews drop it in the pot then you can remove before searing.

Do you have a piano with keys that have become yellow. If so moisten a cloth with vinegar and wipe the keys. This will whiten them.

LINING FOR CLOTHES

When choosing a fabric for lining a garment, think about the style of the garment fabric. A lining improves a garment's crease resistance, prevents sagging, and increases the life of a garment while creating and holding a professional look.

For silk shantung and similar fabrics, suitable linings include silk organza, net or marquisette; for lightweight wool dress and skirts, sheath lining, lightweight taffeta is a good choice; for lining heavy cottons rayons, batiste, lightweight broadcloth or percale may be used.

If the pattern does not include pattern pieces for the lining cut it from the dress or skirt pattern. The method most often used in lining a skirt is to handle the garment pieces and the lining as one fabric. Each lining piece is placed on the wrong side of each skirt piece, edges are stay stitched together, and darts and seams are made through both thicknesses of fabric. In hemming the garment the lining is cut off at the marked hemline, then the garment hem and lining are hemmed separately.

A THOUGHT

Petal Blight Fungus Mars Azalea Bloom

By NEIL G. ODENWALD
Assistant Extension
Horticulture Specialist

What beautiful azaleas! You will hear this often when azalea blossom time comes.

Unfortunately, the beauty of our azaleas is often marred by the attack of a fungus disease, azalea petal blight. Many of you recognize this disease as the one that produces small white spots on the flower petals.

Almost immediately they collapse into a limp mass. The affected petals are somewhat slimy and fall apart if rubbed gently between the fingers. This is the way to distinguish between diseased petals and those injured by weather, insects or other diseases.

CLING TO PLANT

Diseased flowers dry and cling to the plant. Normally, healthy blossoms fall to the ground while still showing color.

This disease develops most rapidly when the humidity is high, or during periods of rain, fog, or heavy dew. A temperature of about 65 degrees fahrenheit is ideal for its development and spread.

You can control azalea petal blight. It will take work, but the joy and satisfaction of having beautiful color in the landscape will be most rewarding.

The old standbys are dithane Z-78 and parzate. Be sure to follow directions on the container. You'll find that you'll have to spray three times a week during periods when weather conditions favor the spread fo the disease. At other times, two applications each week will be sufficient.

A new material is thylate. The manufacturer recommends spraying at five to 10 day intervals with this material. The directions on the container will tell you how much to use.

Cover the flowers thoroughly when you spray. A fine mist or fog will coat all surfaces of the blossom best. A spray stream under high pressure will injure the petals when it strikes them.

Insure protection by spraying as soon as blossoms open. If you do not begin then, spray as soon as the first sign of infection appear, or it will be too late.

Mississippi Faces Threat Of Flooding

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The U. S. Weather Bureau's Jackson River district office issued flood warnings for South Mississippi Saturday as heavy rains continued to pelt the state.

The bureau said dangerous floodings would occur in the Black and Red Creek areas Saturday and extensive flooding on the Leaf River from above Hattiesburg and the Chickawawhay River above Waynesboro to the Pascagoula River at Merrill and then to the coastal waters.

The bureau said locally heavy showers continued Saturday in the Leaf River drainage and from present runoffs stages at near 26 feet were indicated for Hattiesburg and about 25 feet on the Pascagoula at Merrill.

Another warning was issued for the Bogue Chitto River in Louisiana and the lower Pearl River in Mississippi. The bureau said excessive rainfall produced a very sharp rise in the Bogue Chitto at Franklinton, La., nearing a crest at noon Saturday and a crest was indicated at about 15.5 feet there for the afternoon.

The Pearl River at Bogalusa, La., was predicted to crest between 18 and 19 feet Saturday afternoon or night. The bureau said about noon Tuesday the crest from the present runoff would reach approximately 16.4 feet at Pearl River, La., and any additional excessive rains might require a slight increase in the predicted crest there.

The heavy rains began falling Friday afternoon and Saturday morning Hattiesburg reported 7.02 inches of rainfall.

Chinese Reds Stage Purge Of Officials

HONG KONG (UPI)— Students returning from Communist China reported Saturday the Communists were staging public trials and executions of "bad elements" in a purge of minor party officials designed to appease the famine-stricken public.

The Communist Party Central Committee itself admitted a purge was underway last month and the students said it appeared to be gaining ruthlessness and momentum as the Red masters sought to lay blame for the famine.

Eight students came from Red China on passes to celebrate the Chinese lunar new year. Only a few said they were going back. Conditions were too bad.

They said "all the blame for the acute food shortage" was falling on secretaries and chairmen of the communes of forced labor.

They said trials were conducted with great fanfare. The usual charges were "brutality to the farmers" or "mismanagement."

A number of officials were convicted and publicly executed in Kwangtung Province. The students said they witnessed the executions.

The purge was begun after Peiping admitted the worst droughts and natural calamities in a century had caused crop failures, and the students said the purge apparently started with the instalation of army officers as commune leaders.

After that came arrests and trials of civilian commune officials.

But the students predicted the communes would remain as a part of life in Red China despite dissatisfaction among the people.

In the communes, the students said, famine was widespread, and there was beri-beri and various liver ailments.

As the students spoke, a Radio Peiping broadcast said the country was threatened with more drought this year.

Honor Group Set To Hear Dr. McKneely

Dr. Lewis Marvin McKneely, associate professor of English at Northeast Louisiana State College, Tuesday will be guest speaker at a meeting of the NLSC Honor Society.

The travel talk, which is an annual feature of the organization's activities, is scheduled at 7 p.m. in the recital room of Biedenharn Hall (Fine Arts Building) on campus.

Both the program and informal reception, which will follow, are open to students, staff, faculty and the public.

Dr. McKneely's discussion will be based on his study and travel last summer in the British Isles and Europe. He plans to use slides to illustrate many factors which will be emphasized in his talk.

The instructor attended the University of London for study in the neo-classical period of literature. He followed the summer session by touring the British Isles and the continent.

Chairmen of Tuesday's events are Thelma Hopkins and Geraldine Bryant.

Honor Society officers include: Linda Pichett, president; Coralie White, vice president; Camille Camp, secretary; Martha Taylor, treasurer; and Leon Johnson, historian-reporter. Mrs. Louise Gray Lemert of the liberal arts faculty is adviser of the organization.

OVER 4-YEAR PERIOD

U.S. Laying Plans For Space Assault

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — While a Soviet "space station" whizzes toward a mid-May rendezvous with the planet Venus, U.S. scientists carefully are laying plans for an all-out assault on the mysteries of the moon, Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Mercury.

Under development and study in laboratories across the country are a series of spacecraft bearing the names Ranger, Serveyor, Prospector, Mariner and Voyager. Initial Ranger launch is scheduled next summer from Cape Canaveral, with the others to follow over a four-year period.

Ranger's mission will be to rough-land instrument packages on the moon. Surveyor will try controlled, soft-landings on the luner surface. Prospector vehicles will have two assignments: place wheeled or tracked laboratories on the moon or dig up samples of lunar material and return them to earth.

Mariner spacecraft will fly by Venus and Mars, snapping pictures and gathering data. Voyagers will orbit or land instruments on these two planets which are earth's closest neighbors in space. Later Voyagers will fly to the vicinity of Mercury and Jupiter.

To boost these vehicles, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is developing three new rockets, more powerful than any launched previously by the United States. They are Atlas-Agena B, Centaur and Saturn — with all three slated for first test launchings in 1961.

Agena B will have an Atlas first stage and a large second stage capable of being restarted in space. Centaur also will utilize an Atlas booster, with the second stage powered by liquid-hydrogen—a higher-energy fuel than any now used in U.S. rockets. First three Centaur firings late this year and early in 1962 will carry earth satellites, with the main purpose to check out the rocket.

Saturn will be the giant of American space vehicles for several years. Generating 1½ million pounds of thrust, it will be able to hurl 14½-ton satellites into orbit or land six tons on the moon. Saturn's thrust compares with the more than 900,000 pounds many experts believe the Russians are working with, and the 360,000 pounds of the Atlas, currently the United States' biggest.

Five Ranger shots, using Agena B, are planned, all in 1961-62. They include an earth satellite whose highly elliptical orbit will take it 600,000 miles into space; a sun satellite, and three lunar impacters. The earth and solar satellites are scheduled this year, mainly to prove out the rocket and the spacecraft.

Speaker Set At Religious Observances

"Christ, Campus and Communism" will be emphasized in a three-day religious program scheduled to open Tuesday at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The annual Religious Emphasis Week will feature Dr. William Avery Benfield Jr. of Shreveport as speaker at daily assemblies at 11 a.m. in Brown Auditorium. Lectures are open to the public, the Northeast religious committee announced.

Seminars will be held in all dormitories from 6 to 7 p.m., with each denomination on campus being represented.

A reception Tuesday from 4 to 6 p.m. in Ouachita Hall (Student Center) is planned especially for college students and persons interested in the religious program.

Dr. Benfield, minister of the First Baptist Church, Shreveport, is experienced in numerous fields of work. He has held teaching and executive positions in theological seminaries, on boards and councils of relief and higher education, and in charitable, musical and civic organizations.

He also has co-authored religious works and edited church publications and participated in several city preaching missions and college and university programs on religious emphasis.

Dr. Benfield received the A.B. degree from Davidson College, where he was awarded the D.D. degree in 1940. Hel also holds the bachelor of divinity and master of theology degrees from Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary and the doctorate in theology from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Hodges Predicts Business Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upturn in employment by April was forecast Saturday by Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

Hodges said he expects President Kennedy's antirecession program to give a lift to business generally by spring.

Hodges said the nation's economy is basically sound, but that emergency measures were called for to relieve the unemployment situation.

Will Your Grandchildren Live in Fear Of the Red Secret Police?

Nikita Khrushchev has said, "Your grandchildren will grow up under Communism."

If that's true your grandchildren will live in constant terror . . . waiting for the tramp of boots . . . for the knock on the door in the middle of the night. Is this what the future holds?

"Never!" you say. But are you sure? Are you doing anything to prevent it? One sure way is to help RADIO FREE EUROPE.

Labor Dispute Idles Workers In Mississippi

Union officials declined to say the cause of the strike, but unofficial sources indicated it was over seniority rights, concerning job preference.

This was the first major strike by the local International Woodworkers of America since 1951 when the plant was idled for five months.

General Manager Dean B. Thatcher told union headquarters in Portland, Ore., that employes were refusing to do their assigned work, stopping work and shutting the plant down and taking possession of the plant in a sitdown strike.

"These things," he said, "violate the contract and constitute violation of the law for which all of you will be held responsible civilly and criminally.

U.S. Will Seek Stronger U.N.

ASHLAND, Va. (AP) — A top U.S. diplomat Saturday pledged American efforts to make the United Nations, now under stiff Communist attack, a stronger and more effective organization.

Reaffirmation of U.S. support for the world organization came from James W. Riddleberger, who has been head of the International Cooperation Administration. ICA handles for U.S. foreign aid program.

Riddleberger is one of the few diplomats having the permanent rank of "career ambassador," the highest foreign service rank. His next assignment has not yet been announced.

Elevated Train Plays Top Role During Cold War

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) — In any other city in the world an elevated railway is just another means of transportation.

If the Communists decide to start trouble in isolated West Berlin, they might well use the el to do it. They run the railway through the city. It would give them both a base of operations and an excuse for actions in the West.

Both East and West claim "sovereignty" over the 73 el stations in West Berlin. And as in other Berlin disputes, both the western Allies and the Soviets base their claims on old Four - Power agreements.

In 1945, when the Big Four still were meeting together to run Germany and Berlin they placed the el in the entire city under Soviet operational control.

The decision at the time seemed logical enough. As the Soviets asserted, the el ran out into surrounding East Germany and was tied in with the Soviet Zone railway system.

But the logic now has boomeranged to plague the United States, Britain and France.

The Big Three assert they retained sovereign control over the railway in West Berlin and the Russians received only the right to run it. The Russians maintain the East was given extra territorial rights on the railway in the West.

This would be a legalistic dispute of no great interest except for ominous - sounding threats made by East German Communists about the railway.

They have started to say — too frequently for the peace of mind of western officials — that the day might not be far off when they will show the West whose railway it is.

West Berliners have a tendency to discount Communist threats because they've been hearing them for years. But the new threats are getting a little more attention because of the change of international climate which followed the abortive Paris Summit meeting.

Threats to take action in Cuba or the Congo can be dismissed by some as empty talk. But West Berlin is in the middle of Communist territory. Threats against it are more easily carried out.

The new East - West dispute over the railway began in June when a Communist railway worker in West Berlin turned over to Communist railway police two East Germans who had fled to West Berlin.

The refugee pair escaped to the West on the railway and breathed easier when they got out at a West Berlin station. Not familiar with the railway's strange status, they thought they were safe.

In their innocence they asked the railway worker to guide them to a refugee camp. He called Eastern railway police instead and they were returned and jailed.

Communist East Germany, in notes to the western Allies, demanded the release of Kubert or else. They claimed sovereignty over the railway and warned they would take action to defend it.

Picket Line Fight Flares At Rock Hill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police said four Negro men, a white man and a white woman were parading in front of a downtown drug store when city and state officers decided the watching crowd had grown too big and asked the demonstrators to depart.

The white woman picket, who identified herself as Joan Trumpower, of Washington, D. C., an employe of the Department of Agriculture, was not arrested. She carried a sign referring to the jailing of Negro demonstrators at Rock Hill 10 days ago.

Police Chief W. S. Rhodes identified the Negro arrested as Franklyn Hunt, 21, of Washington, a reporter for the Baltimore Afro-American, and the other two as Paul David Dietrich, 29, of Washington, and George Morgan, 22, of Rock Hill.

The students were charged with violating a city ordinance prohibiting assemblage in public parks without special permission of park officials. All were released later under $100 bond each.

At St. Petersburg, Fla., arrest of a Negro on a disorderly conduct charge in a Negro night club early Saturday sparked a demonstration in which rocks and bottles were thrown at police. Three officers received minor injuries and 11 Negroes were arrested.

At Greenville, S. C., more than 300 delegates attending a southeastern regional conference of the NAACP approved a statement urging members to withdraw support from firms which refuse to remove racial barriers to employment.

In Atlanta, Negro leaders decided to hold a sympathy rally for 80 Negro students in a church instead of in front of the Fulton County jail Sunday as originally planned. The students were jailed in connection with sit-in demonstrations.

Hospital Taxes Patients, But Reports Deficit

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Hahnemann Hospital charged paying patients a "hidden tax" to pay for free care to the needy, and still lost money.

He also endorsed President Kennedy's proposal to provide medical care for people over 65 under the Social Security program.

But he said the hospital still had a deficit of $151,000 in its free care program, despite state and city aid and charity contributions.

"The public should understand who actually is footing the bill for indigent care in the community," Paxson said. "All hospitals are forced to put the load on the paying patient."

The matter came to public attention recently when Chester Hospital announced that it, too, was charging a hidden tax, but would end its free care program on March 1 unless more public support is forthcoming.

Crucial Capsule Test Scheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) A Project Mercury man-in-space capsule is about to receive its most severe test on a crucial flight which it must survive if a U. S. astronaut is to be rocketed into orbit late this year.

The test also is a critical one for the Atlas booster rocket, which exploded on a similar flight last July.

Within a few days, a 110-ton Atlas is scheduled to fling the one-ton space chamber aloft to qualify it under the worst re-entry conditions imaginable.

If all works right, the capsule will hurtle to an altitude of 115 miles, then streak back through the atmosphere on a jolting, superhot trip, landing in the Atlantic 1,400 miles down range.

"The spacecraft will be buffeted, scorched and squeezed aerodynamically as never before, and hopefully never again," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced Saturday.

"The object is to qualify the design and structure of the capsule under the worst possible re-entry conditions. To do this we have picked flight curves which will duplicate the most severe re-entry path the spacecraft could take after an emergency abort on an orbital flight."

When the Atlas burns out four minutes after launch, the missile will be aimed slightly downward, at a 3 degree angle, compared with a normal re-entry angle of 1½ degrees. Thus the Atlas will literally shoot the capsule back toward earth.

—Re-entry airload of 900 pounds per square inch, three times that expected on the manned orbit flight.

An attempt will be made to recover the capsule if it lands as planned some 400 miles northeast of Puerto Rico after an 18-minute flight.

The capsule is like the one which Ham the space chimpanzee successfully rode to an altitude of 156 miles and 414 miles down range on Jan. 31. One of America's seven astronauts is expected to make a similar flight within two or three months.

The Redstone rocket is used for the Ham-type short flights, which are forerunners of the manned orbit trips. But the more powerful Atlas is needed to propel the heavy capsule into orbit.

Space agency scientists have been concerned about the Atlas' ability to do the job since it flunked its only capsule-carrying assignment last July 29. That Atlas exploded 65 seconds after launch.

NASA reported the Atlas which will be used for the upcoming shot has been strengthened considerably, especially in the upper section and in the adapter ring, which is the link between the missile and the spacecraft.

If the Atlas or the capsule should fail this time, officials concede the chance of placing a man in orbit this year—already slim—could no longer be considered.

Apply For Transfer

HOPEWELL, Va. (UPI) — Six more Negro students applied Saturday for transfer to all-white public schools here, raising to 10 the number seeking entry for the 1961-62 school term.

Three asked for transfer to Hopewell High, to which four others applied Friday, and three asked to be enrolled in Woodlawn and Copeland elementary schools.

Sixteen Negroes applied Friday for transfer to three white schools at nearby Petersburg. Both school systems are completely segregated.

Weems Services Slated Today; Discovered Dead

HOLLY RIDGE (Special) — Funeral services for James Marshall Weems, whose body was found in a swamp near his Holly Ridge home Friday, will be held Sunday at 9 a.m.

Graveside services will be held in Collinston under the direction of Kilpatrick Funeral Home of West Monroe. Interment will be in Collingston.

The 100-year-old man's body was found by two men about 1:30 Friday. He had been missing from his home since last summer.

The Richland Parish sheriff's department, along with the coroner, said that apparently he had been lying there since the day of disappearance.

They did not believe any foul play was connected with his death, but said they would continue to investigate.

Weems is survived by his widow, Mrs. J. M. Weems, Holly Ridge, one daughter in Texas, and several step-children.

Coed Freed On Bail In Son's Death

ONEONTA, N. Y. (AP)—A 23-year-old college senior, described as having "a fresh, open look about her," went home with her parents Saturday after being released in $2,000 bail in the death of her newborn son.

The infant, born Wednesday night in a rooming house, was found in a washing machine in an all-night laundry the next morning.

Mrs. Bristol, separated from her husband, gave birth in her room about three blocks from the campus of the New York State College of Education, police said. Mrs. Bristol was preparing to become a social studies teacher at the college.

The next morning she attended classes and went on a two-hour field trip, Dist. Atty. Joseph A. Mogavero Jr. said. Police arrested her Thursday.

The district attorney declined to identify the infant's father. Mogavero said Mrs. Bristol's 3-year-old daughter and 2-year-old son were "with other people" here.

The infant, wrapped in a yellow towel, apparently suffocated in the washing machine, a coroner said. There was no water in the washer.

A college spokesman described Mrs. Bristol as "a clean-cut young woman, with a fresh, open look about her." He said she was "a good average student," active in campus organizations."

Woman Is Held After Stabbing

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) —Officers said Mrs. Clay L. Rendon, 23, of San Antonio, Tex., was held for questioning in the slaying of her husband Saturday.

They were visiting Mrs. Rendon's sister and brother-in-law in Lafayette, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Hollier.

Sheriff W. E. Harson said Mrs. Rendon told deputies she picked up a kitchen knife and stabbed her husband after he choked her.

She was held for further questioning.

Ghana Asks Africa Rule For Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) Malaya came to the aid of the faltering U. N. Congo troop operation Saturday with an offer of 800 more soldiers. But Ghana demanded that the troubled African country be put under "all African" control with all white officials removed.

Malaya's offer to bolster the U. N. troop command, riddled by defections by nations supporting slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, was gratefully accepted by Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold.

Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah proposed a seven-phase plan caling for an African U.N. Command, disarming of all Congolese armed factions, by force if necessary, and removal of all foreign diplomatic missions until order was restored under African leadership.

Such a proposal, Nkrumah said, would be flexible enough to keep Asian forces in the U. N. Command but all whites, such as the Swedes and Irish, would have to go.

Behind the scenes, U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson won a diplomatic tug of war when the 18 - nation Congo advisory group decided to release a report proposing stronger U. N. action in the Congo. The report was drawn up by an 11-nation conciliation commission to the Congo.

Stevenson sought release of the report against Russian insistence it be kept secret. Sources said at Saturday's two - hour session Guinea strongly backed Russia's stand. But Stevenson had his way.

The advisory group agreed to make the conciliation commission report available to all U. N. delegations with a note stating that the 1,000-word document reflected the opinion of the conciliation commission delegates, not necessarily that of their home governments.

Malaya's offer of more troops would more than double its contingent to the U. N. Congo Command—from 613 men to 1,413.

This would bring the U. N. strength to 17,453 soldiers. But by early March, withdrawals by Morocco and Indonesia would reduce this number to less than 15,000.

Irish Gen. Sean MacKeoh, the U. N. Command chief, estimated he needed at least 20,000 men to do a proper policing job.

Turns On His Wife

They said farmer Shosaku Uchiyama never could win an argument with his wife and she always concluded their disputes by beating him up.

Uchiyama dreamed Thursday she was hitting him again. It was the last straw. He got up, grabbed a sword and slashed her leg. She called the police.

QUICK ACCIDENT

ATHENS, Tenn. (AP) — Harvey Womack, 21, bought a new motorcycle, climbed aboard and ran the new vehicle into a brick building across the street two minutes later. He was not injured seriously.

CORNELL CAPA

BULLETIN:

On March 1, all Kellogg Oil Company service stations will switch to Super Shell—the gasoline with nine ingredients for top performance

Today's Super Shell gasoline, one of the many fine Shell Oil Company products, will be available at James Moore's Kellogg stations March 1. Read about the nine ingredients in today's Super Shell—what they are, what they do, and how they do it

ON March 1, every Kellogg Oil Company dealer in the Monroe area will have remarkable Super Shell in his pumps.

A notice on each Super Shell pump will promise that this gasoline will give your car top performance. Shell's scientists want you to know why they can make this promise.

Ingredient #1 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug-life

TCP additive can give your car up to 15 per cent more power; up to 17 extra miles per tankful; and can make plugs last up to twice as long.*

New TCP does this by neutralizing certain harmful effects of combustion deposits. It is scientifically formulated to keep them from glowing when hot—a major cause of power loss. Also to keep them from diverting your spark—a major cause of "missing."

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 900-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into livelier, lighter ones.

The result is a super-octane ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

NOTE: "Cat-cracking" refers to the use of a catalyst—the mysterious substance that can alter molecules without changing itself.

Ingredient #3 is Alkylate, noted for knock control in hot engines

Alkylate—the ingredient that took the dream of 100-octane gasoline out of the lab and put it into the skies—is now in Super Shell. It controls knocking in hot engines at high speeds better than anything else yet available.

NOTE: The engine in your car may frequently turn even faster than the engines of a DC-7 at cruising speed. Think of this next time you are passing on the highway.

Ingredient #4 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might think that two high-octane ingredients are enough for knock-free performance. But Shell's scientists have ears like musicians.

They insist on adding a special anti-knock mix. A mix, so effective, one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by five points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

Ingredient #5 is Butane for quick starts on cold mornings

Butane is so eager to get going that Shell keeps it under pressure 400 feet below ground to stop it from vaporizing by itself. Think what this extra volatility means in cold weather. Your engine fires in seconds. There is less strain on your battery. And none on your patience.

NET RESULT: Fast warm-up and top performance in a hurry.

Ingredient #7 is an "anti-icer" to check cold-weather stalling

Super Shell's formula is adjusted as often as eight times a year to beat the weather. For example, whenever the temperature is likely to be less than forty-five degrees, a carburetor anti-icer is added.

Why add anti-icer at forty-five degrees? Because, even then, frost can form in your carburetor just as it does in your refrigerator. It can choke your engine dead.

Ingredient #8 is gum preventive to keep carburetors clean inside

Even the purest gasoline can form gum when stored. This can clog carburetors and foul automatic chokes. But, with Super Shell, you needn't worry. A special gum preventive does the trick.

Ingredient #9 is Platformate for extra energy, more mileage

It takes eight million dollars' worth of platinum catalyst for Shell to produce Platformate. But fortunately for you and for us, this precious stuff can be used over and over again.

The platinum re-forming process, which gives Platformate its odd name, converts petroleum into super-energy components—such as benzene, xylene and toluene.

But make no mistake. This is not untamed energy. Far from it. The super-energy of Platformate is harnessed by the eight other ingredients in Super Shell, where it behaves so well you scarcely know it's there. That is until you note your extra mileage. After that, there is no doubt.

Test Super Shell for yourself

That difference is top performance.

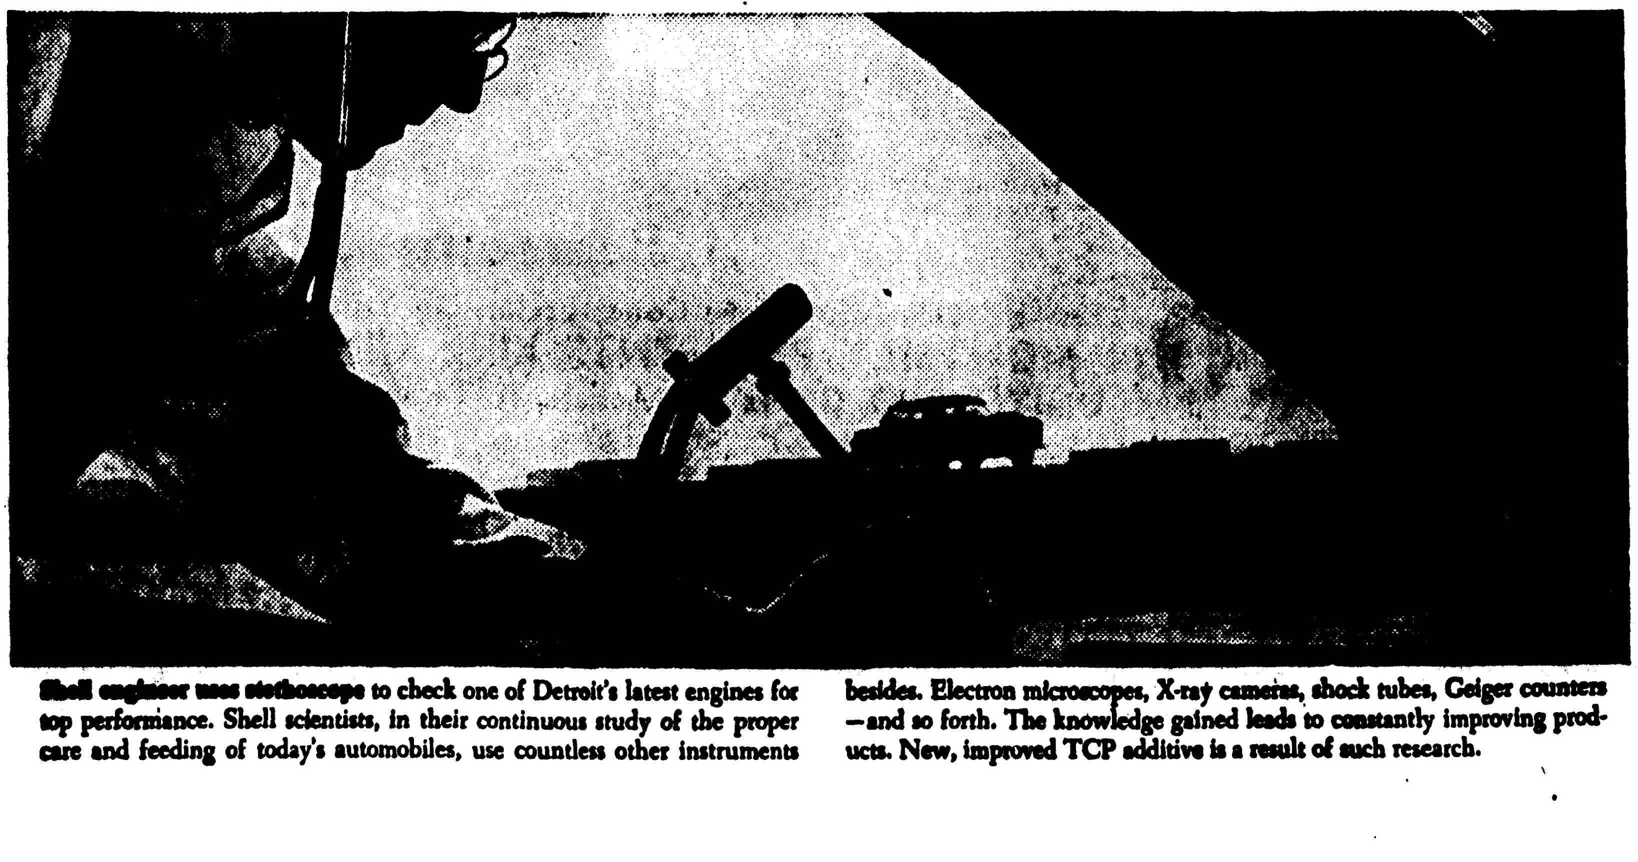
SHELL ®

A BULLETIN FROM SHELL RESEARCH —where 1,997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better.



Shell engineer uses stethoscope to check one of Detroit's latest engines for top performance. Shell scientists, in their continuous study of the proper care and feeding of today's automobiles, use countless other instruments besides. Electron microscopes, X-ray cameras, shock tubes, Geiger counters—and so forth. The knowledge gained leads to constantly improving products. New, improved TCP additive is a result of such research.

Area Engineer Inspector Has Thrifty Ideas

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has been actively soliciting suggestions on ways to save the government money by improvement of construction methods, savings in time and materials, and by other means.

Recently, William F. Letlow, supervisory construction inspector for the Vidalia area of the Vicksburg District, was presented a cash award for a suggested improvement to the metal forms used in casting concrete articulated revetment. This material is used as facing to sustain embankments.

Every year the Delta Point, La., Casting Field, under the supervision of the Vicksburg Engineer District, produces between three - quarters million to one and one-half million dollars worth of revetment blocks.

The work is done by contract awarded each year by competitive bidding. Letlow is the supervisory construction inspector over this field.

Engineering Progress Is Cited

The important role that engineering is playing in the progress of the Twin Cities area, as well as other sections of the state and nation is coming into special focus this week.

The factor behind this is the observance of National Engineers' Week, which opens today and extends through Feb. 25.

In connection with this, the Monroe Section of the Louisiana Engineering Society, is taking an active part in bringing before the public the importance of engineering in the progress of the area.

To provide an overall picture of the profession, officials gave background on the national organization of engineers. It was pointed out that National Engineers' Week is celebrated annually by the Society during the week of Washington's birthday in cooperation with industry, schools, and other engineering societies. Purpose of this is to bring to the public a recognition of the vital functions of America's engineers in civilian and defense economy.

THEME

The theme for this week is "Engineering, A Career of Opportunity."

Officials here explained that the National Society of Professional Engineers is dedicated to the protection and the promotion of the profession of engineering as a social and economic influence vital to the affairs of men and of the United States.

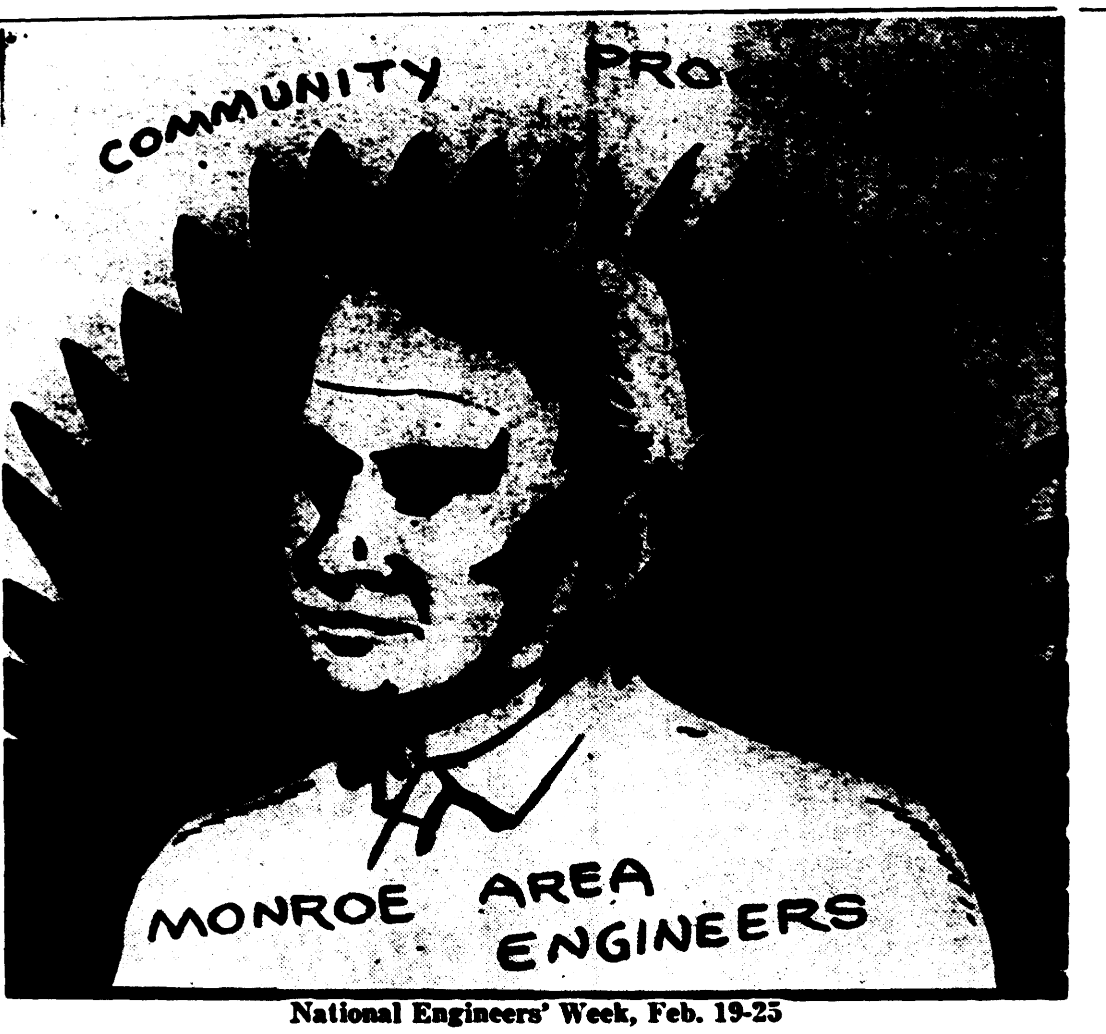
"It is organized on a three-level basis — the local community, state, and national. At each level the organization functions as an autonomous unit in respect to problems affecting engineering practice and the public welfare in its areas.

"The Society is thoroughly democratic in structure, with all officers at all levels elected annually by direct membership vote.

"The National Society is made up of more than 53,000 professional engineers in all technical branches who are registered to practice engineering in accorddance with the laws of their states and territories. They are consulting engineers in private practice, and engineers in industry, education, and government service.



National Engineers' Week, Feb. 19-25

FOUNDED

"The National Society was founded in 1934. Since then it has grown steadily and now has more than 400 local chapters in the 50 states, Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, and the Canal Zone.

"The National Society, at each of its three levels of operation, serves the engineering profession, industry, and the public. It has actively promoted effective state registration laws for professional engineers to safeguard the public. It maintains continuing liaison with legislators and government agencies to represent the interests of the engineering profession, and to protect the public safety by setting rigid standards for professional competence and ethical practices.

"The history of the engineering profession since the turn of the century has been one in which the engineer assumes an even greater responsibility for the nation's productive efforts. In 1900 there were 255 industrial workers for each engineer. By 1956 the number of industrial workers per engineer had shrunk to 55. With the increases of engineers employed by industry, the purchasing power of the individual workers has shown a striking increase, due to the increased utilization of process and product engineering. It can be seen that the growth of the engineering profession is one measure of the over - all growth of 20th Century technology and industrial achievement."

Twin Cities Engineers' Week Slated

The period of Feb. 19-25 has been proclaimed as "Engineers" Week" in Monroe and West Monroe by the mayors of the two cities.

NOTED

They noted that "The engineers of America have contributed to the economic advancement of America so that our country today enjoys a position of leadership among the nations of the earth in every field of economic endeavor."

They credited development of present day society largely to the engineering profession and noted the need for inspiring young people to choose the discipline of the engineering profession and seek an education in this field.

The mayors called upon the residents of the Twin Cities to ". . acknowledge and give proper recognition and honor to the engineers of America who have earned the plaudits and thanks of a grateful people."

Existence Made Easier By Skills

Pres. Monroe Section
La. Engineering Society

When God made the universe, he could have finished it, but He did not. Instead, he left it as a raw material and natural resource as a challenge to man to set him to thinking, experimenting, risking and adventuring, so that he might enjoy the satisfaction of creation.

Therein we find our interest in life. Thus, we find the engineer is one who takes the natural resources and raw material and transforms them into usefulness to mankind. From the beginning of time, man was conscious of applying certain elements of engineering to make his existence easier. Today, perhaps more than any time in the history of engineering profession, the opportunities have never been greater.

T. R. HENRY JR.

FOUNDED

The Louisiana Engineering Society was founded in 1898 and has six state section headquarters. Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Lafayette, Lake Charles, Monroe and Shreveport. The Monroe Section, headquarters in Monroe, Louisiana, was founded in 1949 and membership is drawn from the Fifth Congressional District of Louisiana (Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, East Carroll, Franklin, Jackson, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas, Union and West Carroll Parishes).

The Louisiana Engineering Society is affiliated with the Louisiana State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, Engineers Joint Council and the National Society of Professional Engineers.

The object of the Monroe Section is the advancement of engineering knowledge and practice, professional improvement of the members and the furtherance of the general welfare of the Louisiana Engineering Society. To the above ends, meetings shall be for the presentation and discussion of professional papers and other matters pertaining to the general improvement of the engineering profession.

MEMBERSHIP

We presently have a membership in the Monroe Section of 107, representing professional engineers in the following branches: chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical and petroleum. Many members hold registration in one or more states in the union.

National Engineers' Week is held each year for recognition of the engineering profession. The week of February 22 was chosen for this celebration in honor of the first American engineer, George Washington.

The Monroe Section of the Louisiana Engineering Society wishes to express its appreciation to the men who are joining with us in the celebration of "National Engineers' Week" — "Engineering a career of opportunity."

Electrical Power Reaches Maturity In Half Century

By HUGH BALFOUR
DIVISION ENGINEER
LA. POWER AND LIGHT CO.

The electrical industry had its humble beginning just prior to the turn of the century when the first power plant and distribution system was designed and constructed under the direction of Thomas Edison.

Through the ingenuity, vision, and creative ability of this electrical wizard, the vast quantity of energy found in the atom was put to work lighting the homes and businesses and powering the industrial plants that have helped make this country the most productive in all history.

In a little over half a century electrical power has come of age, and its use has become most vital in American industry. In the growth of this industry, there has come a group of men whose training and technical knowledge is peculiar to the industry. These men are known as engineers and have taken their place among the professions of modern society.

ESSENTIALS

The electrical utility engineer must have a sound knowledge of the fundamentals of mathematics and science with specific training and emphasis on the technical phase in which he is working. The typical utility engineer is a college graduate in either mechanical, civil, or electrical engineering.

He has vision and imagination, as well as creative abilities. Perhaps as 25 per cent of the employees of the modern utility are of engineering classification. In the electrical industry, engineers are used in the design, construction and operation of power plants, transmission lines, substations, distribution systems, and research and development in the use of atomic fuel for power plants.

In the electrical power plant, mechanical and electrical engineers are key personnel in the design and construction of the boiler or steam generator, the steam turbine, and the electrical generator. In the design of the power plant equipment, his ingenuity has been exploited to improve efficiency and produce electrical energy as cheap as possible. After the plant goes into operation, engineers are used in key positions to operate equipment to the best advantage for the company and the customer served.

TRANSPORTED

Large blocks of electrical energy must be transported from the generating station to distribution centers and areas of utilization. For this purpose high voltage transmission lines are used in order to make the energy available with the least amount of loss, and therefore, as economical as possible. In order to accomplish this, the engineer must minimize the length of line and select a voltage that will meet the requirements of economical transmission and provide for suitable growth. Location of the route as well as the type of structures and conductor size must be taken into consideration.

Substations or distribution centers are used in the transmission terminals to reduce voltage to suitable distribution levels, which are determined by load, area served and future growth. Suitable equipment in the form of transformers, lightning protective equipment, regulators, and oil circuit breakers must be selected.

Bridge Takes Form

A giant among area bridges is taking shape on the Ouachita River between Monroe and West Monroe. It is a $3,187,755 unit in the interstate 20 Highway system.

Many persons traveling daily across the old traffic bridge several hundred yards north of the project site get a vague idea of the immensity of the operations and what is yet to come, but a more vivid accounting is provided by project superintendent Dan W. Davis Jr.

Davis at 36 is a veteran of 10 years in bridge construction work, and has helped spans take shape in more turbulent settings than the Ouachita River offers.

CHALLENGE

He recalled the challenge of a $4½ - million bridge project at Bremerton, Wash., over a portion of Puget Sound which "was more involved than the work here because of the tidal action of the water rising and falling as much as 14 feet during the course of a day."

The current ran as high as 11 miles an hour, and flow of water changed four times a day, with the tide coming in twice and going out twice during that period.

Davis gave this answer:

"The Ouachita is one of the finest bodies of water I've ever had to work on. The currents are mild and the water levels are well maintained."

Contract for the bridge work was awarded to Peter Kiewit Son's Co., general contractor of Omaha, Nebraska, May 28, 1960, with completion of work tentaively scheduled for December, 1961. Davis said that work probably will run past this date, but to what extent is indefinite.

The completed bridge of welded steel beams with concrete substructure and deck will be 1,085 feet long. It will be a fixed stand type bridge with 80 feet of clearance from pool stage of the river.

WEDGE SHAPE

It will be somewhat wedge shape in that it will be 76 feet wide on the West Monroe side, with six lanes, and 150 feet wide from outside rail to outside rail on the Monroe side, equal almost to 10 lanes.

The additional width on the Monroe side will include entry and exit ramps.

There will be nine piers in all, four of them actually in the river bed at pool stage. The deepest concrete pier in the system is 35 feet below pool stage of the river, about 18 feet of this being in soil and rock. However, steel sheet piling has been driven 45 feet further into the river bed.

The sheet piling was driven into the bed of the river in the construction of coffer dams which set the framework for steel-reinforced concrete piers.

"At 18 feet below pool stage, the sheet piling that formed the coffer dam will be cut off," he said.

This operation, known as underwater burning, will be handled by divers from New Orleans. They will use electric - powered oxygen arc torches to cut the metal.

These divers will be specialists in this particular line of work, and will perform no other tasks on the bridge project. On some occasions, Davis said, divers are sent down to retrieve lost instruments.

Davis, who is originally from Seattle, Wash., is married and has four teen - age children, two sons and two daughters.

Others on Davis' team include project engineer, Paul L. Banks, from Mississippi; office engineer, Victor L. Martin, Monroe, and James E. Nelson, office manager.

Local people are used in the work force as extensively as possible, and the highest number of men employed on the project at one time was 80, a number which the superintendent does not expect to be surpassed.

Davis came to the Twin Cities from Clarksdale, Miss., where he had been stationed while work was being carried out on Helena toll bridge, a project backed by the City of Helena, Ark.

"From the time we were notified our company was the low bidder here until materials were in the river it was four months," the superintendent said. "We were planning, acquiring materials, and assembling equipment and materials at the job site. That is about normal for our company. I'd say it takes four months on anything up to a $5 - million job."

Major problems on a project like this, the superintendent said, are mobilization of manpower, logistics, assembly and shipping of materials. Weather and river conditions also figure in the progress picture.

"Designing engineers are unable to analyze soil makeup to determine all of the conditions," he explained. "Test borings are merely on a sampling basis. In the building project it is usually something other than borings indicated."

SCHEDULE

Work generally is carried on a five - day, 40-hour week basis with overtime in certain emergency operations. He said a 24-hour a day work schedule was utilized in the fall when conditions were favorable.

Engineers Corps Role Major

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of this article, A. W. Newkirk, is resident engineer of Monroe Navigation Project office of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, Vicksburg District.)

By A. W. NEWKIRK
U. S. Army Corps of Engineers

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers through the functions of the Monroe Navigation Project Office located at 3501 South Grand Street in Monroe has the responsibilities of operating and maintaining the navigation facilities of the Ouachita and Black rivers.

The Ouachita River rises in the foothills of the Ozark Mountains in west central Arkansas and flows in a southeasterly direction into northeast Louisiana. The principal tributary streams are the Little Missouri and Saline Rivers in the upper regions and Bayou Bartholomew and Boeuf and Tensas Rivers in the lower regions. There are two hydroelectric and two multiple - purpose hydroelectric and flood - control reservoirs in the headwaters of the Ouachita and its tributaries. These reservoirs aid in reducing the peak flows and increasing the low water flows.

LINKED

The Ouachita River is linked to other navigable streams by the Black and Red Rivers. At the mouth of the Red River, navigation can either move through Old River and enter the Mississippi River at mile 300AHP or move through the Atchafalaya River and enter the Intracoastal Canal at Morgan City, Louisiana, 96.5 miles west of New Orleans.

A project depth of 6½ feet is maintained on the Red, Black, and Ouachita River system to Camden, Arkansas, on the Ouachita River. Camden is 351 miles above the confluence of the Black and Red Rivers, and 385 miles from the Mississippi. The project depth is maintained by six locks and removable dams on the Ouachita River. The locks are 55 feet wide and 268 feet long, and the controlling factor of the project depth is the 6½ feet over the miter sills of these locks during lowest stages. When high water stages are experienced the dams are removed, providing an open river navigable channel with depths greater than 6½ feet. During these high water stages navigation passes to the riverside of the locks.

The general types of boats used on the Ouachita River have a draft of 4½ to 6½ feet and range in power from 400 to 1800 hp. The size of the barges used by most companies varies from 35 by 150 by 9 feet to 50 by 264 by 9 feet. The tonnage moved is nearly 500,000 tons annually, consisting of liquid sulphur, salt cake, chemicals, petroleum products, steel plate, logs, fish, and miscellaneous commodities.

A major characteristic of the Ouachita and Black Rivers is that during the course of a year, both a highwater season and a low water (pool level) season are experienced. As a result of each highwater season with its greater currents, velocities, and turbulant effects, the shallow areas of the river receives additional deposits of sand and silt. This sand and silting must necessarily be removed by dredging to provide the 6½ foot minimum channel depth. This dredging operation which lasts from two to four months each year is also a maintenance responsibility of the Corps of Engineers.

In addition to the navigation responsibilities, the Corps of Engineers is charged with certain flood control responsibilities. Its primary mission in this respect is to maintain the integrity of flood control works. Local interests are expected to extend and accelerate maintenance activities immediately prior to and during floods to the fullest extent of their ability. In addition local interests are charged exclusively with guarding and policing the protection works against unlawful acts.

IN MONROE AREA

James Machine Field Pioneer

"We keep the wheels turning for industry by manufacturing spare and replacement parts, or repairing parts."

That is the way H. M. James, machine engineer, and president of James Machine Works, Inc. on Adams Street, Monroe, summarized the work of his organiztion.

"Our work primarily is repair and maintenance of industrial plants and industrial machines in this trade area," he said. "When I came here there was only one other firm doing similar work. The type of machine engineering we do was fairly rare when we came here."

James, who is a member of the Louisiana Engineering Society, and past president of the local chapter, is a native of Winnfield where he attended public schools.

JOINED NAVY

After school days he joined the U. S. Navy and spent nine and a half years in the engineering department. Later he served six and a half years as chief engineer of a freight steamer in Trans - Atlantic trade.

He came to Monroe in 1927 and organized the James Machine Works at 1611 DeSiard. The firm moved into its present brick quarters on Adams Street in 1936. Continued expansion of the business necessitated construction of additional building in late 1960.

He has had 34 years in serving engineers and heavy industry through-out northeast Louisiana.

"The type of work consists of manufacturing spare and replacement parts or repairing old parts for all manner of machinery in this trade area," he said. "Scope consists of making everything from the smallest screw for a sewing machine to the massive parts in power plants, pulp and paper mills, and so on."

FABRICATIONS

James' organization also operates a modern steel fabricating plant and welding shop equipped, he said, to manufacture anything made of steel. James resides at 1403 North Second Street, and is married to the former Bessye Black of Hobbs, New Mexico. They have two daughters, Mrs. Bucky McElroy and Mrs. E. W. Biegenwald, of Monroe.

He is registered with the Louisiana State Board of Registration for professional engineers and land surveyors. He is a U. S. Navy combat veteran of World War One, past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Rodney J. Hobbs post No. 1880, and has a gold card life membership with the organization.

Petroleum Engineer Boon To Production

By MAX L. RILEY
Vice-Pres., General Mgr.
Southwest Gas Producing Co., Inc.

The broad field of engineering endeavor may be described quite simply as the "art of directing the great source of power in nature for the use and convenience of man." This is a noble purpose that underlies the aims of all engineering professions.

Just as civil, mining, mechanical, chemical, etc., were engineering classifications that grew out of industrial needs, petroleum engineering is an outgrowth of the petroleum industry.

This industry is more than 100 years old, yet its first petroleum engineer was graduated about 1915. At first, he was slow to be recognized by the early "wildcatters." He was little more than a greenhorn with schooling! A boll weevil! But as this technologist began to apply his learning, he was able to show the importance of conserving the great storehouse of energy found deep in the earth.

TWO FOR ONE

He was to demonstrate that two barrels of oil could be produced where only one was possible before. He was to show that natural gas, which had been considered as an almost worthless by-product of crude oil, was actually the finest fuel nature had released, and man had devised. As in any profession, his acceptance could come only after his need was shown. His need was unquestionably demonstrated and today the petroleum engineer is as essential in his industry as the resource that fostered his profession.

What does the petroleum engineer do? How does he apply his knowledge? The duties of the petroleum engineer are varied because of the complex nature of the industry. As a matter of fact, with the growth of the industry, and its complexities, it has become necessary for him to specialize.

His academic background prepares him for specialization. His engineering degree, generally a bachelor of science, was obtained after studying mathematics, chemistry, metals, hydraulics, mechanics, and geology. He must have at least a working knowledge of metallurgy and chemistry while drilling in the search of crude oil or natural gas. He must have a knowledge of geology in order to understand how this resource is stored and how it can be produced from its sand rock or limestone rock reservoir. He must understand hydraulics in order to produce petroleum through thousands of feet of tubing to the surface of the ground, and into storage tanks or natural gas in the pipelines. He must have an understanding of economics in order to properly evaluate the most economic method of handling production.

Because of advancing techniques and the increased knowledge of each of these functions, specialization in one of these phases in petroleum engineering becomes necessary. Whether working in the general field of petroleum, or whether specialized in one of its many phases, he should have a good knowledge of English grammar in order to properly communicate his ideas through written reports. Probably his greatest asset, in addition to his technical knowledge, will be his ability to get along with his fellow workers, whether he is a laborer or the president of a company.

YOUNG GRADUATE

The young graduate will soon learn that the greater part of all mechanical problems are subject to a satisfactory solution. The problem, however, of human relations is one that is learned slowly and probably never completely. To a large extent, petroleum engineering may be regarded as one of the inexact sciences — the reason being that the resource with which he works, occurs a few hundred reet to 20,000 feet below the surface of the earth. From a plug taken from the reservoir no larger than a shotgun shell, he can evaluate, with reasonable accuracy, the content of a reservoir that may cover thousands of acres. Pressure, volume, and temperature are important tools to the petroleum engineer as a reservoir technologist. When it is considered that the opening between sand grains through which oil and natural gas flows may be no larger than the end of a pen point, the delicate nature of his computations may be better appreciated.

As the crude oil or natural gas is produced from the wellhead fittings, known as the christmas tree, this technologist determines the best procedure for the production and storage of crude oil or for the production and transportation of natural gas. It should always be of paramount importance that the energy stored in the reservoir must be used sparingly to produce either crude oil or natural gas.

As it is released to the surface, without an outlet for its use, then great waste and damage to the wealth of the landowner, to the industry, and to the country will result. The conservation of this great resource, which now accounts for more than three-fourths of the energy consumed in the United States, has probably been the greatest contribution of the petroleum engineer.

Junior Technical Engineer Group Formed In 1950

The Junior Engineering Technical Society was started as an experimental project in 1950.

The program serves as a cooperative effort through which industry, engineering and scientific societies, and educational institutions work together to bolster the science and engineering programs in the high schools.

$17-MILLION IN DISTRICT PROJECTS

Highways Work Directed By Engineer And Assistants

By J. ELLIS ROSS
District Engineer
La. Dept. of Highways

The Louisiana Department of Highways has divided the state into eight districts so that all roads may receive the attention required to construct and maintain them to suit the needs of the traveling public.

Each district is headed by a district engineer who has complete authority over all roads in that district and over all personnel and equipment required to construct and maintain them.

This is District 05 and the district engineer is J. Ellis Ross, who headquarters in Monroe. In order to accomplish the construction and maintenance described above, Ross has two assistant district engineers, A. A. Braddock, in charge of construction, and George P. Forman, in charge of maintenance. To Braddock has been delegated the responsibility for all highway construction projects that are covered by contracts and for making field surveys to secure data necessary for preparing plans for these contract projects.

CONTRACT LET

As needs require, contracts are let for the betterment of existing roads and for the building of roads along new locations. Braddock is assisted in this work by W. A Patrick, assistant construction engineer.

Before a contract is let on a certain road, Braddock will assign a project engineer to the job and it will be the responsibility of this project engineer, through the use of his surveying and inspecting personnel, to see that the terms of the contract are met by the contractor and that the work progresses to the ultimate satisfactory completion of the project. At present there are 10 project engineers who are assigned to District 05 and who are in charge of approximately 35 projects, the total cost of which is approximately $17,000,000.

MAINTENANCE

George P. Forman directs the activities of all maintenance personnel and equipment, and though the assistance of four resident maintenance engineers, keeps approximately 3,100 miles of roads and bridges, culverts and ditches in a state of good repair. The automotive and heavy equipment and all department owned buildings and appertenances are maintained by Foreman's office.

Many of the smaller construction projects are built with district maintenance forces because the cost is less than it would be if this work were let to contract. Forman must secure field information, prepare cost information and supervise the construction of these projects.

O. H. Collins, district utility relocation engineer, is responsible for removing all pole lines and pipe lines and their accessories and appertenances from the site of all construction projects. Collins is directly responsible to Ross and handles work for both the construction and maintenance sections.

Communications Diversified

Dist. Engineer, Southern Bell

The communications engineer's work involves a wide field of diversified means of transmitting speech, data, television, printed messages, printed pictures and a variety of sounds and symbols.

Broadly classified, communications facilities are divided into equipment housed indoors and outside plant used to transmit intelligence within a local area or between areas.

Equipment housed indoors may vary from a relatively simple paging system to a highly complex switching facility used to interconnect telephone, teletype writer or radio subscribers within an area and between areas.

OTHER BRANCHES

The field of communications engineering touches many other branches of engineering. The communications engineer must be familiar with electrical circuits, mechanical operation of switches and other electro - mechanical devices, certain principles of civil engineering in outside plant and building design and corrosion engineering in determining the effects of electrolysis and chemical agents on communications facilities.

Colleges and Universities do not offer courses that will graduate a full-fledged communications engineer. The development of a communications engineer must be college training.

The Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company maintains the largest communications network in Northeast Louisiana, and operates in every parish of our area. The engineering of outside plant facilities for the Southern Bell Company in our area is handled by a team of engineers located in Monroe, who work in conjunction with other engineers throughout the state and nation to provide a network in our area that has access to any one of the 130,348,100 interconnected telephones that were in service throughout the world at the end of 1960.

PART OF TEAM

The telephone engineer forms part of the management team that operates the company. He must consider the economies and principles of communications design that will give the best service to the customer and at the same time meet the standards of the company from an economic and service standpoint.

Telephone service is personal, and a telephone user expects uninterrupted service with good quality. Great strides have been made in perfecting a network of telephone facilities that is durable and allows a telephone user to talk over great distances in a normal tone of voice without fading or objectional noise.

In round numbers $160,000,000 has been spent by the Southern Bell System in Louisiana over the past five years to expand and imprive telephone service. Northeast Louisiana has received its porportionate share of these expenditures for expansion and improvement in our area. In addition to the Bell System in Louisiana there are twenty-four Independent Companies who have spent millions of dollars for telephone growth in our State.

One example of the progress that is being made is direct distance dialing. After September 17 ,1961, some 105,000 telephone subscribers in north Louisiana will be able to dial long distance telephone calls from their homes without the assistance of an operator over the Bell System Direct Distance Dialing Network.

Countless thousands of engineering manhours have gone into the design and research needed to expand and improve communications facilities. A continuing search is constantly in progress in an ever expanding field to give even more and better service in the future.

IN AREA

Agriculture Gets Engineering Help

At first glance, it might not appear to be the case, but water flowing to thirsty croplands in dry weather, and away from them in wet seasons, is often the result of careful engineering work, not just happenstance.

Both the Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Extension Service have engineers in their organizations. In the case of the Soil Conservation Service their engineers and engineering aids are familiar sights around the district.

PLANNING

Their efforts are directed at a number of types of planning in the cause of agricultural betterment. But among the projects most sought in this area are ponds for livestock water, irrigation systems, land drainage systems, and land leveling.

Irrigation systems vary in design and specifications according to the needs on the farms to be served. And engineers have tackled and overcome some pretty difficult problems in supplementary watering.

One such case in Ouachita Parish was the installation of a contour border irrigation system on a hill area farm. In this, flow of water from one level to another is controlled in a way to allow each land area in the system to be properly saturated.

Most irrigation systems are constructed to last a long time if properly maintained. However, operators of a large cotton farm south of Monroe last summer decided that dry weather had reached the point of threatening some 400 acres of crops.

They consulted with the West Monroe unit of the Soil Conservation Service on a plan to erect about one and one - half miles of temporary irrigation ditches.

They received technical assistance from SCS engineers and engineering aids in planning the project. Supply ditches were dug in less than two days, and within another day water from the nearby Ouachita River was flowing to the cotton. The crop prospered as a result.

Research Is Boosted At Tech

1st Vice-pres. Monroe Sec.
La. Engineering Society

The Engineering College Research Council has stated "by its research as by its teaching. American engineering education contributes to the health, wealth, and well - being of free men — helping to assure an ever - higher standard of living in America and throughout the world."

This statement embodied the desires of several of the members of the faculty of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, in 1952.

Some research was initiated without any formal organization within the school to nurture it, although a private corporation was utilizing school facilities on a reimbursed basis to do contract development and research work.

Motivation of the administration to create a formal branch of the existing organization to expedite and promote basic and applied research came in 1953 through the efforts of the dean of engineering and some interested faculty members.

Impetus was given to this move by an E.C.P.D. (Engineers' Council for Professional Development) inspection report of October 1953, to the effect that "while a basically under - graduate teaching institution cannot be expected to compete with a graduate school in research activity, some personal participation in creative professional activity among an appreciable fraction of the faculty is increasingly regarded by the engineering profession as requisite for good teaching of undergraduate subjects." By implication "creative professional activity" means primarily "research and publications."

The Department of Engineering Research has been established as an administrative entity in a manner paralleling the academic departments for budget purposes. Two exceptions are notable in that no faculty or staff personnel are carried under this department. Even the head of the Research Department is carried under the appropriate academic department. The only funds appropriated by the school for personnel in this department are for student labor. The other distinguishing characteristic is that the operations of the department are free to cross all departmental boundaries within the School of Engineering and to go outside the School of Engineering to enlist the cooperation of other disciplines on the campus.

To effectively control personnel drawn from various academic departments who were to be utilized in research projects a Research Coordinating Committee was established composed of the Head of Engineering Research as chairman, the dean of the School of Engineering or his appointed representative, and each of the six academic department heads. All matters of policy are decided by this group.

In 1958, approval was granted for graduate study leading to the M. S. degree in engineering. This has significantly increased the performance of research and has upgraded its quality.

The research projects undertaken thus far and the monetary support of these projects fall naturally into four categories:

First, projects originated and supported entirely within the School of Engineering. These are usually fundamental studies of relatively small scope that are of particular interest to the investigator. Several such projects are underway with the needed financial support supplied from the operating budget of the Department of Engineering Research or from the academic department in which the investigator teaches or from both.

The second category is represented by a project originated within the School of Engineering for which partial or complete support is solicited from an outside agency. Usually the scope of such projects is sufficiently wide or the expected expenditures sufficiently high to preclude support entirely from school funds.

Projects originated and supported by an outside agency for whom the school is requested to conduct an investigation along specified and mutually agreed upon lines constitute the third group.

Special Plans Set At Tech For Engineers

RUSTON (Special) — Two addresses by Lionel J. Cucullu, vice president of New Orleans Public Service, Inc. will be featured during observance at Louisiana Tech of National Engineers' Week.

Cucullu will be speaker at the annual convocation at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Howard Auditorium. This event will be open to the engineering faculty and students as well as the general public.

Cucullu also will speak at the 7 p.m. dinner Wednesday, to which members of area professional engineering societies have been invited.

During the week Tech faculty members will be speakers at six civic clubs in the area. The observance is held each year in connection with the birthday of George Washington, who was a surveyor.

A television program in Monroe this week will feature a panel discussion by engineering students and professors, and films on engineering will be shown daily in Bogard Hall at Tech.

WITH NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Teachers Strive To Maintain Pace

In these times of rapidly changing scientific and engineering developments, the people who teach future engineers must work diligently to keep abreast of new developments. A study of the professional activities of the engineering faculty of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute reveals the far-reaching efforts of this group.

Every full-time teacher of engineering at the Ruston school belongs to the American Society for Engineering Education. The purpose of this society is, "The advancement of education in all its functions which pertain to engineering and allied branches of science and technology, including the processes of teaching and learning, research, extension services, and public relations."

A study of the roster of registered professional engineers in America reveals that many Tech professers are registered, not only in Louisiana but in other states. The records show the following registrations: Louisiana, 28; Texas, three; Oklahoma, two; Arkansas one; West Virginia, one; Virginia, one; Illinois, one; and Wisconsin, one.

FROM RUSTON

The National Society of Professional Engineers counts 14 members from Ruston, while the Louisiana Engineering Society has 21 members from this group.

The other societies represented at Tech indicate the areas of special interest within the faculty. The older societies include The American Society of Civil Engineers; The American Society of Mechanical Engineers; The American Institute of Electrical Engineers; The American Society of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers; and The American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

A list of the other societies claiming members among the Tech people reveals the important areas of engineering that have grown up in relatively recent times. This list includes the Institute of Radio Engineers, The American Ceramic Society, The American Concrete Institute, the American Society of Photogrammerty, The Association for Computing Machinery, the Society of Automotive Engineers, and the American Institute of Industrial Engineers.

Many of the engineering faculty at Tech provide emportant leadership in professional activities. Dean Ben T. Bogard is presently president of the Louisiana Engineering Society, a member and vice chairman of the Louisiana State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, and a member of the National Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners. Also, Dean Bogard is a member of the Engineers' Council for Professional Development, the national accrediting agency for engineering colleges and universities. Nearly all of the faculty members appear from time to time as speakers before local, state and national gruops.

High School Math Key

— Pass up a high school math course here and a physical science course there and you may well be closing the door forever on a career in engineering or science.

That's the consensus of advice being given this week, National Engineers' Week, February 19-25, as professional engineers visit the Nation's secondary schools for career conferences with high school students. The theme of the annual observance this year is "Engineering . . . A Career of Opportunity."

The engineers will tell the teenagers that the actual beginning of an engineering career is in the early high school years. The student who skips vital math and science courses in these important years will find such courses difficult to make up in the senior year of high school. And the steadily rising admission standards of today's engineering schools will mean that the student without a sound foundation in basic math and science will be likely to get a negative reply to his or her engineering school application.

The age of space exploration and nuclear technology has put great pressure on the modern engineering school curriculum. Engineering school faculties are increasingly deciding that there is no room in the college program for high school math. The student must come to college with a solid grounding in mathematics and the physical sciences if he wants to cope with engineering school requirements.

The engineering school educational program is in itself undergoing changes from its traditional emphasis on training the student in engineering practice. The trend is in the direction of providing the student with an extensive background in math and science as a preparation for his eventual work in one of the engineering specialties. The kind of work engineers are now doing and will do more in the second half of the 20th Century demands an individual capable of working in areas which were those of the research scientist of only a few years ago.
